House Group Okays Labor Bill

Would Reduce Union Powers, Curb Strikes

Senators In Favor Of Closed Shop Ban

WASHINGTON, April 11. (AP)—The House Labor Committee approved tonight a far-reaching new bill to curb strikes and the powers of unions generally.

The Senate Labor Committee at the same time adopted a ban on the closed shop in the general measure it has under consideration. Sen. Taft (R-Ohio), committee chairman, announced the action after an all-day session in which the members went through less than half of the big bill.

The House committee put off until tomorrow morning a single routing vote which will send its bill to the House floor for action next week.

It has approved the bill section by section, however, including a provision to cope with strikes affecting the welfare of the entire nation.

Outlaws Closed Shop

The measure would outlaw the closed shop and, with some exceptions, ban collective bargaining on an industry-wide basis. It would permit the union shop if both employers and employes want it.

Tht closed shop requires a company to hire only union workers. The union shop lets it hire anyone it pleases, but the new employe must join the union shortly afterward.

Chairman Hartley (R-NJ) told reporters the bill would "break unions down to a company level.

Far stiffer than a labor bill now under consideration by the Senate Labor Committee, the House measure lists a whole new set of labor practices that would be branded "unfair" practices of both employers and employes.

Among other things, it would:

Forbid political contributions by unions, guarantee the employer the right of free speech on labor matters, make unions subject to law suits for violating contracts, take the conciliation service away from the Labor Department and make it independent, abolish the present National Labor Relations Board and set up a new one confined primarily to holding hearings on charges of unfair labor practices.

Independent Administrator

An independent administrator would submit cases to the new board and enforce them in the courts, if need be.

A union would be forbidden to bargain for a contract covering an entire industry when the individual companies in it compete with each other. But it would be allowed to seek a contract covering an entire industry in which the individual companies do not compete.

Committee officials said the ban would apply to Lewis and the coal industry on the theory that one mine competes with another. But they said it would not apply to the telephone industry because a telephone company in one section does not compete with that in another.

The intention is to limit bargaining, with few exceptions, to local unions and single employers.

MINE BLAST VICTIMS—Anthracite miners and rescue squads remove two unidentified victims of an explosion in the Schooley shaft of the Knox Coal Company at Exeter, Pa., which killed nine and injured nine others. One victim is being placed in a white ambulance and the other is being carried on a stretcher to the ambulance. Yesterday, the state set up a committee to investigate the explosion.

Greco-Turkish Aid Bill Test Vote Delayed

Wallace Is Blasted For Criticizing Plan

WASHINGTON, April 11 (AP) — Angry criticism of Henry A. Wallace, touring critic of President Truman's $400,000,000 Greco-Turkish aid program, arose on Capitol Hill today as the Senate debated the bill without reaching a test vote.

Sen. Eastland (D-Miss) declared that Wallace "has atempted to induce the friends and allies of his country to desert her" and thereby "force us to sail the perilous seas alone."

(In London today, former Vice President Wallace said Britain could save the world from war by refusing to take sides between the United States and Russia. The Truman program is designed to bolster Greece and Turkey against Communism.)

Pepper Defends Wallace

When Eastland said Wallace had been invited to France by Jacques Duclos, leader of the French Communist Party, Sen. Pepper (D-Fla) interrupted to declare that other French leaders also had invited Wallace.

Sen. Lucas (D-Ill) told reporters: "I regret that Mr. Wallace has seen fit to go into England and France at this time and make the statements he has made when this grave and serious question is being debated.

"What we need is unity behind our bi-partisan foreign policy, and not disunity. Mr. Wallace makes no contribution to that cause."

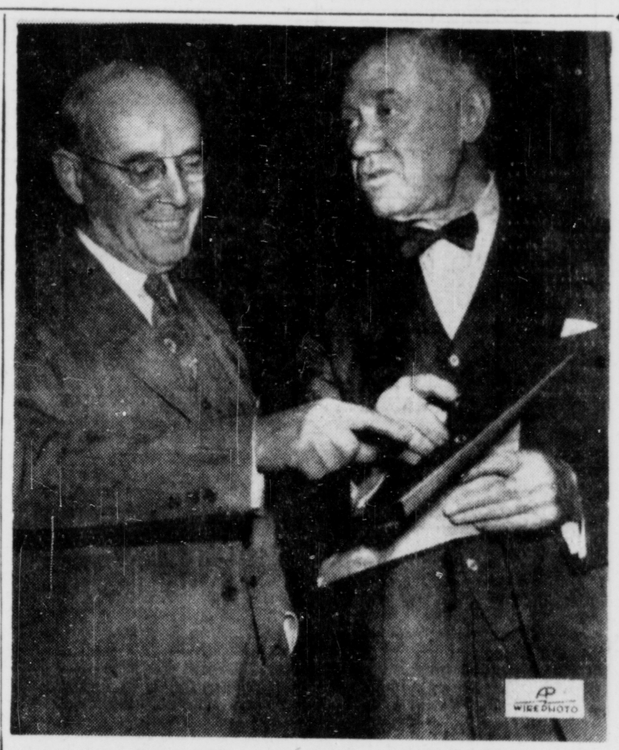

Three more Republicans — Sens. Lodge (Mass), Saltonstall (Mass) and Flanders (Vt)—took the Senate floor during the day to announce support for the Truman bill. But it made little progress there or in the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Would Cut Out Turkish Aid

The Senate recessed at 5:02 p. m. until noon on Tuesday without reaching a vote on an amendment by Sen. Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo) to strip the aid to Turkey from the measure. It will take a holiday on Monday for the opening baseball game of the season, which President Truman also will attend.

Rep. Eaton (R-NJ), chairman of the House committee which still is studying amendments to the bill, said it will continue its work next Tuesday and that he hopes it will finish by the end of this month, sending the legislation to the floor then.

The group heard Undersecretary of State Dean Acheson in closed session today and members reported that he expressed satisfaction at "real progress" made by Congress.

PRE-HEARING TALK—Sen. Charles W. Tobey (R-NH), left, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee investigating Reconstruction Finance Corporation affairs, talks with Charles B. Henderson, right, retiring RFC chairman, prior to the committee hearing yesterday. Henderson denied that the RFC acquiesced in what a witness has termed a "fraudulent bankruptcy" action of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in 1944.

Union Writes Off Settlement Plan As "Dead"

Was Only Major Step Taken Toward Accord

WASHINGTON, April 12 (Saturday) (AP)—The first major step toward settling the telephone strike collapsed at midnight.

That was the deadline set by George S. Dring, of the long lines division of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, for acceptance by the long distance strikers of a tentative agreement on that phase of the strike.

The deadline came and went without anything happening.

Actually, it became known hours earlier that the tentative agreement was "dead."

John J. Moran, leader of the long distance workers, thus described it to reporters when told early last night of Dring's deadline.

Dring had said that if the union failed to accept the settlement plan definitely by midnight "the tentative agreement of the company will be withdrawn. Then I suppose we will have to start all over again.

Moran, speaking as president of the American Union of Telephone workers, said:

"We're not going to accept by midnight, of course. We'll just have to stand by and see what happens now.

"We are not too much worried about them withdrawing the offer. When the company finally gets down to negotiating a contract that won't hurt any."

Arbitration Plan Included

The tentative agreement between the A. T. and T. and the long distance union included a plan to arbitrate demands, including wagers, for these workers. However, their union is only one of 49 in the National Federation of Telephone Workers and the policy committee of the federation ruled that the proposal "did not conform" to union policy.

The policy committee held that agreement is "local" in the sense that it applies to but one union, whereas the committee wants all to be treated together.

Government conciliators had hoped that the long distance proposal might serve as a pattern for all unions and thus end the strike of 320,000 workers quickly.

One condition of the long distance proposal was that the members go back to work. The federation policy committee steered away from approval, apparently for fear of the effects a restoration of long distance service would have on the rest of the strike.

Dring said that if the deadline passes without acceptance, "it may be some time" before negotiations on long distance matters can be resumed.

Dring asserted that the time limit had been agreed to by both sides; Moran said that "we didn't agree to it. The company said they had to known by midnight tonight."

Union Proposes Meeting

Meantime Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach delayed for the present a reply to a union proposal for top level and public talks with the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Schwellenbach had promised "an immediate decision" after getting the request from President J. A. Beirne, of the National Federation of Telephone Workers.

However, the Secretary's associates said that press of other matters slowed his consideration. He went to the White House but an aide said that visit involved a meeting on universal military training and had nothing to do with the telephone situation.

The union federation proposes to carry "our complete story" to President Truman if it cannot get a three-cornered meeting of the Labor Department, its own leaders and representatives of the A. T. and T.

Labor Department conciliators who have been meeting separately with union and operating company officials held a series of private meetings of their own today.

The policy committee of the 49-union federation met for four hours and adjourned without any outward sign of progress.

Coal Production Goes Up As More Miners Return

Output 50 Per Cent Of Normal, CMA Says

WASHINGTON, April 11 (AP)—The Coal Mines Adminisration reported that soft coal production crept up to 59 per cent of normal today with the return to work of 30,000 additional miners.

They had been idle in the "safety" stoppage which followed the Centralia, Ill., mine explosion.

The CMA said 1,860 mines are now operating, 168 more than on Thursday.

The number of men at work was estimated at 185,648, compared with 155,723 the day before.

168 Mines Pass Inspection

The Bureau of Mines said that 38 additional mines were removed from the government's "Hazardous" list of 518 today, bringing the total of mines which have passed inspection to 168. The newly-approved mines included one of the largest and deepest in the United States, the Glen Rogers, W. Va., number two mine of the Raleigh Mining Company of Chicago.

R. R. Sayers, director of the Federal Bureau of Mines, reported "considerable laxity" in state coal mine safety requirements and suggested a federal law with "definite police powers."

He also said that a federal inspector "exercised reasonable judgment" in not seeking to close the Centralit (Ill.) coal mine where an explosion snuffed out 111 lives.

In a statement to a Senate Public Lands Subcommittee investigating the disaster, Sayers noted that an examination of the Centralia mine by Inspector Frank Perz a few days before the March 25 blast disclosed the need for 52 "major and minor" improvements in safety conditions.

Why Closure Not Requested

"The committee may wonder why the federal inspector x x x did not request that the mine be closed because of imminent danger," Sayers said. "I think it important that the committee understand just what, in our judgment, constitutes imminent danger and just what the inspector inculded in this case.

"Imminent danger, as we use the term in coal mine inspection work, represents an exceptionally hazardous condition which is in existence and which may in the immediate future result in disaster.

"The condition at Centralia were very hazardous, and the inspector

Uncle Dan Young, 103 And Single, Ponders 26 Marriage Offers

SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 11 (AP)—Uncle Dan Young, who has been single all his 103 years, pondered 26 proposals of marriage today.

Uncle Dan's dilemma was really his own fault. At his birthday party two weeks ago he suggested that he would consider marriage if a woman of his own age came along.

His statement was published widely and was taken seriously by lonely widows and spinsters, aged 42 to 100, in all parts of the country.

Failing eyesight kept Uncle Dan from reading the letters himself, but they were read to him and he said he would answer every one.

Murderess Dies In Gas Chamber

SAN QUENTIN, April 11 (AP) — Mrs. Louise Peete Judson, who spent more than one third of her 59 years in prison, died today in San Quentin's green-tinted gas chamber for the murder of a woman who had befriended her.

Mrs. Judson was executed for the 1944 murder of Mrs. Margaret Logan, 60, Pacific Palisades, to whom she had been paroled after serving 18 years of a life sentence for the 1920 murder of Jacob Denton, Los Angeles engineer.

She fought futilely into the United States Supreme Court for the life she had sustained for years by defrauding two benefactors — both of whom she killed with a pistol to obtain their estates.

To the end she denied that she killed either.

"I come from cultured, educated people," she told newsmen. "I have a background of culture. My parents were not delinquents and they did not rear delinquent children."

Gov. Earl Warren, who denied her final plea, said her crimes were too gruesome to be condoned.

Mrs. Judson wore a gay flowered dress to her execution. She quietly told Warden Clinton T. Duffy:

"Well, I'm ready. I've been ready a long time."

Oklahoma City Buses, Trolleys Running Again

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 11 (AP)—Oklahoma City was without street car and bus service for 12 hours today when employes of the owners — the Oklahoma Transportation Company — refused to cross the picket line of another union.

Service was resumed in mid-afternoon, after a court order prohibiting the picketing had been issued.

Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, employes of the Interstate Transportation Company which operates in Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas, set up a picket line around the street car barns this morning. They are on strike for higher wages.

239 Japanese Warships To Be Divided By Allies

WASHINGTON, April 11 (AP) — The United States has informed Britain, Russia and China that 239 Japanese warships of destroyer size or less are available for equal division among the four Allied powers.

Undersecretary of State Dean Acheson announced today that Gen. Douglas MacArthur has advised that 140 of the captured enemy vessels are ready for delivery.

An agreement of the big powers directs that larger warships and submarines be destroyed.

Acheson said the scrapping is proceeding according to plan.

Wallace Asserts Truman Program Is "Inadequate"

World Spending Plan Urged As Substitute

WASHINGTON, April 11 (AP)—Leon Henderson, former OPA administrator, said tonight that Americans for Democratic Action do not agree with Henry Wallace's statement that "the Truman doctrine on Greece and Turkey is a move towards war.." Henderson, interviewed on a Mutuel - WOL broadcast program, also said that Wallace was not authorized to speak for the organization in his tour of Europe.

LONDON, April 11—(AP)—Henry A. Wallace said tonight President Truman was embarking on a doctrine of "unconditional and to anti-Soviet governments." The former vice president advocated a 10-year $50,000,000,000 world spending program as a substitute prescription for peace.

He said he believed an overall program of European reconstruction financed by the International Bank and directed by the United Nations would insure success of the Moscow Foreign Ministers Conference.

Urges World Control Of Atom

Wallace urged world control of atomic energy and weapons of destruction, internationalization of strategic areas including the Dardanelles, Suez Canal and Panama Canal and a movement toward National disarmament and creation of a world security system as other elements of his plan for peace.

The former vice president, on a tour of England, France and Scandinavia to contact "progressive" leaders, spoke at Central Hall, Westminster, before a meeting sponsored by editors of the New Statesman and Nation, leftist British weekly.

Declaring "the President's program is both demoralizing and inadequate," Wallace said "it is undertaken in the name of stopping Communism. Instead it will lead to Communist revolutions."

"If War Comes"

"If war comes," Wallace continued, there can be no neutrality in the modern world. Nations which strive for justice will be given the

Probe Of Slaying Takes New Turn

DETROIT, April 11 (AP)—Michigan's long series of investigations into the unsolved hatchet-slaying of well-to-do Mrs. Lydia Thompson took a new turn today.

State's Attorney General Eugene F. Black announced a Detroit court would be asked to dismiss murder charges against Stanley Anculewicz, 33-year-old pots and pans salesman.

Indictments from Circuit Judge George B. Murphy's one-man grand jury laid Mrs. Thompson's mysterious slaying to her husband, Louis, 48; his second wife, Helen, 39, and Anculewicz.

All three protested innocence of the bizarre slaying, which baffled investigators at its occurrence 18 months ago.

Anculewicz, married and father of three children, claimed he fabricated a melodramatic story of murdering Mrs. Thompson so that he could frighten a woman acquaintance into breaking off their relationshp.

The woman, Mrs. Laura Riddle, 31, has been held in $25,000 bond as a material witness. The grand jury said her story brought about the arrest of Anculewicz.

Tobey Foresees Jones Testimony At RFC Hearing

Henderson Denies Clay's Accusation

WASHINGTON, April 11 (AP) — Sen. Tobey (R-NH) predicted today that Jesse Jones, former federal loan administrator, will appear voluntarily as a witness in the Senate Banking Committee's investigation of an $80,000,000 Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

Tobey, the committee chairman and a critic of the transaction, made the forecast as the second day of hearings brought a flood of contradictory testimony and challenged statements.

Finally Sen. Capehart (R-Ind.) asked the chairman whether he intends to call for testimony from Jones, whose name repeatedly has entered into the evidence.

"I think Mr. Jones will come without being called," Tobey responded crisply.

Basis For Forecast Unexplained

He did not explain the basis for his prediction. Jones is back in Houston, Texas, after years of government service during which he attained Cabinet status as Secretary of Commerce.

The committee, which soon must recommend whether the life of RFC shall be extended past next June 30, heard:

1. A denial by Charles B. Henderson, outgoing RFC chairman, that the RFC acquiesced in what a previous witness, Cassius Clay, termed a "fraudulent bankruptcy" action of the B. and O. in 1944.

2. A declaration from Stewart McDonald, chairman of B. and O.'s executive committee, that Adolph Berle, former assistant secretary of state, cornered him at the Brazilian Embassy one night and insisted that Clay, his brother-in-law, be made general counsel of B. and O.

Clay, then employed by RFC, later became the road's general solicitor.

3. Clay's comeback: That Berle informed him in 1944 that President Roosevelt was looking for a chance to fire Jones, and that if Clay would raise objections to the pending B. and O. reorganization plan, the President would welcome the opportunity to get rid of Jones. (Clay later resigned from the B. and O., but almost a year later.)

Assertion Of Tobey

4. An assertion by Tobey that the RFC's letter which furnished the legal basis for the railroad's 1944 bankruptcy action was "substantially the same," as a draft furnished the RFC by Russell L. Snodgrass, B. and O. vice president. Tobey called the asserted action "thimble-riggery" and "skulldruggery."

5. A letter, read into the record, from Jones to the three federal circuit judges who passed on the B. and O.'s 1944 reorganization plan, declaring that his recommendations to the RFC with respect to the B. and O. debt were "not influenced in the slightest by officials of the road."

Governor Hopes For Full Phone Service In N. J.

Court Actions Begin In Test Of New Law

NEWARK, N. J., April 11 (AP) — Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll said tonight he was "very hopeful" that full telephone service would be restored in New Jersey pending a test by striking New Jersey Bell Telephone Company switchboard operators of the constitutionality of this state's new anti-public utility strike legislation.

The Governor said he based his hopes on a possible conference tomorrow between State Mediation Board Chairman Walter T. Margetts, Jr., and national officials of the National Federation of Telephone Workers. He said the meeting might be held in Newark.

It was learned that Driscoll had met today with Chester I. Barnard, president of the telephone company, but the Governor said the meeting had no direct bearing on current developments in the strike.

Barnard requested the meeting, Driscoll said, after learning the Governor had met recently with union representatives.

Meanwhile criminal and civil court actions were started today in a test of the state's new legislation.

At the same time 4,600 dial maintenance workers, members of an independent union which had returned to work when the legislature passed an amendment to the law three days ago, received new instructions from their union president, J. J. Curtin, not to cross picket lines of the 12,000 striking operators.

This morning, the three women leaders of the Traffic Telephone Workers Federation of New Jersey (a NFTW affiliate) were arrested and arraigned in Essex County Court on warrants charging them with violating the anti-strike law. All pleaded innocent.

New York Strike Settled

ALBANY, N. Y., April 11 (AP) — A strike of upstate New York maintenance and plant employes against the New York Telephone Company was settled tonight with an agreement to arbitrate a demanded $12 weekly wage increase.

Settlement of the five-day strike by the Empire Telephone Union, termed by a company spokesman as the "first break in the telephone tieup throughout the nation," affects only plant and maintenance workers outside of New York City and does not cover operators.

In addition to submitting the wage issue to arbitration the settlement provides that time schedules for reaching minimum wage brackets and the effective date of wage adjustments will also be arbitrated.

U. S. Protests Removal Of Property By Yugos

WASHINGTON, April 11. (AP)—The United States has protested to Yugoslavia against the removal of Italian property from the area to be included in the future free territory of Trieste, the State Department announced today.

Undersecretary Dean Acheson said a note of protest was delivered March 27 to the Yugoslavia Ambassador.

The note describes the property as important and valuable, and including industrial as well as personal property, but does not otherwise identify it. It charges the property was removed from an area currently under Yugoslav military government.

Tornado-Shattered City Launches Rebuilding Job

WOODWARD, Okla., April 11 (AP) —The grind of machinery clearing away the rubble today replaced screaming ambulance sirens as Woodward, still mourning 84 dead, turned to rebuilding its tornado-shattered city.

One thousand Woodward residents were injured in Wednesday night's twister.

Woodward was hardest hit of the Texas and Oklahoma communities in the path of the storm. More than 50 other persons were killed or died of injuries.

Higgins, Texas, reported 39 dead; Glazier, Texas, 14.

Three were killed in Gage, Okla.

But this city of 5,500 was undaunted by estimates of some citizens it would take five years to rebuild.

While there was talk of a mass burial for the victims, a meeting of civic and business leaders was held to plan the rebuilding of the town.

Mayor R. A. Bosch estimated 500 houses were uninhabitable and 70 percent of all homes in the city were damaged or destroyed.

"Most of our people will need help but they don't want charity or government handouts," he emphasized.

Typical of the spirit of cooperation which has eased the sorrows of the victims was this story of an unidentified man:

The shingles on the roof of his big, old house were ripped off by the tornado. His friends in the area learned of his plight and 40 of them gathered here today with tools in hand. In a few hours the house was repaired.

Generous citizens of the surrounding territory deluged the city with supplies and the Red Cross asked that gifts be withheld. Those wanting to help were asked to first notify the Red Cross what was available.

Twenty-one large, commercial vans carrying tents, cots and blankets to Woodward and other stricken towns in the region have been dispatched from Fort Worth, Tex.

Many heavy machines sent in by the Oklahoma Highway Department have started clearing Woodward. The rubble is being gathered from the streets, and homes that can be repaired are being patched. Damage is estimated in the millions of dollars.

Guilty In Strangling

NORRISTOWN, Pa., April 11—(AP) —A jury of 10 women and two men tonight found Gerald C. Wentzel, 37-year-old Pottstown, Pa., diemaker and civic leader, guilty of second degree murder in the strangulation slaying of Mrs. Miriam Green, attractive 28-year-old divorcee.

Judge George C. Corson deferred sentence when defense counsel immediately filed a motion for a new trial.

"Terribly Unfair"

Laraine Day, Chatty With Newsmen For Change, Says Her Leo Wronged

LOS ANGELES, April 11 (AP)—Laraine Day, winsome and—for a change—chatty with the press, returned today from the East to charge that her Leo had been wronged.

Husband (everywhere but in California) Leo Durocher is under suspension for the 1947 season from his job as manager of Brooklyn's Dodgers, outgrowth of a dispute involving the Dodgers and the New York Yankees.

Miss Day, stepping from a plane from New York, called Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler's suspension "terribly unfair."

"Leo," she added, "was condemned without a hearing and denied the right of appeal."

Leo himself, as one of the principals, is under a Chandler order of silence about the matter. The garrulous, umpire-baiting pilot, however, told his side at hearings before Chandler prior to the latter's edict.

Miss Day—who drew the ire of California courts by eloping and marrying Leo only a day after her divorce here, which won't be final until next January—has been avoiding mass interviews with the press when she was with Leo. He has guided her, running, through the ranks of waiting reporters time and again, yelling "no comment" to the press. But today Laraine graciously stood, hugging her adopted son, Christopher Hendricks, 2nd, answering questions.

Asked if Leo's current difficulties had changed things between them, she replied:

"People just don't fall in and out of love in a hurry."

Shoe In The Goo

Mechanic Attempting To Retrieve Wrench "Trapped" In Molasses Car

NEW YORK, April 11 (AP) — Joseph Giknis not only put his foot into it—he put both feet—and it took six husky cops to extricate him.

Giknis, 40-year-old Brooklyn coal company mechanic, met a friend employed at a nearby railroad terminal. The friend said he had dropped a monkey wrench into an empty molasses tank car and asked Giknis to help him get it out.

Giknis said sure, and proceeded to let himself down into the car.

Right away he found the car not exactly empty, and himself in a sweet fix—too much shoe in the goo.

The molasses was ankle deep and, to put it mildly, somewhat gummed up the works, not to mention Giknis.

"What's the matter?" inquired his friend from above.

"I'm stuck," said Giknis, with the full meaning of the word.

The friend summoned other workers, who lowered a rope. Giknis didn't budge, and neither did the molasses.

The workmen got a rope ladder.

Gignis still stuck to his stand in the matter.

A police emergency squad was summoned. The cops studied the situation—from above—and went to work rigging up a boatswain's chair.

Two hours after Giknis first found a kicker in the sticker, he fastened himself into the chair and the cops hauled away.

Out of the stickiness came Giknis, unhurt but not unsweetened.

Leo himself, as one of the principals, is under a Chandler order of silence about the matter. The garrulous, umpire-baiting pilot, however, told his side at hearings before Chandler prior to the latter's edict.

Miss Day—who drew the ire of California courts by eloping and marrying Leo only a day after her divorce here, which won't be final until next January—has been avoiding mass interviews with the press when she was with Leo. He has guided her, running, through the ranks of waiting reporters time and again, yelling "no comment" to the press. But today Laraine graciously stood, hugging her adopted son, Christopher Hendricks, 2nd, answering questions.

Asked if Leo's current difficulties had changed things between them, she replied:

"People just don't fall in and out of love in a hurry."

Uncle Dan Young, 103 And Single, Ponders 26 Marriage Offers

SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 11 (AP)—Uncle Dan Young, who has been single all his 103 years, pondered 26 proposals of marriage today.

Uncle Dan's dilemma was really his own fault. At his birthday party two weeks ago he suggested that he would consider marriage if a woman of his own age came along.

His statement was published widely and was taken seriously by lonely widows and spinsters, aged 42 to 100, in all parts of the country.

Failing eyesight kept Uncle Dan from reading the letters himself, but they were read to him and he said he would answer every one.

Murderess Dies In Gas Chamber

SAN QUENTIN, April 11 (AP) — Mrs. Louise Peete Judson, who spent more than one third of her 59 years in prison, died today in San Quentin's green-tinted gas chamber for the murder of a woman who had befriended her.

Mrs. Judson was executed for the 1944 murder of Mrs. Margaret Logan, 60, Pacific Palisades, to whom she had been paroled after serving 18 years of a life sentence for the 1920 murder of Jacob Denton, Los Angeles engineer.

She fought futilely into the United States Supreme Court for the life she had sustained for years by defrauding two benefactors — both of whom she killed with a pistol to obtain their estates.

To the end she denied that she killed either.

"I come from cultured, educated people," she told newsmen. "I have a background of culture. My parents were not delinquents and they did not rear delinquent children."

Gov. Earl Warren, who denied her final plea, said her crimes were too gruesome to be condoned.

Mrs. Judson wore a gay flowered dress to her execution. She quietly told Warden Clinton T. Duffy:

Oklahoma City Buses, Trolleys Running Again

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 11 (AP)—Oklahoma City was without street car and bus service for 12 hours today when employes of the owners — the Oklahoma Transportation Company — refused to cross the picket line of another union.

Service was resumed in mid-afternoon, after a court order prohibiting the picketing had been issued.

Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, employes of the Interstate Transportation Company which operates in Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas, set up a picket line around the street car barns this morning. They are on strike for higher wages.

239 Japanese Warships To Be Divided By Allies

WASHINGTON, April 11 (AP) — The United States has informed Britain, Russia and China that 239 Japanese warships of destroyer size or less are available for equal division among the four Allied powers.

Undersecretary of State Dean Acheson announced today that Gen. Douglas MacArthur has advised that 140 of the captured enemy vessels are ready for delivery.

An agreement of the big powers directs that larger warships and submarines be destroyed.

Acheson said the scrapping is proceeding according to plan.

Wallace Asserts Truman Program Is "Inadequate"

World Spending Plan Urged As Substitute

WASHINGTON, April 11 (AP)—Leon Henderson, former OPA administrator, said tonight that Americans for Democratic Action do not agree with Henry Wallace's statement that "the Truman doctrine on Greece and Turkey is a move towards war.." Henderson, interviewed on a Mutuel - WOL broadcast program, also said that Wallace was not authorized to speak for the organization in his tour of Europe.

LONDON, April 11—(AP)—Henry A. Wallace said tonight President Truman was embarking on a doctrine of "unconditional and to anti-Soviet governments." The former vice president advocated a 10-year $50,000,000,000 world spending program as a substitute prescription for peace.

He said he believed an overall program of European reconstruction financed by the International Bank and directed by the United Nations would insure success of the Moscow Foreign Ministers Conference.

Urges World Control Of Atom

Wallace urged world control of atomic energy and weapons of destruction, internationalization of strategic areas including the Dardanelles, Suez Canal and Panama Canal and a movement toward National disarmament and creation of a world security system as other elements of his plan for peace.

The former vice president, on a tour of England, France and Scandinavia to contact "progressive" leaders, spoke at Central Hall, Westminster, before a meeting sponsored by editors of the New Statesman and Nation, leftist British weekly.

Declaring "the President's program is both demoralizing and inadequate," Wallace said "it is undertaken in the name of stopping Communism. Instead it will lead to Communist revolutions."

"If War Comes"

"If war comes," Wallace continued, there can be no neutrality in the modern world. Nations which strive for justice will be given the

Wallace Is Blasted For Criticizing Plan

WASHINGTON, April 11 (AP) — Angry criticism of Henry A. Wallace, touring critic of President Truman's $400,000,000 Greco-Turkish aid program, arose on Capitol Hill today as the Senate debated the bill without reaching a test vote.

Sen. Eastland (D-Miss) declared that Wallace "has atempted to induce the friends and allies of his country to desert her" and thereby "force us to sail the perilous seas alone."

(In London today, former Vice President Wallace said Britain could save the world from war by refusing to take sides between the United States and Russia. The Truman program is designed to bolster Greece and Turkey against Communism.)

Pepper Defends Wallace

When Eastland said Wallace had been invited to France by Jacques Duclos, leader of the French Communist Party, Sen. Pepper (D-Fla) interrupted to declare that other French leaders also had invited Wallace.

Sen. Lucas (D-Ill) told reporters:

"I regret that Mr. Wallace has seen fit to go into England and France at this time and make the statements he has made when this grave and serious question is being debated.

"What we need is unity behind our bi-partisan foreign policy, and not disunity. Mr. Wallace makes no contribution to that cause."

Three more Republicans — Sens. Lodge (Mass), Saltonstall (Mass) and Flanders (Vt)—took the Senate floor during the day to announce support for the Truman bill. But it made little progress there or in the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Would Cut Out Turkish Aid

The Senate recessed at 5:02 p. m. until noon on Tuesday without reaching a vote on an amendment by Sen. Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo) to strip the aid to Turkey from the measure. It will take a holiday on Monday for the opening baseball game of the season, which President Truman also will attend.

Rep. Eaton (R-NJ), chairman of the House committee which still is studying amendments to the bill, said it will continue its work next Tuesday and that he hopes it will finish by the end of this month, sending the legislation to the floor then.

The group heard Undersecretary of State Dean Acheson in closed session today and members reported that he expressed satisfaction at "real progress" made by Congress.

Probe Of Slaying Takes New Turn

DETROIT, April 11 (AP)—Michigan's long series of investigations into the unsolved hatchet-slaying of well-to-do Mrs. Lydia Thompson took a new turn today.

State's Attorney General Eugene F. Black announced a Detroit court would be asked to dismiss murder charges against Stanley Anculewicz, 33-year-old pots and pans salesman.

Indictments from Circuit Judge George B. Murphy's one-man grand jury laid Mrs. Thompson's mysterious slaying to her husband, Louis, 48; his second wife, Helen, 39, and Anculewicz.

All three protested innocence of the bizarre slaying, which baffled investigators at its occurrence 18 months ago.

Anculewicz, married and father of three children, claimed he fabricated a melodramatic story of murdering Mrs. Thompson so that he could frighten a woman acquaintance into breaking off their relationshp.

The woman, Mrs. Laura Riddle, 31, has been held in $25,000 bond as a material witness. The grand jury said her story brought about the arrest of Anculewicz.

Tornado-Shattered City Launches Rebuilding Job

WOODWARD, Okla., April 11 (AP) —The grind of machinery clearing away the rubble today replaced screaming ambulance sirens as Woodward, still mourning 84 dead, turned to rebuilding its tornado-shattered city.

One thousand Woodward residents were injured in Wednesday night's twister.

Woodward was hardest hit of the Texas and Oklahoma communities in the path of the storm. More than 50 other persons were killed or died of injuries.

Higgins, Texas, reported 39 dead; Glazier, Texas, 14.

Three were killed in Gage, Okla.

But this city of 5,500 was undaunted by estimates of some citizens it would take five years to rebuild.

While there was talk of a mass burial for the victims, a meeting of civic and business leaders was held to plan the rebuilding of the town.

Mayor R. A. Bosch estimated 500 houses were uninhabitable and 70 percent of all homes in the city were damaged or destroyed.

"Most of our people will need help but they don't want charity or government handouts," he emphasized.

Typical of the spirit of cooperation which has eased the sorrows of the victims was this story of an unidentified man:

The shingles on the roof of his big, old house were ripped off by the tornado. His friends in the area learned of his plight and 40 of them gathered here today with tools in hand. In a few hours the house was repaired.

Generous citizens of the surrounding territory deluged the city with supplies and the Red Cross asked that gifts be withheld. Those wanting to help were asked to first notify the Red Cross what was available.

Twenty-one large, commercial vans carrying tents, cots and blankets to Woodward and other stricken towns in the region have been dispatched from Fort Worth, Tex.

Many heavy machines sent in by the Oklahoma Highway Department have started clearing Woodward. The rubble is being gathered from the streets, and homes that can be repaired are being patched. Damage is estimated in the millions of dollars.

PRE-HEARING TALK—Sen. Charles W. Tobey (R-NH), left, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee investigating Reconstruction Finance Corporation affairs, talks with Charles B. Henderson, right, retiring RFC chairman, prior to the committee hearing yesterday. Henderson denied that the RFC acquiesced in what a witness has termed a "fraudulent bankruptcy" action of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in 1944.

Tobey Foresees Jones Testimony At RFC Hearing

Henderson Denies Clay's Accusation

WASHINGTON, April 11 (AP) — Sen. Tobey (R-NH) predicted today that Jesse Jones, former federal loan administrator, will appear voluntarily as a witness in the Senate Banking Committee's investigation of an $80,000,000 Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

Tobey, the committee chairman and a critic of the transaction, made the forecast as the second day of hearings brought a flood of contradictory testimony and challenged statements.

Finally Sen. Capehart (R-Ind.) asked the chairman whether he intends to call for testimony from Jones, whose name repeatedly has entered into the evidence.

"I think Mr. Jones will come without being called," Tobey responded crisply.

Basis For Forecast Unexplained

He did not explain the basis for his prediction. Jones is back in Houston, Texas, after years of government service during which he attained Cabinet status as Secretary of Commerce.

The committee, which soon must recommend whether the life of RFC shall be extended past next June 30, heard:

1. A denial by Charles B. Henderson, outgoing RFC chairman, that the RFC acquiesced in what a previous witness, Cassius Clay, termed a "fraudulent bankruptcy" action of the B. and O. in 1944.

2. A declaration from Stewart McDonald, chairman of B. and O.'s executive committee, that Adolph Berle, former assistant secretary of state, cornered him at the Brazilian Embassy one night and insisted that Clay, his brother-in-law, be made general counsel of B. and O.

Clay, then employed by RFC, later became the road's general solicitor.

3. Clay's comeback: That Berle informed him in 1944 that President Roosevelt was looking for a chance to fire Jones, and that if Clay would raise objections to the pending B. and O. reorganization plan, the President would welcome the opportunity to get rid of Jones. (Clay later resigned from the B. and O., but almost a year later.)

Assertion Of Tobey

4. An assertion by Tobey that the RFC's letter which furnished the legal basis for the railroad's 1944 bankruptcy action was "substantially the same," as a draft furnished the RFC by Russell L. Snodgrass, B. and O. vice president. Tobey called the asserted action "thimble-riggery" and "skulldruggery."

5. A letter, read into the record, from Jones to the three federal circuit judges who passed on the B. and O.'s 1944 reorganization plan, declaring that his recommendations to the RFC with respect to the B. and O. debt were "not influenced in the slightest by officials of the road."

Guilty In Strangling

NORRISTOWN, Pa., April 11—(AP) —A jury of 10 women and two men tonight found Gerald C. Wentzel, 37-year-old Pottstown, Pa., diemaker and civic leader, guilty of second degree murder in the strangulation slaying of Mrs. Miriam Green, attractive 28-year-old divorcee.

Judge George C. Corson deferred sentence when defense counsel immediately filed a motion for a new trial.

Union Writes Off Settlement Plan As "Dead"

Was Only Major Step Taken Toward Accord

WASHINGTON, April 12 (Saturday) (AP)—The first major step toward settling the telephone strike collapsed at midnight.

That was the deadline set by George S. Dring, of the long lines division of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, for acceptance by the long distance strikers of a tentative agreement on that phase of the strike.

The deadline came and went without anything happening.

Actually, it became known hours earlier that the tentative agreement was "dead."

John J. Moran, leader of the long distance workers, thus described it to reporters when told early last night of Dring's deadline.

Dring had said that if the union failed to accept the settlement plan definitely by midnight "the tentative agreement of the company will be withdrawn. Then I suppose we will have to start all over again.

Moran, speaking as president of the American Union of Telephone workers, said:

"We're not going to accept by midnight, of course. We'll just have to stand by and see what happens now.

"We are not too much worried about them withdrawing the offer. When the company finally gets down to negotiating a contract that won't hurt any."

Arbitration Plan Included

The tentative agreement between the A. T. and T. and the long distance union included a plan to arbitrate demands, including wagers, for these workers. However, their union is only one of 49 in the National Federation of Telephone Workers and the policy committee of the federation ruled that the proposal "did not conform" to union policy.

The policy committee held that agreement is "local" in the sense that it applies to but one union, whereas the committee wants all to be treated together.

Government conciliators had hoped that the long distance proposal might serve as a pattern for all unions and thus end the strike of 320,000 workers quickly.

One condition of the long distance proposal was that the members go back to work. The federation policy committee steered away from approval, apparently for fear of the effects a restoration of long distance service would have on the rest of the strike.

Dring said that if the deadline passes without acceptance, "it may be some time" before negotiations on long distance matters can be resumed.

Dring asserted that the time limit had been agreed to by both sides; Moran said that "we didn't agree to it. The company said they had to known by midnight tonight."

Union Proposes Meeting

Meantime Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach delayed for the present a reply to a union proposal for top level and public talks with the American Telephone and Telegrapn Company.

Schwellenbach had promised "an immediate decision" after getting the request from President J. A. Beirne, of the National Federation of Telephone Workers.

However, the Secretary's associates said that press of other matters slowed his consideration. He went to the White House but an aide said that visit involved a meeting on universal military training and had nothing to do with the telephone situation.

The union federation proposes to carry "our complete story" to President Truman if it cannot get a three-cornered meeting of the Labor Department, its own leaders and representatives of the A. T. and T.

Labor Department conciliators who have been meeting separately with union and operating company officials held a series of private meetings of their own today.

The policy committee of the 49-union federation met for four hours and adjourned without any outward sign of progress.

Governor Hopes For Full Phone Service In N. J.

Court Actions Begin In Test Of New Law

NEWARK, N. J., April 11 (AP) — Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll said tonight he was "very hopeful" that full telephone service would be restored in New Jersey pending a test by striking New Jersey Bell Telephone Company switchboard operators of the constitutionality of this state's new anti-public utility strike legislation.

The Governor said he based his ropes on a possible conference tomorrow between State Mediation Board Chairman Walter T. Margetts, Jr., and national officials of the National Federation of Telephone Workers. He said the meeting might be held in Newark.

It was learned that Driscoll had met today with Chester I. Barnard, president of the telephone company, but the Governor said the meeting had no direct bearing on current developments in the strike.

Barnard requested the meeting, Driscoll said, after learning the Governor had met recently with union representatives.

Meanwhile criminal and civil court actions were started today in a test of the state's new legislation.

At the same time 4,600 dial maintenance workers, members of an independent union which had returned to work when the legislature passed an amendment to the law three days ago, received new instructions from their union president, J. J. Curtin, not to cross picket lines of the 12,000 striking operators.

This morning, the three women leaders of the Traffic Telephone Workers Federation of New Jersey (a NFTW affiliate) were arrested and arraigned in Essex County Court on warrants charging them with violating the anti-strike law. All pleaded innocent.

New York Strike Settled

ALBANY, N. Y., April 11 (AP) — A strike of upstate New York maintenance and plant employes against the New York Telephone Company was settled tonight with an agreement to arbitrate a demanded $12 weekly wage increase.

Settlement of the five-day strike by the Empire Telephone Union, termed by a company spokesman as the "first break in the telephone tieup throughout the nation," affects only plant and maintenance workers outside of New York City and does not cover operators.

In addition to submitting the wage issue to arbitration the settlement provides that time schedules for reaching minimum wage brackets and the effective date of wage adjustments will also be arbitrated.

Shoe In The Goo

Mechanic Attempting To Retrieve Wrench "Trapped" In Molasses Car

NEW YORK, April 11 (AP) — Joseph Giknis not only put his foot into it—he put both feet—and it took six husky cops to extricate him.

Giknis, 40-year-old Brooklyn coal company mechanic, met a friend employed at a nearby railroad terminal. The friend said he had dropped a monkey wrench into an empty molasses tank car and asked Giknis to help him get it out.

Giknis said sure, and proceeded to let himself down into the car.

Right away he found the car not exactly empty, and himself in a sweet fix—too much shoe in the goo.

The molasses was ankle deep and, to put it mildly, somewhat gummed up the works, not to mention Giknis.

"What's the matter?" inquired his friend from above.

"I'm stuck," said Giknis, with the full meaning of the word.

The friend summoned other workers, who lowered a rope. Giknis didn't budge, and neither did the molasses.

The workmen got a rope ladder.

Gignis still stuck to his stand in the matter.

A police emergency squad was summoned. The cops studied the situation—from above—and went to work rigging up a boatswain's chair.

Two hours after Giknis first found a kicker in the sticker, he fastened himself into the chair and the cops hauled away.

Out of the stickiness came Giknis, unhurt but not unsweetened.

Two Major Jobs Confront State's Chief Executive

Bills, Appointments On Lane's Program

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 11 (AP) — Gov. Lane concentrated on one of two major tasks before him today, wading through the hundreds of bills left for his approval by the General Assembly.

The other job, however, will occupy a good part of his time in the next few weeks. That is the appointment of at least 100 state officials whose terms expire between now and July 1.

Some important posts are on the list, although many of them are on boards and commissions which are not paid.

Will Name Vehicles Commissioner

The Governor also has the appointment of a new motor vehicles commissioner to think about. The bill ending Commissioner W. Lee Elgin's term June 30, which the administration pressed during the recent legislative session, is among those still awaiting the Governor's signature.

There was no question in debate over the measure, however, that the governor wanted a free hand in chosing the vehicles commissioner.

Elgin opposed Lane in the Democratic primary last year.

Should the Governor name a new man for the job, it would have to be a recess appointment, since the "ripper" bill to oust the present commissioner this year required Senate confirmation of his successor.

Other Appointments

Of the appointments that Lane must make, one is to the State Roads Commission. The term of Russell H. McCain, of Frederick, runs out this year, but the roads bill enacted by the Legislature specified that all three members of the commission serve at the Governor's pleasure.

Thus Lane has authority to change its membership completely.

Another of the appointments which do not require Senate confirmation is that of one member of the State Racing Commission. Chairman George P. Mahoney's term ends this year.

Other important selections will be those of a state auditor, an insurance commissioner, a member of the Public Service Commission, State Tax Commission, Athletic Commission and Accident Fund Commission.

Marshall Moves To "Free" Koreans

MOSCOW, April 11 (AP)—Secretary Marshall asked Russia today to join with the United States in another try at granting Korea its long-promised independence as soon as possible.

In a letter to Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov giving impetus to American policy on the eastern extremity of the Soviet-American diplomatic front, Marshall declared that the United States intends to proceed meanwhile with independence measures in American-occupied Southern Korea.

Marshall proposed that Russia and the United States agree as soon as possible on reconvening their stalemated joint commission on Korea to work out independence measures for the entire country "on the basis of respect for democratic right of freedom of opinion."

He also asked that a deadline be fixed this summer for a preview by the two governments of the commission's work.

Marshall emphasized that he regarded the American intention to proceed with independence measures in Southern Korea as in accord with the Moscow agreement of December, 1945, setting up the commission to prepare for Korean independence.

He told Molotov that the United States "mindful of its obligation under the Moscow agreement sees no alternative to taking without further delay such steps in its zone as will advance the purposes of that agreement."

Abrams Outboxes Estonian Battler

CHICAGO, April 11. (AP)—Georgie Abrams, Washington, D. C., tonight opened his 1947 bid for a middleweight championship bout by defeating Anton Raadik, dangerous hitting Estonian, in a rough 10-round battle in the Chicago Stadium before 13,208 spectators.

Abrams, fighting for the first time since last December, outboxed Raadix, who had won nine of his 11 previous bouts in this country, eight by knockouts. The decision of the two judges and referee was unanimous.

Woman's Death Probably Was Caused By Exposure

BLADENSBURG, Md., April 11 (AP) — Dr. James I. Boyd, Prince George's County coroner, said today that a scantily-clad 43-year-old woman whose body was found in Eastern Branch yesterday probably died of exposure.

The woman, identified by the Federal Bureau of Investigation as Patricia Julian Helm, also known as Mrs. Julian Wallace, gave an address in Northeast Washington when arrested Saturday in Arlington charged with drunkenness.

Two youths walking through deserted section of the tributary of the Anacostia River found her body about half a mile west of the Peace Cross.

Two Ohioans Acquitted Of "Nazi Dagger" Slaying

TAMPA, Fla., April 11 (AP) — A 12-man Circuit Court jury today acquitted two Cleveland, Ohio, men of the "Nazi dagger" slaying of Francisco Daniele on March 8, 1946.

The jury deliberated only 30 minutes before freeing Dominic Mafrici, 27, and Dave Tiburzio, 23. Their first trial last August resulted in a mistrial.

Daniele's body, beaten about the head and with a swastika-decorated dagger sticking in his neck, was found in his curio shop.

Truman Rounds Out Two Years In White House; Health Fine

WASHINGTON, April 11 (AP) —President Harry S. Truman completes two years in the White House tomorrow, and his physician says his health is fine.

The doctor, Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham, told newsmen Mr. Truman has the energy of the average man 20 years younger.

Carl Sandburg, poet and biographer of Abraham Lincoln, visited the White House today and later told reporters the President "looks like he's standing the racket well."

"Whatever he does is wrong somewhere among 140,000,000 people," said Sandburg. "That is 110,000,000 more than Lincoln had to handle."

U. N. Special Session Call Is Imminent

Palestine Problem Will Be Considered

LAKES SUCCESS, N. Y., April 11 (AP)—United Nations officials said today a special Palestine session of the General Assembly probably would be called within 48 hours to convene around April 28.

These plans were based on the assumption that the British request for the extraordinary session would have a majority approval by Sunday.

Twenty-two of the necessary 28 endorsements are already in.

As preparations for the unprecedented meeting were rushed, Belgian sources disclosed the first president of the Assembly, Paul-Henri Spaak, premier of Belgium, would be unable to attend.

Spaak's term expired December 31, but it had been assumed he would be re-elected in view of his highly-praised record as president. He was said to be planning to attend the regular session next September.

Under Assembly rules, a president must be elected for the special session and another election must be held at the opening of the regular meeting. It is possible, therefore, that a new president might preside over the extraordinary session and that Spaak might be elected again in September.

At any rate, the special session will be opened by Fernand Van Langenhove, permanent Belgian delegate to the United Nations, who will serve as president pro tempore until an election is held.

Under Assembly rules, the session must be convened within 15 days after majority approval, but not less than 10 days.

Girl Clerk's Death Believed Accident

ARLINGTON, Va., April 11. (AP)—Dr. W. C. Welburn, Arlington County coroner, said tonight that the strange death of pretty Wynona Harvey, 25-year-old Philippine Embassy clerk, probably was caused by accidental drowning.

Nine days ago the girl's body was found face down in the shallow waters of Rocky Run, beneath a culvert on the George Washington Memorial Parkway across the Potomac from Washington.

Dr. Welburn, on the basis of scientific tests and police investigations, issued a statement saying:

"Wynona Harvey came to her death by drowning.

"She was not under the influence of alcohol or any drug at the time of her death.

"She was not poisoned.

"She was not pregnant and no attempt had been made to cause an abortion.

"She was definitely mentally disturbed.

"Drowning could have been the result of: (1) Homicide, (2) suicide, (3) accident.

"There is no evidence indicating homicide. Suicide is held to be a possibility. Accidental drowning is probable."

"Underbrush" Is Being Cleared In Vote Contest

WASHINGTON, April 11 (AP) — Chairman Hickenlooper (R - Iowa) reported after an executive session of his Senate Rules Subcommittee that the group is "clearing away the underbrush" toward a decision in the contest election of Sen. O'Conor (D-Md).

D. John Markey, Republican, lost in the last general election by a count of 2,232 votes. He has claimed voting irregularities, particularly in Prince Georges, Anne Arundel, Howard, St. Mary's and Cecil Counties and asked a recount.

Hickenlooper said ballots in the five selected counties had been examined and 6,655 challenged by counsel for both sides have been set aside for further study.

$300,000 In Jewels Are Recovered From Wreck

RATON, N. M., April 11 (AP)—Jewels valued at $300,000 were recovered from a Pullman car which overturned in the derailment of the Santa Fe Railway's Super Chief train near Raton Wednesday night.

The recovery was disclosed today by their owner, Mrs. Rosika Nechter, one-time New York and Paris stage beauty who achieved fame as one of the Dolly sisters.

"I always carry the jewels with me," Mrs. Nechter said. She said Raton Sheriff T. A. Griffith and Railroad Special Officer Phil Sipes "recvovered everything — even my husband's tie pin."

Dean Of Cardinals 96

VATICAN CITY, April 11 (AP) — Gennaro Granito Cardinal Pignatelli Di Belmonte, who has known five popes, was 96 years old Thursday. The dean of cardinals arose as usual before dawn and soon was hard at work at his desk.

Molotov Blocks Big Four Accord On Saar Proposal

Bidault, Dejected, Says "We Must Wait"

MOSCOW, April 11. (AP)—France hammered in vain tonight at lone Soviet opposition barring immediate approval of economic intergration with the Saar, and Foreign Minister Georges Bidault acknowledged dejectedly "we must wait."

Bidault insisted that Russia's V. M Molotov give the Foreign Ministers Council his views on the French proposal to establish a commission at once to work out details of integrating the economy of the coal-producing Saar with France, but Molotov refused to yield. He said he wanted more time to think it over.

U. S., Britain In Accord

The proposal was agreed to yesterday by both the United States and Britain.

The Soviet Foreign Minister declared he was opposed to the French demand for detachment of the Ruhr from Germany, and fought doggedly for a direct Soviet voice in control of its industrial output. United States Secretary George Marshall and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin had previously expressed opposition to detachment of the Ruhr or creation of any independent regime for that great industrial area.

Molotov blocked four separate attempts by Bidault to wring from him a decision on the Saar.

Bid For French Support Fails

At one time he made an apparent bid for French support of the Soviet stand on four-power control over the Ruhr, inferring that the Russians might give their views on the Saar at once if such support were forthcoming.

But Bidault rebuffed any such move, saying "the Saar is a question for decision—the Ruhr is a question for discussion and the Saar decision must be taken at once."

Molotov said also he was not ready to express the Soviet views on territorial claims of Belgium, the Netherlands, Czechoslovakia and Luxembourg.

Hearing To Be Held In Stabbing Case

OAKLAND, April 11—State's Attorney Walter Dawson said tonight that a preliminary hearing for Miss Gladys Marie Grapes, 28, Bloomington, will be held before Magistrate H. A. Loraditch next week on a charge of assault with intent to kill. Date of the hearing will be set later.

Miss Grapes has been held in jail here in default of $1,000 bond. On March 19 her sister, Mrs. Lena Grapes McDonald, 22, was stabbed in the heart at the home of Howard Hose, 45, of near Bloomington, during an argument over a diamond ring.

Mrs. McDonald was discharged recently from Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser, W. Va., after undergoing a rare heart operation performed by Dr. Robert Coffman in which three stitches were necessary to close a wound in the left ventricle of the heart.

Charles F. Davis, Marietta, O., has been held in jail here in default of $500 bond as a material witness in the case. The state's attorney said Mrs. McDonald has been summoned to testify at next week's hearing.

Mine Blast Probers Blame Company Officials

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 11 (AP)—A special state committee which investigated the Centralia, Ill., mine explosion that killed 111 men reported today the "primary responsibility" for the miners' safety "in this case rested upon the company officials, superintendent and manager."

The committee also criticized the State Mines and Minerals Department and State Mining Board members for what it termed "a weak, ineffectual and indifferent" policy toward enforcing Illinois mining laws at the Centralia Coal Company's No. 5 mine where the explosion occurred March 25.

County Board Engages Trappers To Catch Pigeons

Something is about to be done about the Court House pigeons which have made a nuisance of themselves and have made a mess of the court house.

Commissioners yesterday unanimously approved an offer of George A. Winner and Clarence M. George of Midland, to "do away with" the pigeons at the Court House.

The two pigeon catchers agreed they will trap the birds and dispose of them and at the same time relieve the county of any damage or responsibility in case of a mishap or accident in the process. The men have been trapping pigeons at other buildings and believe they can rid the Court House of the birds which have been a target for criticism by numerous Grand Juries.

Thanked by Teachers

A letter from the Teachers' Association of Allegany County was received by the board, expressing appreciation for the support of the commissioners to have the local salary increase bill passed, and for support of the State Educational Program.

Signed by Harold C. Wickard, chairman; J. Stanley Hunter and Lewyn C. Davis, the letter cited that the salary increases and state program will help to stabilize the school system and be of benefit to the pupils, as well as the teachers.

Leonard W. Martin, 613 Fairview Avenue, and I. J. Smith, 603 Maryland Avenue, both veterans of World War II, applied to purchase lots on county property, fronting on Holland Street, as home sites. It is estimated that more than $30,000 will be received through sale of the lots. Under an act of the Legislature, the lots must be advertised, with veterans to be given preference in the order of their applications.

The board approved the offer of Ernest Posselt, 131 Frederick Street, to furnish nine window awnings for the office of Robert Jackson, clerk of the Circuit Court, at $20.50 each.

Mrs. Agnes Shumaker, 317 Fifth Street, asked whether the county would reimburse her for work done in removing snow from a road in the Green Ridge section. She was advised that the board cannot pay for such work, under existing laws, unless the men were hired by County Engineer Albert S. Paye.

Asks Road Repair

Mayor John Evans, of Lonaconing, proposed that the county repair the Beechwood Road and the Oak Hill Cemetery Road, in lieu of the $3,000 the county appropriates to the town for such work. He was advised, however, that the appropriation is mandatory, and the work cannot be done by the county.

Chief Judge William A. Huster, of the Fourth Judicial Circuit, answering a letter from the board March 27, in which the judges were asked to recommend possible reduction of employes under their supervision, advised the commissioners that the court bailiffs are the only persons in that category.

The jurist pointed out that five bailiffs formerly were employed, but there are now only three, and it would be impossible to reduce the staff of court attaches. The board made the request "in the interest of economy."

Several Divorce Actions Filed

Several divorce actions were filed in Circuit Court yesterday, one including a couple married nearly 32 years ago. Mrs. Sarah E. (Whitaker) Oliver, this city, has filed suit for a partial divorce from Bert R. Oliver, a Potomac Edison Company employe. The couple married May 22, 1915 and have one child, now an adult. Chief Judge William A. Huster ordered Oliver to pay his wife $75 monthly alimony, pending a decision.

Mrs. Alice M. Herath seeks a partial divorce from Louis F. Herath.

Suit for partial divorce was also filed by Mrs. Edith F. Sirbaugh against William R. Sirbaugh.

Mrs. Martha V. Lashley seeks divorce from Jess Lashley, Mt. Savage, and asks the custody of their daughter. They were married in September 1941. Judge Huster ordered Lashly to pay his wife $15 per week.

Mrs. Edith Glass seeks divorce from Thomas W. Glass and Justine V. Wilhelm, seeks divorce from Donald C. Wilhelm.

The citation accompanying the Gold Star reads:

From 1940-41, he served aboard the USS Astoria until she was sunk at Savo Island, Solomon Island. Then he served aboard the USS Dyson in the Solomon Islands with Commodore A. A. Burke's "Little Beavers," and was on board the USS Putnam at Iwo Jima and Okinawa. Lt. Comdr Sander also was commanding officer of the USS Caldwell and the USS Livermore.

Carpenters Union Notes Settlement Of Labor Dispute

A satisfactory settlement has been reached in the labor dispute between Carpenters Local 1024, AFL, and the David Ogilvie and Sons Contracting Company, F. Patrick Allender, union business agent, announced last night.

Allender said the firm signed an agreement yesterday afternoon to employ none but members of the Carpenters union on work coming under its jurisdiction on work now under contract and any future contracts.

The contractor also agreed to employ apprentices and journeymen carpenters in accordance with the Carpenters Apprentice Training Program and to abide by working rules applying to union contractors in the Cumberland vicinity, the union said.

The union applied for picketing permits Wednesday afternoon after removing two journeymen carpenters from the Collins Garage construction job on Henderson Avenue in protest, the union reported, over a violation in the ratio of apprentices to journeymen and several "minor infractions" of union rules.

The union said an investigation was begun yesterday by two Department of Labor representatives on the operation of GI Apprentice Training in Allegany County.

A third representative of the department is expected here in the near future, Allender added, to continue the probe.

In an attempt to clear up questions regarding the operation of the program a joint meeting will be held Monday night at 7 o'clock, when the union will meet with carpenter apprentices, the Board of Education, Department of Labor, Veterans Administration and the joint committee representing the contractors and union on the training program, Allender said.

Faye Boch, 8, 217 Pear Street, early last night for a laceration on the left leg. The girl said she was hurt when she jumped from a lumber pile.

Driver Nabbed After Accident

A charge of failing to stop after an accident has been filed against George Joseph Forebeck, 24 Waverly Terrace, as a result of an accident at the intersection of Baltimore Avenue and Henderson Avenue at 6:40 p. m. Thursday, State Trooper William F. Baker, who made the arrest, said last night.

The trooper said Forebeck was making a right turn from Henderson Avenue to Baltimore Avenue and struck an automobile operated by Edward W. Rhind, 346 Williams Street, who was making a left turn from Baltimore Avenue to Henderson Avenue.

Forebeck failed to stop, according to Baker, and was arrested yesterday at his home. He admitted being the driver of the automobile but said he did not realize he struck the other machine, the officer said. He added that both cars were slightly damaged.

A hearing will be held Wednesday in Trial Magistrates Court.

Students Suggest Ways Of Easing Traffic Problem

Pertinent suggestions on correcting the traffic problem in Cumberland were given by Miss Helen Adams, of Fort Hill High School, and Noyes "Tommy" Powers, of Allegany High, in talks before the Kiwanis Club at Central YMCA Thursday at noon, in the annual program of the club devoted to the discussion of two students of some important civic topic.

The students, winners of contests in their respective schools, stated that the traffic problem in Cumberland is nothing new and that some citizens have shown concern about it for a number of years, but asserted that no real effort has been made to correct it.

Both of the speakers told the Kiwanians that the city must solve its traffic problem before Cumberland can take its place as a real modern city. Narrow streets, inadequate parking facilities in the downtown section and blocking of Baltimore Street at two railroad crossings were cited as the cause of much of the congestion on Baltimore and other downtown streets.

Among the suggestions made by the two speakers to ease the congestion on downtown streets were the following:

Provide more parking facilities downtown, such as parking lots, and erection of public garages; synchronize all traffic lights on Baltimore Street, so that traffic can move along the street at all intersections at the same time; eliminate all left hand turns on Baltimore Street; change direction of traffic on Pershing street, so people from South Cumberland can get to postoffice without having to use Baltimore street; erect bridges, so that through traffic as well as workers going to the Kelly and Celanese plants would not have to use streets in the business section; and move bus terminal on Frederick Street across railroad to Henderson Avenue.

Commercial Travelers Plan Memorial Tribute

Members of Cumberland Council No. 179, United Commercial Travelers, will attend 11 o'clock mass tomorrow morning at St. Patrick's Catholic Church in their annual tribute to the memory of members who have died since the council was instituted in 1901.

Martin L. Johnson is chairman of the committee in charge, assisted by Louis T. Helman and M. A. McRae.

Gilchrist Will Be Principal Speaker

C. William Gilchrist, local attorney, chairman of the endowment committee and a member of the youth and government committee of the "Y," will be the guest speaker. He will be introduced by Calvin Mahaney, Fort Hill High School, who will preside and act as toastmaster.

The affair is being sponsored by the Hi-Y council, which is composed of representatives from Allegany and Fort Hill High Schools here; Beall High School, Frostburg; Bruce High School, Westernport; and Piedmont, W. Va., High School.

A feature will be Adam's presentation of Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y emblems to the five outstanding seniors of each club, marking the close of the school year activities of the groups. High school principals and their wives will be honor guests.

Lillian Fleigle of Beall High School will speak on "The Tri-Hi-Y." and David McIntyre of Bruce will discuss "The Hi-Y." Invocation will be given by Barbara Bright of Allegany, and Howard Peterson, Allegany, president of the Hi-Y council, will give the address of welcome. Doris Poorbaugh of Fort Hill will give the closing prayer.

A 30-minute technicolor movie, "This Amazing America," will be shown after the banquet, and dancing will begin at 9 p. m. to the music of Bill Gray's orchestra.

Other council officers are Pattie Bowie, Allegany, vice president; and Barbara Matheny, Fort Hill, secretary. Two Major Jobs Confront State's Chief Executive

Bills, Appointments On Lane's Program

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 11 (AP) — Gov. Lane concentrated on one of two major tasks before him today, wading through the hundreds of bills left for his approval by the General Assembly.

The other job, however, will occupy a good part of his time in the next few weeks. That is the appointment of at least 100 state officials whose terms expire between now and July 1.

Some important posts are on the list, although many of them are on boards and commissions which are not paid.

Will Name Vehicles Commissioner

The Governor also has the appointment of a new motor vehicles commissioner to think about. The bill ending Commissioner W. Lee Elgin's term June 30, which the administration pressed during the recent legislative session, is among those still awaiting the Governor's signature.

There was no question in debate over the measure, however, that the governor wanted a free hand in chosing the vehicles commissioner.

Elgin opposed Lane in the Democratic primary last year.

Should the Governor name a new man for the job, it would have to be a recess appointment, since the "ripper" bill to oust the present commissioner this year required Senate confirmation of his successor.

Other Appointments

Of the appointments that Lane must make, one is to the State Roads Commission. The term of Russell H. McCain, of Frederick, runs out this year, but the roads bill enacted by the Legislature specified that all three members of the commission serve at the Governor's pleasure.

Thus Lane has authority to change its membership completely.

Another of the appointments which do not require Senate confirmation is that of one member of the State Racing Commission. Chairman George P. Mahoney's term ends this year.

Other important selections will be those of a state auditor, an insurance commissioner, a member of the Public Service Commission, State Tax Commission, Athletic Commission and Accident Fund Commission.

Marshall Moves To "Free" Koreans

MOSCOW, April 11 (AP)—Secretary Marshall asked Russia today to join with the United States in another try at granting Korea its long-promised independence as soon as possible.

In a letter to Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov giving impetus to American policy on the eastern extremity of the Soviet-American diplomatic front, Marshall declared that the United States intends to proceed meanwhile with independence measures in American-occupied Southern Korea.

Marshall proposed that Russia and the United States agree as soon as possible on reconvening their stalemated joint commission on Korea to work out independence measures for the entire country "on the basis of respect for democratic right of freedom of opinion."

He also asked that a deadline be fixed this summer for a preview by the two governments of the commission's work.

Marshall emphasized that he regarded the American intention to proceed with independence measures in Southern Korea as in accord with the Moscow agreement of December, 1945, setting up the commission to prepare for Korean independence.

He told Molotov that the United States "mindful of its obligation under the Moscow agreement sees no alternative to taking without further delay such steps in its zone as will advance the purposes of that agreement."

Abrams Outboxes Estonian Battler

CHICAGO, April 11. (AP)—Georgie Abrams, Washington, D. C., tonight opened his 1947 bid for a middleweight championship bout by defeating Anton Raadik, dangerous hitting Estonian, in a rough 10-round battle in the Chicago Stadium before 13,208 spectators.

Abrams, fighting for the first time since last December, outboxed Raadix, who had won nine of his 11 previous bouts in this country, eight by knockouts. The decision of the two judges and referee was unanimous.

Woman's Death Probably Was Caused By Exposure

BLADENSBURG, Md., April 11 (AP) — Dr. James I. Boyd, Prince George's County coroner, said today that a scantily-clad 43-year-old woman whose body was found in Eastern Branch yesterday probably died of exposure.

The woman, identified by the Federal Bureau of Investigation as Patricia Julian Helm, also known as Mrs. Julian Wallace, gave an address in Northeast Washington when arrested Saturday in Arlington charged with drunkenness.

Two youths walking through deserted section of the tributary of the Anacostia River found her body about half a mile west of the Peace Cross.

Two Ohioans Acquitted Of "Nazi Dagger" Slaying

TAMPA, Fla., April 11 (AP) — A 12-man Circuit Court jury today acquitted two Cleveland, Ohio, men of the "Nazi dagger" slaying of Francisco Daniele on March 8, 1946.

The jury deliberated only 30 minutes before freeing Dominic Mafrici, 27, and Dave Tiburzio, 23. Their first trial last August resulted in a mistrial.

Daniele's body, beaten about the head and with a swastika-decorated dagger sticking in his neck, was found in his curio shop.

Truman Rounds Out Two Years In White House; Health Fine

WASHINGTON, April 11 (AP) —President Harry S. Truman completes two years in the White House tomorrow, and his physician says his health is fine.

The doctor, Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham, told newsmen Mr. Truman has the energy of the average man 20 years younger.

Carl Sandburg, poet and biographer of Abraham Lincoln, visited the White House today and later told reporters the President "looks like he's standing the racket well."

"Whatever he does is wrong somewhere among 140,000,000 people," said Sandburg. "That is 110,000,000 more than Lincoln had to handle."

U. N. Special Session Call Is Imminent

Palestine Problem Will Be Considered

LAKES SUCCESS, N. Y., April 11 (AP)—United Nations officials said today a special Palestine session of the General Assembly probably would be called within 48 hours to convene around April 28.

These plans were based on the assumption that the British request for the extraordinary session would have a majority approval by Sunday.

Twenty-two of the necessary 28 endorsements are already in.

As preparations for the unprecedented meeting were rushed, Belgian sources disclosed the first president of the Assembly, Paul-Henri Spaak, premier of Belgium, would be unable to attend.

Spaak's term expired December 31, but it had been assumed he would be re-elected in view of his highly-praised record as president. He was said to be planning to attend the regular session next September.

Under Assembly rules, a president must be elected for the special session and another election must be held at the opening of the regular meeting. It is possible, therefore, that a new president might preside over the extraordinary session and that Spaak might be elected again in September.

At any rate, the special session will be opened by Fernand Van Langenhove, permanent Belgian delegate to the United Nations, who will serve as president pro tempore until an election is held.

Under Assembly rules, the session must be convened within 15 days after majority approval, but not less than 10 days.

Girl Clerk's Death Believed Accident

ARLINGTON, Va., April 11. (AP)—Dr. W. C. Welburn, Arlington County coroner, said tonight that the strange death of pretty Wynona Harvey, 25-year-old Philippine Embassy clerk, probably was caused by accidental drowning.

Nine days ago the girl's body was found face down in the shallow waters of Rocky Run, beneath a culvert on the George Washington Memorial Parkway across the Potomac from Washington.

Dr. Welburn, on the basis of scientific tests and police investigations, issued a statement saying:

"Wynona Harvey came to her death by drowning.

"She was not under the influence of alcohol or any drug at the time of her death.

"She was not poisoned.

"She was not pregnant and no attempt had been made to cause an abortion.

"She was definitely mentally disturbed.

"Drowning could have been the result of: (1) Homicide, (2) suicide, (3) accident.

"There is no evidence indicating homicide. Suicide is held to be a possibility. Accidental drowning is probable."

"Underbrush" Is Being Cleared In Vote Contest

WASHINGTON, April 11 (AP) — Chairman Hickenlooper (R - Iowa) reported after an executive session of his Senate Rules Subcommittee that the group is "clearing away the underbrush" toward a decision in the contest election of Sen. O'Conor (D-Md).

D. John Markey, Republican, lost in the last general election by a count of 2,232 votes. He has claimed voting irregularities, particularly in Prince Georges, Anne Arundel, Howard, St. Mary's and Cecil Counties and asked a recount.

Hickenlooper said ballots in the five selected counties had been examined and 6,655 challenged by counsel for both sides have been set aside for further study.

$300,000 In Jewels Are Recovered From Wreck

RATON, N. M., April 11 (AP)—Jewels valued at $300,000 were recovered from a Pullman car which overturned in the derailment of the Santa Fe Railway's Super Chief train near Raton Wednesday night.

The recovery was disclosed today by their owner, Mrs. Rosika Nechter, one-time New York and Paris stage beauty who achieved fame as one of the Dolly sisters.

"I always carry the jewels with me," Mrs. Nechter said. She said Raton Sheriff T. A. Griffith and Railroad Special Officer Phil Sipes "recvovered everything — even my husband's tie pin."

Molotov Blocks Big Four Accord On Saar Proposal

Bidault, Dejected, Says "We Must Wait"

MOSCOW, April 11. (AP)—France hammered in vain tonight at lone Soviet opposition barring immediate approval of economic intergration with the Saar, and Foreign Minister Georges Bidault acknowledged dejectedly "we must wait."

Bidault insisted that Russia's V. M Molotov give the Foreign Ministers Council his views on the French proposal to establish a commission at once to work out details of integrating the economy of the coal-producing Saar with France, but Molotov refused to yield. He said he wanted more time to think it over.

U. S., Britain In Accord

The proposal was agreed to yesterday by both the United States and Britain.

The Soviet Foreign Minister declared he was opposed to the French demand for detachment of the Ruhr from Germany, and fought doggedly for a direct Soviet voice in control of its industrial output. United States Secretary George Marshall and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin had previously expressed opposition to detachment of the Ruhr or creation of any independent regime for that great industrial area.

Molotov blocked four separate attempts by Bidault to wring from him a decision on the Saar.

Bid For French Support Fails

At one time he made an apparent bid for French support of the Soviet stand on four-power control over the Ruhr, inferring that the Russians might give their views on the Saar at once if such support were forthcoming.

But Bidault rebuffed any such move, saying "the Saar is a question for decision—the Ruhr is a question for discussion and the Saar decision must be taken at once."

Molotov said also he was not ready to express the Soviet views on territorial claims of Belgium, the Netherlands, Czechoslovakia and Luxembourg.

Hearing To Be Held In Stabbing Case

OAKLAND, April 11—State's Attorney Walter Dawson said tonight that a preliminary hearing for Miss Gladys Marie Grapes, 28, Bloomington, will be held before Magistrate H. A. Loraditch next week on a charge of assault with intent to kill. Date of the hearing will be set later.

Miss Grapes has been held in jail here in default of $1,000 bond. On March 19 her sister, Mrs. Lena Grapes McDonald, 22, was stabbed in the heart at the home of Howard Hose, 45, of near Bloomington, during an argument over a diamond ring.

Mrs. McDonald was discharged recently from Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser, W. Va., after undergoing a rare heart operation performed by Dr. Robert Coffman in which three stitches were necessary to close a wound in the left ventricle of the heart.

Charles F. Davis, Marietta, O., has been held in jail here in default of $500 bond as a material witness in the case. The state's attorney said Mrs. McDonald has been summoned to testify at next week's hearing.

Mine Blast Probers Blame Company Officials

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 11 (AP)—A special state committee which investigated the Centralia, Ill., mine explosion that killed 111 men reported today the "primary responsibility" for the miners' safety "in this case rested upon the company officials, superintendent and manager."

The committee also criticized the State Mines and Minerals Department and State Mining Board members for what it termed "a weak, ineffectual and indifferent" policy toward enforcing Illinois mining laws at the Centralia Coal Company's No. 5 mine where the explosion occurred March 25.

County Board Engages Trappers To Catch Pigeons

Something is about to be done about the Court House pigeons which have made a nuisance of themselves and have made a mess of the court house.

Commissioners yesterday unanimously approved an offer of George A. Winner and Clarence M. George of Midland, to "do away with" the pigeons at the Court House.

The two pigeon catchers agreed they will trap the birds and dispose of them and at the same time relieve the county of any damage or responsibility in case of a mishap or accident in the process. The men have been trapping pigeons at other buildings and believe they can rid the Court House of the birds which have been a target for criticism by numerous Grand Juries.

Thanked by Teachers

A letter from the Teachers' Association of Allegany County was received by the board, expressing appreciation for the support of the commissioners to have the local salary increase bill passed, and for support of the State Educational Program.

Signed by Harold C. Wickard, chairman; J. Stanley Hunter and Lewyn C. Davis, the letter cited that the salary increases and state program will help to stabilize the school system and be of benefit to the pupils, as well as the teachers.

Leonard W. Martin, 613 Fairview Avenue, and I. J. Smith, 603 Maryland Avenue, both veterans of World War II, applied to purchase lots on county property, fronting on Holland Street, as home sites. It is estimated that more than $30,000 will be received through sale of the lots. Under an act of the Legislature, the lots must be advertised, with veterans to be given preference in the order of their applications.

The board approved the offer of Ernest Posselt, 131 Frederick Street, to furnish nine window awnings for the office of Robert Jackson, clerk of the Circuit Court, at $20.50 each.

Mrs. Agnes Shumaker, 317 Fifth Street, asked whether the county would reimburse her for work done in removing snow from a road in the Green Ridge section. She was advised that the board cannot pay for such work, under existing laws, unless the men were hired by County Engineer Albert S. Paye.

Asks Road Repair

Mayor John Evans, of Lonaconing, proposed that the county repair the Beechwood Road and the Oak Hill Cemetery Road, in lieu of the $3,000 the county appropriates to the town for such work. He was advised, however, that the appropriation is mandatory, and the work cannot be done by the county.

Chief Judge William A. Huster, of the Fourth Judicial Circuit, answering a letter from the board March 27, in which the judges were asked to recommend possible reduction of employes under their supervision, advised the commissioners that the court bailiffs are the only persons in that category.

The jurist pointed out that five bailiffs formerly were employed, but there are now only three, and it would be impossible to reduce the staff of court attaches. The board made the request "in the interest of economy."

Several Divorce Actions Filed

Several divorce actions were filed in Circuit Court yesterday, one including a couple married nearly 32 years ago. Mrs. Sarah E. (Whitaker) Oliver, this city, has filed suit for a partial divorce from Bert R. Oliver, a Potomac Edison Company employe. The couple married May 22, 1915 and have one child, now an adult. Chief Judge William A. Huster ordered Oliver to pay his wife $75 monthly alimony, pending a decision.

Mrs. Alice M. Herath seeks a partial divorce from Louis F. Herath.

Suit for partial divorce was also filed by Mrs. Edith F. Sirbaugh against William R. Sirbaugh.

Mrs. Martha V. Lashley seeks divorce from Jess Lashley, Mt. Savage, and asks the custody of their daughter. They were married in September 1941. Judge Huster ordered Lashly to pay his wife $15 per week.

Mrs. Edith Glass seeks divorce from Thomas W. Glass and Justine V. Wilhelm, seeks divorce from Donald C. Wilhelm.

Lt. Comdr. Sander Presented With Navy Gold Star

Lt. Cmdr. Carl A. Sander, Jr., Cumberland, senior naval instructor at the Naval Gunfire Support School, Naval Amphibious Training Base, Little Creek, Va., was presented the Gold Star in lieu of the third Bronze Star medal by Rear Admiral Fred D. Kirtland, commander of the Amphibious Training Command, Amphibious Force, U. S. Atlantic Fleet, at a ceremony at Little Creek Tuesday afternoon.

The citation accompanying the Gold Star reads:

"For meritorious service as foretop gunfire spotter for the main battery of the USS Astoria, in action against enemy Japanese forces during operations in the Coral Sea, Midway and the first Battle of Savo. Cool and courageous in the face of severe enemy shellfire, Lt. Cmdr. (then lieutenant, junior grade) Sander quickly identified attacking aircraft, computing the bearing and thereby aiding materially in the ultimate destruction of numerous hostile craft. His initiative and zealous devotion to duty were in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service."

Lt. Cmdr. Sander also is authorized to wear the combat "V."

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Sander, 753 Cleveland Avenue, Lt. Cmdr. Sander was graduated from Allegany High School in 1934 and attended Potomac State School, Keyser, W. Va., before entering the United States Naval Academy.

He was graduated from the academy with the class of 1940 and was awarded the Secretary of the Navy Rifle Trophy, highest rated award at the academy.

From 1940-41, he served aboard the USS Astoria until she was sunk at Savo Island, Solomon Island. Then he served aboard the USS Dyson in the Solomon Islands with Commodore A. A. Burke's "Little Beavers," and was on board the USS Putnam at Iwo Jima and Okinawa. Lt. Comdr Sander also was commanding officer of the USS Caldwell and the USS Livermore.

His wife, a native of San Francisco, and daughter reside at Little Creek.

Carpenters Union Notes Settlement Of Labor Dispute

A satisfactory settlement has been reached in the labor dispute between Carpenters Local 1024, AFL, and the David Ogilvie and Sons Contracting Company, F. Patrick Allender, union business agent, announced last night.

Allender said the firm signed an agreement yesterday afternoon to employ none but members of the Carpenters union on work coming under its jurisdiction on work now under contract and any future contracts.

The contractor also agreed to employ apprentices and journeymen carpenters in accordance with the Carpenters Apprentice Training Program and to abide by working rules applying to union contractors in the Cumberland vicinity, the union said.

The union applied for picketing permits Wednesday afternoon after removing two journeymen carpenters from the Collins Garage construction job on Henderson Avenue in protest, the union reported, over a violation in the ratio of apprentices to journeymen and several "minor infractions" of union rules.

The union said an investigation was begun yesterday by two Department of Labor representatives on the operation of GI Apprentice Training in Allegany County.

A third representative of the department is expected here in the near future, Allender added, to continue the probe.

In an attempt to clear up questions regarding the operation of the program a joint meeting will be held Monday night at 7 o'clock, when the union will meet with carpenter apprentices, the Board of Education, Department of Labor, Veterans Administration and the joint committee representing the contractors and union on the training program, Allender said.

10 Are Treated In Local Hospitals After Accidents

Melvin Smith, 4-year-old son of Victor Smith, LaVale Celanese worker, was admitted to Memorial Hospital yesterday afternoon for treatment of a fractured collarbone. The child said he was hurt when he fell down a pair of steps. His condition is satisfactory.

Harold Heavener, 15, Route 3, was treated in Memorial yesterday for a cut on the index finger of the right hand. He said he was hurt at the Fort Hill High School workshop. Also treated in Memorial were:

Melvin Batey, 12, Cresaptown, yesterday for a fractured right arm suffered in a fall. He was able to leave after a cast was applied.

Robert Loggerbeam, 1½, 335 Dorn Avenue, late yesterday afternoon after he ran a toy shovel against the roof of his mouth while playing.

Child Cuts Chin

Lavina Lynch, 3-year-old daughter of Henry Lynch, 421 Central Avenue, a B. and O. worker, yesterday afternoon for a lacerated chin after she fell while playing.

William Duby, 19, 214 Seymour Street, was treated in Allegany Hospital yesterday morning for a puncture wound in the palm of the left hand. The Swift and Company worker said he was hurt while boning meat.

Miss Esther Weltman, 51, 32 Boone Street, was treated in Allegany yesterday afternoon for a right ankle injury. She said she turned her right ankle while walking. Also treated in Allegany were:

Lacerates Hand

Charles Raupach, 212 Maryland Avenue, yesterday afternoon for a severe laceration on the left hand. He said his thumb was caught as he was sawing wood. Five stitches were used to close the wound.

Mrs. Loretta Hinea, 75, 317 Magruder Street, late yesterday afternoon for a laceration above the right eye. She said she was injured when she fell down some concrete steps.

Faye Boch, 8, 217 Pear Street, early last night for a laceration on the left leg. The girl said she was hurt when she jumped from a lumber pile.

Driver Nabbed After Accident

A charge of failing to stop after an accident has been filed against George Joseph Forebeck, 24 Waverly Terrace, as a result of an accident at the intersection of Baltimore Avenue and Henderson Avenue at 6:40 p. m. Thursday, State Trooper William F. Baker, who made the arrest, said last night.

The trooper said Forebeck was making a right turn from Henderson Avenue to Baltimore Avenue and struck an automobile operated by Edward W. Rhind, 346 Williams Street, who was making a left turn from Baltimore Avenue to Henderson Avenue.

Forebeck failed to stop, according to Baker, and was arrested yesterday at his home. He admitted being the driver of the automobile but said he did not realize he struck the other machine, the officer said. He added that both cars were slightly damaged.

A hearing will be held Wednesday in Trial Magistrates Court.

Students Suggest Ways Of Easing Traffic Problem

Pertinent suggestions on correcting the traffic problem in Cumberland were given by Miss Helen Adams, of Fort Hill High School, and Noyes "Tommy" Powers, of Allegany High, in talks before the Kiwanis Club at Central YMCA Thursday at noon, in the annual program of the club devoted to the discussion of two students of some important civic topic.

The students, winners of contests in their respective schools, stated that the traffic problem in Cumberland is nothing new and that some citizens have shown concern about it for a number of years, but asserted that no real effort has been made to correct it.

Both of the speakers told the Kiwanians that the city must solve its traffic problem before Cumberland can take its place as a real modern city. Narrow streets, inadequate parking facilities in the downtown section and blocking of Baltimore Street at two railroad crossings were cited as the cause of much of the congestion on Baltimore and other downtown streets.

Among the suggestions made by the two speakers to ease the congestion on downtown streets were the following:

Provide more parking facilities downtown, such as parking lots, and erection of public garages; synchronize all traffic lights on Baltimore Street, so that traffic can move along the street at all intersections at the same time; eliminate all left hand turns on Baltimore Street; change direction of traffic on Pershing street, so people from South Cumberland can get to postoffice without having to use Baltimore street; erect bridges, so that through traffic as well as workers going to the Kelly and Celanese plants would not have to use streets in the business section; and move bus terminal on Frederick Street across railroad to Henderson Avenue.

Commercial Travelers Plan Memorial Tribute

Members of Cumberland Council No. 179, United Commercial Travelers, will attend 11 o'clock mass tomorrow morning at St. Patrick's Catholic Church in their annual tribute to the memory of members who have died since the council was instituted in 1901.

The group will assemble at the IOOF Hall, 12 South Mechanic Street, at 10:30 a. m. and will march to the church in a body. The Cumberland Council numbers over 300 members, including some in distant cities who have maintained membership in the local organization.

Martin L. Johnson is chairman of the committee in charge, assisted by Louis T. Helman and M. A. McRae.

Third Annual Hi-Y Banquet Will Be Held On May 12

Gilchrist Will Be Principal Speaker

Approximately 300 members of Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y groups at area high schools are expected to attend the third annual Hi-Y banquet to be held in the gymnasium of Central YMCA on Monday, May 12, at 6:30 p. m., according to Winfield H. Adam, program and boys' secretary.

C. William Gilchrist, local attorney, chairman of the endowment committee and a member of the youth and government committee of the "Y," will be the guest speaker. He will be introduced by Calvin Mahaney, Fort Hill High School, who will preside and act as toastmaster.

The affair is being sponsored by the Hi-Y council, which is composed of representatives from Allegany and Fort Hill High Schools here; Beall High School, Frostburg; Bruce High School, Westernport; and Piedmont, W. Va., High School.

A feature will be Adam's presentation of Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y emblems to the five outstanding seniors of each club, marking the close of the school year activities of the groups. High school principals and their wives will be honor guests.

Lillian Fleigle of Beall High School will speak on "The Tri-Hi-Y," and David McIntyre of Bruce will discuss "The Hi-Y." Invocation will be given by Barbara Bright of Allegany, and Howard Peterson, Allegany, president of the Hi-Y council, will give the address of welcome. Doris Poorbaugh of Fort Hill will give the closing prayer.

A 30-minute technicolor movie, "This Amazing America," will be shown after the banquet, and dancing will begin at 9 p. m. to the music of Bill Gray's orchestra.

Other council officers are Pattie Bowie, Allegany, vice president; and Barbara Matheny, Fort Hill, secretary. Miss Bowie is chairman of the committee in charge, which includes Miss Fleigle, McIntyre, Miss Poorbaugh, Peterson, Margaret Rankin of Bruce, Dorothy Freeland of Fort Hill, and Linn Sheetz of Fort Hill.

Demand For Anti-Smoke Ordinance Has Not Lessened

After weeks of individual study, members of the City Council are getting nearer to down-to-earth consideration of the proposed anti-smoke ordinance. It is indicated that a meeting of minds on the subject is approaching. This is being preceded by expressions of views by some Commissioners, and judging from these opinions it would appear certain that all are agreed the city requires legislation to bring about the elimination of smoke, insofar as it is at all possible. But this apparent approval, given it by some, is accompanied by reservations.

Commissioner Light, for instance, has expressed the opinion that a smoke control law is not necessary as far as the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, the Western Maryland Railway and the Potomac Edison Company are concerned, because, as he says, these companies are already doing everything in their power to eliminate smoke caused by their operations. An ordinance is needed, however, Mr. Light says, to regulate industries as well as smoke from dwelling houses.

What Mr. Light has to say as regard the railroads and the Potomac Edison Company doing all in their power to correct the excessive smoke nuisance is probably true, but we do not agree with him that that is any reason why they should be exempted from an ordinance covering other industries and public institutions.

The fact that such an ordinance would be placed on the ordinance book of Cumberland should not deter them from carrying forth their efforts in helping to clean up the city. On the other hand, the enactment of such an ordinance would have the effect of keeping them alert in seeing to it that their policy toward smoke abatement is not permitted to be forgotten because of indifference on the part of those to whom they look for the success of their undertakings.

We believe the benefits which should be derived from an anti-smoke ordinance, if properly enforced, would justify the cost of retaining a smoke abatement engineer and assistants. And we have no hesitancy in expressing the belief that such a plan will have the approval of the citizens, especially the women, of Cumberland. The women, of all others, must realize what a blessing it would be to be able to surrender to the closet their dust cloth for long periods; to discover that it would be unnecessary to wash and stretch curtains and draperies every few weeks, and to find on awakening in the morning that their bed coverlets were not sprinkled with fine fly ash thrown off by locomotives, power plants and industries while they slept, breathing into their lungs the same impurities.

Those conditions still exist despite whatever advancement has been made in reducing smoke, Mr. Light says he has observed.

The enactment of an anti-smoke ordinance is one of the paramount hopes of the people of Cumberland, and if the City Commissioners do not see the expediency to give it to them now, with the necessary means of enforcing it, they will certainly find themselves confronted with this smog issue when next the city election campaign rolls around.

Great Britain Has Her "Henry Wallaces", Too

One of the leftist chapters of the British Labor Party has adopted the following resolution:

"That subservience to capitalist America will inevitably draw us into an anticipated coming slump and that the only way to avoid this situation is to cooperate with the planned-economy countries such as the Soviet Union, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, Poland, etc."

But if that anticipated slump should come, could British economy be plunged into a more serious predicament than it is in today? All the countries listed, and Britain as well have been receiving substantial assistance from "capitalist America" since the beginning of the war. Why? Because no other country could furnish the supplies.

The Russians adopted planned economy in 1917. But they were moving their war munitions by horse-drawn vehicles until we became the "arensal of democracy" and supplied them with motor transport.

British planners haven't yet found a way to get as much coal out of the ground as the British capitalists used to produce. But whenever we are disposed to become irate over a brainstorm from the British left, we think of our own Henry Wallace and the nonsense he is peddling on this side of the water.

If the British have more of that sort than we do, that is punishment enough without our falling out with them about it.

Unity Is Strength In Foreign Undertakings

The Greek-Turkish aid bill is, as Senator Walter F. George, Georgia Democrat, calls it, a move to "check Russian expansion now." Of course, that is exactly what it is, as President Truman plainly implied in his message to Congress. The issue has been somewhat confused since the President's speech because of the reluctance of State Department spokesmen to call a spade a spade.

Senator George scored again when he said the "positive" anti-Communist policy envisaged in the President's program should be supported by other countries which fear Soviet expansion. "Our effort cannot stand alone," he said. That is true.

If "government of the people, by the people and for the people" is to survive outside of the Western Hemisphere, all peace-loving nations must unite under the banner of democracy and free enterprise. We cannot go on forever alone, bailing out nations that are on the edge of collapse. It must become a matter of all for one and one for all.

There has been too much wishful thinking and mealy-mouthed talking on this subject. Our economic resources must be linked to our political objectives in a forthright peace offensive.

All nations should be called upon to stand and be counted. World recovery can be accomplished only by united action, and those nations which will not join with us to that end should receive neither aid nor comfort from us. We hold all the best cards if we use them.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

THE FUNCTION OF THE KIDNEYS

THE kidneys are located in the back of the abdominal cavity, one on the right and the other on the left side of the body. They are not connected except on rare occasions when the upper parts come together in an arch, resulting in the condition known as "horseshoe kidneys."

The renal organs are indispensable to life. But we can get along with only one, so long as its partner is able to function. This is somewhat risky as the person's life depends upon the survivor. Yet there are times when the removal of a kidney will be demanded if life is to be saved.

The most important duty of the structures is to eliminate waste products; otherwise uremia ensues. The debris is carried away by the urine, which is derived from the blood as it passes thru the kidneys. Approximately 1½ quarts are secreted in 24 hours; three-fourths during the day and one-fourth at night. As the organs become less efficient the ratio may change so that more is accumulated while asleep than during the waking hours. The volume varies with the amount of water we drink, perspiration, and the health of the organs.

The urine contains a number of chemicals including salts, urea, uric acid, and creatine. Many of these substances are derived from proteins which are consumed originally in the form of eggs, meat, and certain vegetables. This explains why some individuals believe that such foods must be restricted in kidney trouble but in many instances this is not necessary as the organs overcome the handicap by secreting more fluid. Besides, tests can be made to ascertain whether poisons in the blood are reaching a dangerous level. When this occurs, a strict diet is essential.

If the kidneys fail to excrete urine because their tiny tubules are swollen or destroyed by disease, the water which should be passing out goes into the tissues of various parts of the body, leading to dropsy [edema]. Swelling is most noticeable during the early stages of Bright's disease or following mercury poisoning.

Bacteria can invade the structures from the outside, via the bladder, especially when the lower tracts are infected and more so in the presence of an obstruction such as in stricture formation, stones, enlarged prostate in men, or obstetrical complications in women.

The microorganisms can also enter thru the blood stream or lymphatic passageways. Hence infection may develop during a siege of scarlet fever or from a more localized focus in the teeth, tonsils, sinuses, gall bladder, or prostate gland. Microbes from a boil or a carbuncle on the skin, or from the intestine or genital organs likewise may travel to the kidneys. The type of medication required for treatment depends upon the species of germ present.

In spite of the vulnerability of the kidneys, they serve the majority well. Many other organs wear out faster. But this does not mean that we can afford to abuse them.

SORE THROATS

M. C. writes: My husband and I have a strep throat two or three times each winter. Do you think milk causes this trouble?

REPLY

I would be more inclined to blame contact with another individual rather than milk, as sore throats are usually contagious. But all sore throats are not due to strep germs. A laboratory examination is necessary and, unless this has been done, and the diagnosis confirmed, you may have an ordinary sore throat which precedes a cold. A great many persons encounter two or three such bouts each year and we do not know why some persons are most susceptible than others.

KIDNEY STONES

F. H. B. writes: Is there anything to dissolve a kidney stone or must I be operated on?

REPLY

As a rule, they cannot be dissolved. If small enough, the concretion may pass. But I presume that if surgery has been recommended, the stone is large and is probably damaging the kidney.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

I went around to see Thomas Hart Benton, the famed artist. He is in town this week. I figured we would have a lot to talk about since we are both in the picture business. Of course he makes his pictures with oil paint and I use grease paint in mine.

We do have one big thing in common—we both make a living out of tubes.

Benton is now recognized as one of America's greatest painters but there was a lot of controversy over his pictures when they were first made public. Now they have stopped arguing about his pictures but they are still fighting over mine.

I told Mr. Benton he might add color to his showings if he held openings for his pictures like I do. Instead of an old museum curator he could get Gypsy Rose Lee for the unveiling.

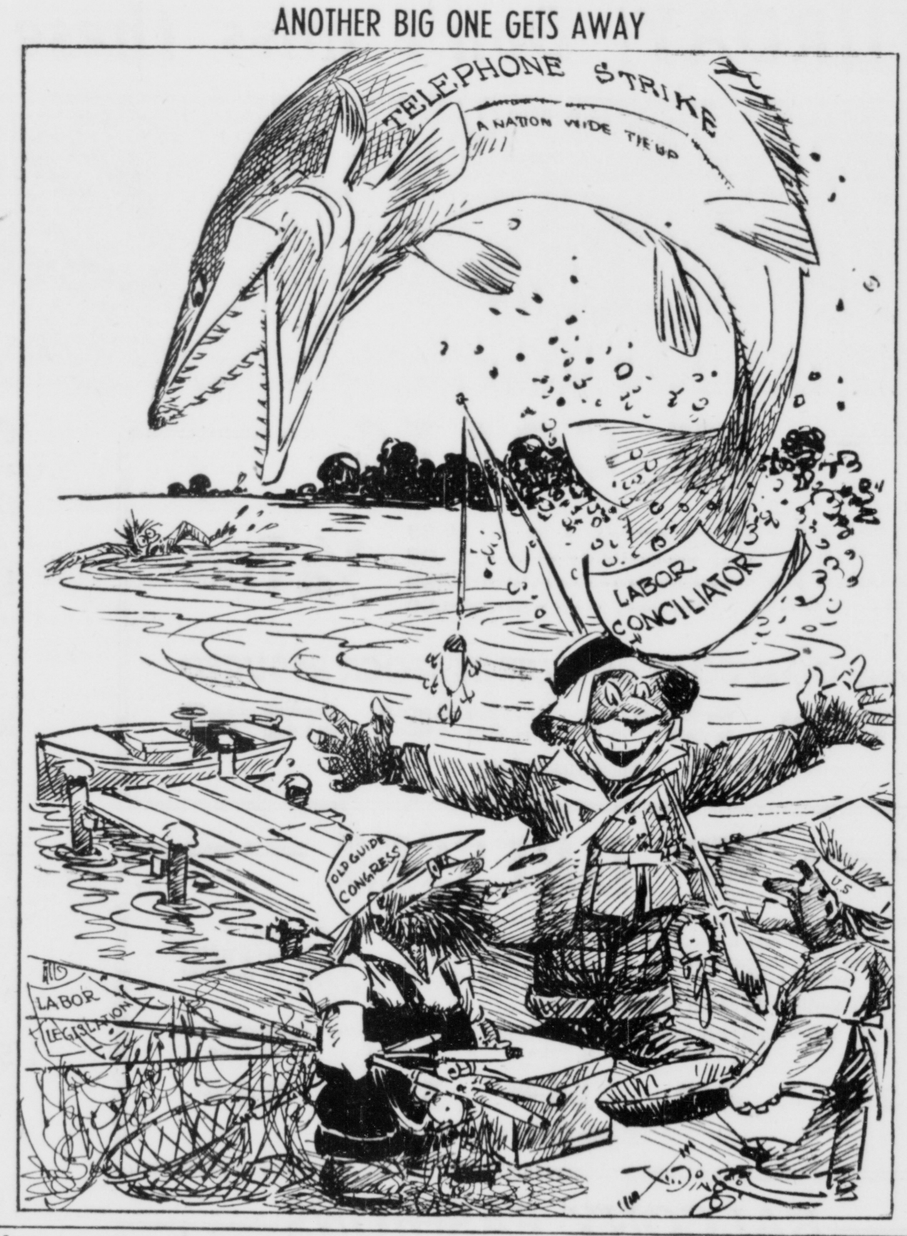

Of course he would have to give credit for his paintings in the true movie style. Paints by turpentine, canvas by the war assets administration, and Mr. Lenton's brushes courtesy of Professor Colonna's mustache.

Mr. Benton favored the idea up to a point. However, he objected when I told him he would have to dash off a few small paintings as coming attractions.

Well, Benton's pictures may be more artistic than mine but I would like to see him match frames with Dorothy Lamour.

Says DREW PEARSON

(Ed. note: Drew Pearson's column today takes the form of a letter to his sister on the anniversary of Franklin Roosevelt's death and the completion of President Truman's second year in office.)

April 11, 1947

Mrs. Lockwood Fogg, Jr.,
Wallingford, Pa.

My Dear Sister:

It gave me a big thrill to have the lovely brood of nieces and nephews visit us last week. In fact, I probably enjoyed the sight-seeing tours more than their mother, even including the rides on the Senate subway.

I am sorry that they were disappointed in not being able to ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round. Some other people I know would give a lot to avoid such a ride. But I hope you can conceal the truth that the Washington Merry-Go-Round is nothing more than their uncle pounding an old typewriter in a disorderly newspaper office! At least try to conceal it until youth becomes a little more calloused to the disappointments of life.

The sightseeing gave me an excuse to go through the White House again, which I also enjoyed, especially when your three-year-old plunked himself down in the middle of the East Room floor and serenely watched the crowds go by. I had not been through the residence part of the White House since Franklin Roosevelt died two years ago this week, and it is a never-ending source of inspiration to me to watch the stream of American history in panorama on the walls of that stately mansion.

I have been especially thinking about these things, not only because of the anniversary of Roosevelt's death, but because President Truman now faces one of the greatest foreign-policy crossroads in our 170 years as a nation.

Your children, of course, did not realize it, and most of the American public probably doesn't either, but at the very time the kids were viewing the historic rooms of the White House, history was being made in another wing of the mansion—history which will decide whether three-year-old Woody, who sat serenely on the polished East Room floor, will have to fight in another war—against Russia.

FDR's Great Mistake

As I look back on the career of Franklin Roosevelt, I believe his greatest mistake was failure to follow through against the world's aggressors at a time when they could be stopped. I voice this criticism with hesitation because I was a great admirer of Roosevelt's and I have not always been an admirer of Truman's. But I am inclined to think that in this one respect, history may prove Truman greater.

Truman has taken a stand—a stand which requires much courage. And with the help of other fair-minded statesmen such as Senator Vandenberg, he is sticking to it.

Back in 1936-37 FDR was urged to take a stand in the Spanish Civil War. He was urged by none other than the late Senator Borah of Idaho, hitherto an isolationist, who pointed out that Hitler and Mussolini were the real factors behind Franco, that this was a dress rehearsal for world war, and that if the USA showed where it stood then, world war could be prevented later.

I happened to know something about Borah's talk, because it was Bob Allen who arranged for it with FDR. However, Borah wasn't the only one who made this plea to Roosevelt. Justice Ferdinand Pecora of the N. Y. Supreme Court urged the same thing, and I myself talked with FDR and wrote many columns on the subject.

Although he saw the situation clearly, he would not move. Truman has.

Japan Could Have Been Stopped

Even more important, perhaps, was the situation in regard to Japanese aggression. Back in 1931 when the Japs first moved into Manchuria, Henry L. Stimson, then Secretary of State, tried to mobilize the League of Nations and the peace machinery of the Nine-Power Pact to stop Japanese aggression. But Herbert Hoover was lukewarm, and various of our European friends, especially England, would not support him.

When Roosevelt took office, he was not lukewarm. And in 1937, as the Japs moved into Central China, he saw his opportunity to stop one of the world's most aggressive dictatorships. At that time, Admiral Leahy, then Chief of Naval Operations, advised that the U. S. Navy, with token help from the British, could create an economic blockade of all Japan—cut off oil, scrap iron, copper, cotton—and starve out the Japanese military machine without losing a single U. S. ship.

Such a move, furthermore, would warn the dictators of Europe exactly what they could expect from the USA when it came to war.

Roosevelt actually started such a policy. He made his historic "quarantine" speech in Chicago. He sent Norman Davis to Brussels to mobilize the world's peace machinery against Japan. But then, having started this historic course, he got cold feet.

Cordell Hull didn't like it. A lot of politicians claimed it would lose him votes. The Republican isolationists, led by the Chicago Tribune, screamed to high heaven. The British also were skittish.

Roosevelt should not be judged too harshly, because times were different then. Public opinion had not been aroused. It took Pearl Harbor to arouse it. Today the public is much more alert and unified regarding Russia, so Truman's task is easier.

However, if Roosevelt had stuck to his guns regarding Japan, I am convinced—and so are many military strategists—that he could have staved off World War II. By taking a strong stand in 1937, thousands of lives would have been saved five years later.

Recent history is full of similar examples. If the British had backed the French when Hitler moved into the Ruhr in 1936 there is no question but that the German war machine would have crumbled. Dictators can only live on continued victory. One defeat is the beginning of the end for them.

The Truman Doctrine

Coming back to Truman: I do not like certain details regarding his aid to Greece and Turkey. I do not like the Fascist Royal Family of Greece. I do not like the high-binding tactics of the Turks. But I am convinced that the present policy of the Soviet Government is (1) to stamp out the last vestige of democracy wherever they find it in Europe; and (2) so discourage the American people regarding the European imbroglio that eventually we will retreat to our traditional isolation.

The Truman aid plan, despite some of its imperfections, can probably achieve two things: (1) resuscitate and protect the last vestiges of democracy in Greece; and (2) prove to the Russians that the American people, contrary to being isolationists, are determined to work for the principles we fought for in this war.

If we prove to the Russians that we are willing to work for peace, we won't have to fight for it later. Otherwise I am afraid we will.

I would add some other features to the Truman plan—especially a campaign of good will toward the Russian people, a program to show that we are the good friend of plain people everywhere, even though we may differ vigorously with their government. This is all-important, but I'll write more about that later.

Meanwhile, love to the kids and tell them next time I'll find a Merry-Go-Round and take them for a real ride—in addition to the Senate subway.

Your brother Drew.

Congress Has Many Things To Guide It On Labor Legislation

By MARK SULLIVAN

The new labor legislation will reach the floor of the House next week, the Senate somewhat later. Among scores of speeches and millions of words that will be spoken as reason for its passage, the most convincing is a simple statement of the conditions which accompany and have preceded this legislation.

At the moment of its consideration the country is enduring a nation-wide telephone strike. A few weeks before, in early March, the country witnessed a conspicuous extension of strikes into a new area, a strike of teachers which closed the schools of Buffalo. So extreme and heretofore unthinkable was this type of strike that the New York State Legislature under leadership of Governor Dewey enacted a statute forbidding and penalizing strikes by workers in any government service.

Summary Of Strikes Convincing

These and other strikes occurred during the weeks when committees of the Senate and House were at work drafting labor legislation, and when it was known that this legislation would be before Congress for action. They are sufficiently convincing proof of the need. But even more convincing is a brief summary of strikes that have taken place during a period of little more than a year past. These include:

Total suspension of railroad transportation. Total suspension of ocean shipping. Total suspension of steel production. Total suspension of soft coal mining, twice.

These suspensions have been nation-wide. In addition there have been total suspensions of the same sort of services in several large cities and areas. These include:

Total suspension of telegraph service. Total suspension of bus and streetcar service. Total suspension of newspaper publication. Total suspension of manufacture and delivery of bread. Crippling suspension of electric light and power production.

In addition to the strike of teachers in Buffalo which led to legislation by New York State there have been in several cities strikes of the same kind—strikes, that is, by workers in government services. These have led to:

Total suspension of city owned water supply. Total suspension of city-owned transportation. Total suspension of garbage collection.

This record not merely proves the need for legislation, it suggests the kind. These strikes are what was in the public mind when, in the November election, it gave a mandate for change. The test of the adequacy of the proposed legislation is whether labor unions and leaders continue to have the power which enabled them to bring about these strikes; to bring about, in the aggregate, the largest number of serious interruptions of public services and industry in the country's history.

Will Not Yield To Public Opinion

The men who wield this power will defer to nothing short of legislation, legislation which is conclusively effective. That they will not defer to consideration for the public interest is proved by the fact that the strikes have taken place. That they will not yield to public opinion is proved by the fact that new strikes are now taking place and others are threatened. There is no way for public opinion to express itself more effectively than it did in the November election. For a while it was said in some quarters that the election would be enough, that such strikes as had taken place during the year preceding would not be repeated. That was the theme of Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach when he appeared before the Senate Labor Committee.

The attitude of labor leaders was shown when, in hearings of the Senate and House Labor Committees, top rank labor leaders asserted that no legislation is necessary. With unimportant exceptions, they opposed every proposal mild ones as much as the ones they call drastic. Since labor leaders take this position, Congress must make its own interpretation of the mandate of the November election. The test of the coming legislation is whether it effectively asserts the supremacy of Congress itself as a part of government and of the public interest.

Truman Tries To Find Scrapegoat For Present High Living Costs

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, April 11 — The "Truman depression" seems to have been brought somewhat nearer by what appears to be an effort on the part of the President to find a scapegoat for the present high prices. The President has added to the confusion in the business picture.

Ignoring wholly the part played by the Administration in encouraging wage increases after V-J Day, Mr. Truman now says business is responsible for the high prices and that wage earners will be justified in asking for further increases.

Just at a time when the economic system seems most in need of eliminating politics and governmental interference with natural laws, Mr. Truman has again upset the apple-cart by giving encouragement to further demands for increased wages.

Mr. Truman's decision to place the onus on business men appears to be the start of a campaign such as the New Dealers used to practice —to blame everybody else but themselves.

In the press conference which drew forth the President's comments, he was asked about the part the Government had played in bidding up and supporting farm prices. This factor apparently was conveniently evaded as responsible for the high prices in the food industry.

High Living Cost Of Foodstuffs

When Mr. Truman talks about "business" and "business men" and what their responsibility is to decrease prices, he chooses to omit all reference to the high costs of labor and materials which have forced up the prices of manufactured goods. Spokesmen for business groups were quick to point to the official figures as showing that, while manufacturing prices have gone up 75 per cent, agricultural prices have risen 180 per cent and raw materials 135 per cent since 1939. Also it was pointed out that average hourly earnings in manufacturing have increased 85 per cent since 1939 and a large part of the rise was through approval of governmental agencies.

People do not eat the so-called "manufactured" products, and 70 per cent of the recent increases in the cost of living have been in foodstuffs. The buying power of the federal government and its support of commodity prices are largely responsible for those increases.

But politically, of course, and from a demagogic point of view, it is easier to blame someone else. Hence Mr. Truman's outburst on the subject of prices is bound to discredit his efforts at "moral suasion" and his appeals for price reduction aimed at "business."

Something of the same sort of camouflage is apparent in the discussion of profits. The big profits of 1946 came in those consumer-goods lines which had been unable to produce during the war and which met a tremendous demand that had been pent-up. It is disclosed in the National City Bank's recent statistics for 1946 that, out of 30 different categories of business, only 8 showed profit margins on sales to be wider than in 1939 and in the remaining 22 the profit margins were narrower.

Where volume is up, profits have been good. The only question in the minds of many business men is whether they are facing an abnormal demand due to shortages and whether, when the demand falls off and volume declines, they will be able to continue to make a profit.

Truman's Views Not All Of Story

In some instances unquestionably price reductions would be considered if business men could find out what their suppliers would do. Price-fixing by business groups is forbidden under the anti-trust laws. The President hints that maybe the Department of Justice won't prosecute, but this is a slender reed and one on which business men cannot afford to lean.

The President says that price control is now off and the responsiility is squarely on business. This is not all of the story. So long as the Government is a big buyer of goods and maintains support of farm prices, controls of the items involved in the cost of living are still on. And that's what is behind the demands of most wage earners for higher wages.

THESE DAYS

By George E. Sokolsky

REFRESHINGLY competent and surprisingly wise are the generals employed by the government in civilian administration or in positions involving broad experience and fanatical love of country. These men are proving that the investment the American people have made in their training and experience is not for war alone; that they are sufficiently flexible to be employed in peace as well.

Surely, the outstanding achievement of the United States in wise service is the career of General Douglas MacArthur in Japan. Historically, his is an accomplishment unequalled in the sense that the conqueror becomes the savior, that for the inhumanity of war is substituted constructive rebuilding of a weak and desperate people. Rarely has a warrior ruled a people as benevolently, as justly as General MacArthur has the Japanese and the marvel is that they have recognized the fact and fully appreciate its meaning.

General Marshall's conduct of the State Department and his representation of the United States at Moscow is as surprising as it is gratifying. His attitude has been statesmanlike; his speeches and press interviews dignified, accurate, sure. He promised less than the performance justified and the performance has been wholly in the national interest without regard to domestic politics or to that "bring-home - the - bacon" complex which has, in the past, proved so disastrous. General Marshall has represented, protected, and served the United States of America with tact but without compromise; he has restored self-respect to American diplomacy.

Such generals as Lucius Clay, Mark Clark and W. Bedell Smith have strengthened our postwar position in Europe, by substituting, for instance, in Germany, an orderly handling of problems for the chaos and confusion of the conflict between State and Treasury and Army officials in the implementation of order JCS 1067, that fantastic instruction growing out of the Morgenthau Plan.

Americans are normally jealous of the military in civilian positions, the assumption being that the soldier is too arbitrary, too positive and too hierarchial. Actually, those military men who have, since the war, been appointed to such positions have proved not only that competence in war may be translated into competence in peace, but that they possess tact in the handling of public problems and even more a trained devotion to country which eliminates self-interest and that desire for political self-perpetuation which has produced so wicked a lot of public officials in recent years. They do not build private empires of power, perhaps because they have been trained to recognize the limitations and obligations of power.

Now that David Lilienthal has, after a campaign, been confirmed to head the Atomic Energy Commission until August, 1948, some tribute should be paid to General Leslie R. Groves, who was responsible for the Manhattan Project at Oak Ridge, Tenn., carried it through to success, made it the instrument that it is, and was then kicked in the shins by the propaganda of self-adulation of the scientists and the McMahon Act passed by Congress.

The scientists worked hard at giving to the country and the world the impression that the Manhattan Project was theirs and theirs alone. They issued tons of mimeographed propaganda to that effect. Actually, the American scientists accomplished somewhat more than the German, Swedish, Italian and Russian scientists accomplished before them. The great American contribution to atomic fission lay in the realm of engineering and manufacture. That is why this country succeeded while the others failed. That is why no other country to this day has produced the bomb, although the essential scientific knowledge is available to all in published form.

Nor could the engineering and manufacturing skill be mobilized by university professors. It lay in the experience and know-how of individuals and firms, scattered over the country, expert in particularities of production. It took a century to gain this experience and know-how.

The genuis of General Groves lay in his ability to keep at a single job, scientist, engineer, manufacturer, soldier and a vast body of labor, all opinionated, all temperamental, each viewing the same problem from a different base. It was a grand job, accomplished with genius, tact and service to the country, and the laurels go to General Leslie R. Groves.

Demand For Anti-Smoke Ordinance Has Not Lessened

After weeks of individual study, members of the City Council are getting nearer to down-to-earth consideration of the proposed anti-smoke ordinance. It is indicated that a meeting of minds on the subject is approaching. This is being preceded by expressions of views by some Commissioners, and judging from these opinions it would appear certain that all are agreed the city requires legislation to bring about the elimination of smoke, insofar as it is at all possible. But whenever we are disposed to become irate over a brainstorm from the British left, we think of our own Henry Wallace and the nonsense he is peddling on this side of the water.

If the British have more of that sort than we do, that is punishment enough without our falling out with them about it.

Unity Is Strength In Foreign Undertakings

The Greek-Turkish aid bill is, as Senator Walter F. George, Georgia Democrat, calls it, a move to "check Russian expansion now." Of course, that is exactly what it is, as President Truman plainly implied in his message to Congress. The issue has been somewhat confused since the President's speech because of the reluctance of State Department spokesmen to call a spade a spade.

Senator George scored again when he said the "positive" anti-Communist policy envisaged in the President's program should be supported by other countries which fear Soviet expansion. "Our effort cannot stand alone," he said. That is true.

If "government of the people, by the people and for the people" is to survive outside of the Western Hemisphere, all peace-loving nations must unite under the banner of democracy and free enterprise. We cannot go on forever alone, bailing out nations that are on the edge of collapse. It must become a matter of all for one and one for all.

There has been too much wishful thinking and mealy-mouthed talking on this subject. Our economic resources must be linked to our political objectives in a forthright peace offensive.

All nations should be called upon to stand and be counted. World recovery can be accomplished only by united action, and those nations which will not join with us to that end should receive neither aid nor comfort from us. We hold all the best cards if we use them.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

THE FUNCTION OF THE KIDNEYS

THE kidneys are located in the back of the abdominal cavity, one on the right and the other on the left side of the body. They are not connected except on rare occasions when the upper parts come together in an arch, resulting in the condition known as "horseshoe kidneys."

The renal organs are indispensable to life. But we can get along with only one, so long as its partner is able to function. This is somewhat risky as the person's life depends upon the survivor. Yet there are times when the removal of a kidney will be demanded if life is to be saved.

The most important duty of the structures is to eliminate waste products; otherwise uremia ensues. The debris is carried away by the urine, which is derived from the blood as it passes thru the kidneys. Approximately 1½ quarts are secreted in 24 hours; three-fourths during the day and one-fourth at night. As the organs become less efficient the ratio may change so that more is accumulated while asleep than during the waking hours. The volume varies with the amount of water we drink, perspiration, and the health of the organs.

The urine contains a number of chemicals including salts, urea, uric acid, and creatine. Many of these substances are derived from proteins which are consumed originally in the form of eggs, meat, and certain vegetables. This explains why some individuals believe that such foods must be restricted in kidney trouble but in many instances this is not necessary as the organs overcome the handicap by secreting more fluid. Besides, tests can be made to ascertain whether poisons in the blood are reaching a dangerous level. When this occurs, a strict diet is essential.

If the kidneys fail to excrete urine because their tiny tubules are swollen or destroyed by disease, the water which should be passing out goes into the tissues of various parts of the body, leading to dropsy [edema]. Swelling is most noticeable during the early stages of Bright's disease or following mercury poisoning.

Bacteria can invade the structures from the outside, via the bladder, especially when the lower tracts are infected and more so in the presence of an obstruction such as in stricture formation, stones, enlarged prostate in men, or obstetrical complications in women.

The microorganisms can also enter thru the blood stream or lymphatic passageways. Hence infection may develop during a siege of scarlet fever or from a more localized focus in the teeth, tonsils, sinuses, gall bladder, or prostate gland. Microbes from a boil or a carbuncle on the skin, or from the intestine or genital organs likewise may travel to the kidneys. The type of medication required for treatment depends upon the species of germ present.

In spite of the vulnerability of the kidneys, they serve the majority well. Many other organs wear out faster. But this does not mean that we can afford to abuse them.

SORE THROATS

M. C. writes: My husband and I have a strep throat two or three times each winter. Do you think milk causes this trouble?

REPLY

I would be more inclined to blame contact with another individual rather than milk, as sore throats are usually contagious. But all sore throats are not due to strep germs. A laboratory examination is necessary and, unless this has been done, and the diagnosis confirmed, you may have an ordinary sore throat which precedes a cold. A great many persons encounter two or three such bouts each year and we do not know why some persons are most susceptible than others.

KIDNEY STONES

F. H. B. writes: Is there anything to dissolve a kidney stone or must I be operated on?

REPLY

As a rule, they cannot be dissolved. If small enough, the concretion may pass. But I presume that if surgery has been recommended, the stone is large and is probably damaging the kidney.

It Says Here By BOB HOPE

I went around to see Thomas Hart Benton, the famed artist. He is in town this week. I figured we would have a lot to talk about since we are both in the picture business. Of course he makes his pictures with oil paint and I use grease paint in mine.

We do have one big thing in common—we both make a living out of tubes.

Benton is now recognized as one of America's greatest painters but there was a lot of controversy over his pictures when they were first made public. Now they have stopped arguing about his pictures but they are still fighting over mine.

I told Mr. Benton he might add color to his showings if he held openings for his pictures like I do. Instead of an old museum curator he could get Gypsy Rose Lee for the unveiling.

Of course he would have to give credit for his paintings in the true movie style. Paints by turpentine, canvas by the war assets administration, and Mr. Lenton's brushes courtesy of Professor Colonna's mustache.

Mr. Benton favored the idea up to a point. However, he objected when I told him he would have to dash off a few small paintings as coming attractions.

Well, Benton's pictures may be more artistic than mine but I would like to see him match frames with Dorothy Lamour.

Says DREW PEARSON

(Ed. note: Drew Pearson's column today takes the form of a letter to his sister on the anniversary of Franklin Roosevelt's death and the completion of President Truman's second year in office.)

April 11, 1947

Mrs. Lockwood Fogg, Jr.,
Wallingford, Pa.

My Dear Sister:

It gave me a big thrill to have the lovely brood of nieces and nephews visit us last week. In fact, I probably enjoyed the sight-seeing tours more than their mother, even including the rides on the Senate subway.

I am sorry that they were disappointed in not being able to ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round. Some other people I know would give a lot to avoid such a ride. But I hope you can conceal the truth that the Washington Merry-Go-Round is nothing more than their uncle pounding an old typewriter in a disorderly newspaper office! At least try to conceal it until youth becomes a little more calloused to the disappointments of life.

The sightseeing gave me an excuse to go through the White House again, which I also enjoyed, especially when your three-year-old plunked himself down in the middle of the East Room floor and serenely watched the crowds go by. I had not been through the residence part of the White House since Franklin Roosevelt died two years ago this week, and it is a never-ending source of inspiration to me to watch the stream of American history in panorama on the walls of that stately mansion.

I have been especially thinking about these things, not only because of the anniversary of Roosevelt's death, but because President Truman now faces one of the greatest foreign-policy crossroads in our 170 years as a nation.

Your children, of course, did not realize it, and most of the American public probably doesn't either, but at the very time the kids were viewing the historic rooms of the White House, history was being made in another wing of the mansion—history which will decide whether three-year-old Woody, who sat serenely on the polished East Room floor, will have to fight in another war—against Russia.

FDR's Great Mistake

As I look back on the career of Franklin Roosevelt, I believe his greatest mistake was failure to follow through against the world's aggressors at a time when they could be stopped. I voice this criticism with hesitation because I was a great admirer of Roosevelt's and I have not always been an admirer of Truman's. But I am inclined to think that in this one respect, history may prove Truman greater.

Truman has taken a stand—a stand which requires much courage. And with the help of other fair-minded statesmen such as Senator Vandenberg, he is sticking to it.

Back in 1936-37 FDR was urged to take a stand in the Spanish Civil War. He was urged by none other than the late Senator Borah of 'Idaho, hitherto an isolationist, who pointed out that Hitler and Mussolini were the real factors behind Franco, that this was a dress rehearsal for world war, and that if the USA showed where it stood then, world war could be prevented later.

I happened to know something about Borah's talk, because it was Bob Allen who arranged for it with FDR. However, Borah wasn't the only one who made this plea to Roosevelt. Justice Ferdinand Pecora of the N. Y. Supreme Court urged the same thing, and I myself talked with FDR and wrote many columns on the subject.

Although he saw the situation clearly, he would not move. Truman has.

Japan Could Have Been Stopped

Even more important, perhaps, was the situation in regard to Japanese aggression. Back in 1931 when the Japs first moved into Manchuria, Henry L. Stimson, then Secretary of State, tried to mobilize the League of Nations and the peace machinery of the Nine-Power Pact to stop Japanese aggression. But Herbert Hoover was lukewarm, and various of our European friends, especially England, would not support him.

When Roosevelt took office, he was not lukewarm. And in 1937, as the Japs moved into Central China, he saw his opportunity to stop one of the world's most aggressive dictatorships. At that time, Admiral Leahy, then Chief of Naval Operations, advised that the U. S. Navy, with token help from the British, could create an economic blockade of all Japan—cut off oil, scrap iron, copper, cotton—and starve out the Japanese military machine without losing a single U. S. ship.

Such a move, furthermore, would warn the dictators of Europe exactly what they could expect from the USA when it came to war.

Roosevelt actually started such a policy. He made his historic "quarantine" speech in Chicago. He sent Norman Davis to Brussels to mobilize the world's peace machinery against Japan. But then, having started this historic course, he got cold feet.

Cordell Hull didn't like it. A lot of politicians claimed it would lose him votes. The Republican isolationists, led by the Chicago Tribune, screamed to high heaven. The British also were skittish.

Roosevelt should not be judged too harshly, because times were different then. Public opinion had not been aroused. It took Pearl Harbor to arouse it. Today the public is much more alert and unified regarding Russia, so Truman's task is easier.

However, if Roosevelt had stuck to his guns regarding Japan, I am convinced—and so are many military strategists—that he could have stayed off World War II. By taking a strong stand in 1937, thousands of lives would have been saved five years later.

Recent history is full of similar examples. If the British had backed the French when Hitler moved into the Ruhr in 1936 there is no question but that the German war machine would have crumbled. Dictators can only live on continued victory. One defeat is the beginning of the end for them.

The Truman Doctrine

Coming back to Truman: I do not like certain details regarding his aid to Greece and Turkey. I do not like the Fascist Royal Family of Greece. I do not like the high-binding tactics of the Turks. But I am convinced that the present policy of the Soviet Government is (1) to stamp out the last vestige of democracy wherever they find it in Europe; and (2) so discourage the American people regarding the European imbroglio that eventually we will retreat to our traditional isolation.

The Truman aid plan, despite some of its imperfections, can probably achieve two things: (1) resuscitate and protect the last vestiges of democracy in Greece; and (2) prove to the Russians that the American people, contrary to being isolationists, are determined to work for the principles we fought for in this war.

If we prove to the Russians that we are willing to work for peace, we won't have to fight for it later. Otherwise I am afraid we will.

I would add some other features to the Truman plan—especially a campaign of good will toward the Russian people, a program to show that we are the good friend of plain people everywhere, even though we may differ vigorously with their government. This is all-important, but I'll write more about that later.

Meanwhile, love to the kids and tell them next time I'll find a Merry-Go-Round and take them for a real ride—in addition to the Senate subway.

Your brother Drew.

Congress Has Many Things To Guide It On Labor Legislation

By MARK SULLIVAN

The new labor legislation will reach the floor of the House next week, the Senate somewhat later. Among scores of speeches and millions of words that will be spoken as reason for its passage, the most convincing is a simple statement of the conditions which accompany and have preceded this legislation.

At the moment of its consideration the country is enduring a nation-wide telephone strike. A few weeks before, in early March, the country witnessed a conspicuous extension of strikes into a new area, a strike of teachers which closed the schools of Buffalo. So extreme and heretofore unthinkable was this type of strike that the New York State Legislature under leadership of Governor Dewey enacted a statute forbidding and penalizing strikes by workers in any government service.

Summary Of Strikes Convincing

These and other strikes occurred during the weeks when committees of the Senate and House were at work drafting labor legislation, and when it was known that this legislation would be before Congress for action. They are sufficiently convincing proof of the need. But even more convincing is a brief summary of strikes that have taken place during a period of little more than a year past. These include

Total suspension of railroad transportation. Total suspension of ocean shipping. Total suspension of steel production. Total suspension of soft coal mining, twice.

These suspensions have been nation-wide. In addition there have been total suspensions of the same sort of services in several large cities and areas. These include:

Total suspension of telegraph service. Total suspension of bus and streetcar service. Total suspension of newspaper publication. Total suspension of manufacture and delivery of bread. Crippling suspension of electric light and power production.

In addition to the strike of teachers in Buffalo which led to legislation by New York State there have been in several cities strikes of the same kind—strikes, that is, by workers in government services. These have led to:

Total suspension of city owned water supply. Total suspension of city-owned transportation. Total suspension of garbage collection.

This record not merely proves the need for legislation, it suggests the kind. These strikes are what was in the public mind when, in the November election, it gave a mandate for change. The test of the adequacy of the proposed legislation is whether labor unions and leaders continue to have the power which enabled them to bring about these strikes; to bring about, in the aggregate, the largest number of serious interruptions of public services and industry in the country's history.

Will Not Yield To Public Opinion

The men who wield this power will defer to nothing short of legislation, legislation which is conclusively effective. That they will not defer to consideration for the public interest is proved by the fact that the strikes have taken place. That they will not yield to public opinion is proved by the fact that new strikes are now taking place and others are threatened. There is no way for public opinion to express itself more effectively than it did in the November election. For a while it was said in some quarters that the election would be enough, that such strikes as had taken place during the year preceding would not be repeated. That was the theme of Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach when he appeared before the Senate Labor Committee.

The attitude of labor leaders was shown when, in hearings of the Senate and House Labor Committees, top rank labor leaders asserted that no legislation is necessary. With unimportant exceptions, they opposed every proposal mild ones as much as the ones they call drastic. Since labor leaders take this position, Congress must make its own interpretation of the mandate of the November election. The test of the coming legislation is whether it effectively asserts the supremacy of Congress itself as a part of government and of the public interest.

Truman Tries To Find Scrapegoat For Present High Living Costs

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, April 11 — The "Truman depression" seems to have been brought somewhat nearer by what appears to be an effort on the part of the President to find a scapegoat for the present high prices. The President has added to the confusion in the business picture.

Ignoring wholly the part played by the Administration in encouraging wage increases after V-J Day, Mr. Truman now says business is responsible for the high prices and that wage earners will be justified in asking for further increases.

Just at a time when the economic system seems most in need of eliminating politics and governmental interference with natural laws, Mr. Truman has again upset the apple-cart by giving encouragement to further demands for increased wages.

Mr. Truman's decision to place the onus on business men appears to be the start of a campaign such as the New Dealers used to practice —to blame everybody else but themselves.

In the press conference which drew forth the President's comments, he was asked about the part the Government had played in bidding up and supporting farm prices. This factor apparently was conveniently evaded as responsible for the high prices in the food industry.

High Living Cost Of Foodstuffs

When Mr. Truman talks about "business" and "business men" and what their responsibility is to decrease prices, he chooses to omit all reference to the high costs of labor and materials which have forced up the prices of manufactured goods. Spokesmen for business groups were quick to point to the official figures as showing that, while manufacturing prices have gone up 75 per cent, agricultural prices have risen 180 per cent and raw materials 135 per cent since 1939. Also it was pointed out that average hourly earnings in manufacturing have increased 85 per cent since 1939 and a large part of the rise was through approval of governmental agencies.

People do not eat the so-called "manufactured" products, and 70 per cent of the recent increases in the cost of living have been in foodstuffs. The buying power of the federal government and its support of commodity prices are largely responsible for those increases.

But politically, of course, and from a demagogic point of view, it is easier to blame someone else. Hence Mr. Truman's outburst on the subject of prices is bound to discredit his efforts at "moral suasion" and his appeals for price reduction aimed at "business."

Something of the same sort of camouflage is apparent in the discussion of profits. The big profits of 1946 came in those consumer-goods lines which had been unable to produce during the war and which met a tremendous demand that had been pent-up. It is disclosed in the National City Bank's recent statistics for 1946 that, out of 30 different categories of business, only 8 showed profit margins on sales to be wider than in 1939 and in the remaining 22 the profit margins were narrower.

Where volume is up, profits have been good. The only question in the minds of many business men is whether they are facing an abnormal demand due to shortages and whether, when the demand falls off and volume declines, they will be able to continue to make a profit.

Truman's Views Not All Of Story

In some instances unquestionably price reductions would be considered if business men could find out what their suppliers would do. Price-fixing by business groups is forbidden under the anti-trust laws. The President hints that maybe the Department of Justice won't prosecute, but this is a slender reed and one on which business men cannot afford to lean.

The President says that price control is now off and the responsiility is squarely on business. This is not all of the story. So long as the Government is a big buyer of goods and maintains support of farm prices, controls of the items involved in the cost of living are still on. And that's what is behind the demands of most wage earners for higher wages.

THESE DAYS By George E. Sokolsky

REFRESHINGLY competent and surprisingly wise are the generals employed by the government in civilian administration or in positions involving broad experience and fanatical love of country. These men are proving that the investment the American people have made in their training and experience is not for war alone; that they are sufficiently flexible to be employed in peace as well.

Surely, the outstanding achievement of the United States in wise service is the career of General Douglas MacArthur in Japan. Historically, his is an accomplishment unequalled in the sense that the conqueror becomes the savior, that for the inhumanity of war is substituted constructive rebuilding of a weak and desperate people. Rarely has a warrior ruled a people as benevolently, as justly as General MacArthur has the Japanese and the marvel is that they have recognized the fact and fully appreciate its meaning.

General Marshall's conduct of the State Department and his representation of the United States at Moscow is as surprising as it is gratifying. His attitude has been statesmanlike; his speeches and press interviews dignified, accurate, sure. He promised less than the performance justified and the performance has been wholly in the national interest without regard to domestic politics or to that "bring-home - the - bacon" complex which has, in the past, proved so disastrous. General Marshall has represented, protected, and served the United States of America with tact but without compromise; he has restored self-respect to American diplomacy.

Such generals as Lucius Clay, Mark Clark and W. Bedell Smith have strengthened our postwar position in Europe, by substituting, for instance, in Germany, an orderly handling of problems for the chaos and confusion of the conflict between State and Treasury and Army officials in the implementation of order JCS 1067, that fantastic instruction growing out of the Morgenthau Plan.

Americans are normally jealous of the military in civilian positions, the assumption being that the soldier is too arbitrary, too positive and too hierarchial. Actually, those military men who have, since the war, been appointed to such positions have proved not only that competence in war may be translated into competence in peace, but that they possess tact in the handling of public problems and even more a trained devotion to country which eliminates self-interest and that desire for political self-perpetuation which has produced so wicked a lot of public officials in recent years. They do not build private empires of power, perhaps because they have been trained to recognize the limitations and obligations of power.

Now that David Lilienthal has, after a campaign, been confirmed to head the Atomic Energy Commission until August, 1948, some tribute should be paid to General Leslie R. Groves, who was responsible for the Manhattan Project at Oak Ridge, Tenn., carried it through to success, made it the instrument that it is, and was then kicked in the shins by the propaganda of self-adulation of the scientists and the McMahon Act passed by Congress.

The scientists worked hard at giving to the country and the world the impression that the Manhattan Project was theirs and theirs alone. They issued tons of mimeographed propaganda to that effect. Actually, the American scientists accomplished somewhat more than the German, Swedish, Italian and Russian scientists accomplished before them. The great American contribution to atomic fission lay in the realm of engineering and manufacture. That is why this country succeeded while the others failed. That is why no other country to this day has produced the bomb, although the essential scientific knowledge is available to all in published form.

Nor could the engineering and manufacturing skill be mobilized by university professors. It lay in the experience and know-how of individuals and firms, scattered over the country, expert in particularities of production. It took a century to gain this experience and know-how.

The genuis of General Groves lay in his ability to keep at a single job, scientist, engineer, manufacturer, soldier and a vast body of labor, all opinionated, all temperamental, each viewing the same problem from a different base. It was a grand job, accomplished with genius, tact and service to the country, and the laurels go to General Leslie R. Groves.

PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

I heard Eleanor laughing. "What's so funny?" I asked the missus, as I walked into her room.

"This," she said, holding up a copy of an old Ben Hecht book, "Count Bruga."

"Have you gotten to the part where the poet is running through Greenwich Village with chicken bones sticking to his coat?" I inquired.

Billy Rose

"Solid murder," said the fire chief's daughter. "This is one of the funniest books I ever read. Why don't you take me to the Village some time?"

"Any time you say," I came back. "Once knew it pretty well. As a kid in high school, I used to pick up a few extra bucks there after school typing manuscripts for the writers."

On the way down to Greenwich Village the following Sunday, I spouted like the guide on the rubberneck wagons. I told Eleanor about Romany Marie's, where the poets and artists used to sit around eating breadsticks and arguing about Cezanne and Eugene V. Debs. I told her about the Pirate's Den, where Don Dickerman played host to characters with faces like John Carradine and Lionel Stander. And, of course, I told her about Harold Kent.

Harold Kent, the poet, was as much of a landmark thirty years back as the statue of Garibaldi in Washington Square Park. His fullback shoulders and love poems had the girls breathing hard as far north as 14th Street.

In those days, as now, the supply of poetry far exceeded the demand. To get a bowl of soup, a poet would often have to go to a Bowery mission, where a blessing and a bath were included.

One day, the manager of a celebrated Village eating house met up with the legendary Kent. "I'm a great admirer of your work," he told the poet . . . "Anytime you're a little short, feel free to come in and stoke up. Just sign the tab."

Kent did. When the arrangement had been on for about a month, the members of the cult of which Kent was high priest noticed he was putting on a little weight. The poet would get to the restaurant every evening as the members of a string trio were tunning up their instruments. He would leave when they are putting them back in their cases. Between, he would work his way from the upper left-hand corner of the menu down to the line on the lower right, "Management not responsible for hats and coats."

The management liked this arrangement fine. In an open short and corduroy pants, the big fellow was the right touch of Village atmosphere for the uptown visitors.

But his disciples began to worry about Kent. As his waistline increased, his literary output diminished. When a whole week went by without Harold reading them a new poem, they called an emergency meeting. It was held in the back room of a basement antique shop. A sculptor from the Ukraine brought the meeting to order.

"Our friend," he intoned, "is being corrupted by a bourgaois bloodsucker. He is being seduced with minestrone and mussels marinere. We must fight back!"

At two that morning, a Dadaist from Flint, Michigan, came up with a plan.

The next day, the Ukranian sculptor tracked down Harold Kent in Washington Square Park. The poet was sunning himself and picking chicken cacciatore out of his teeth.

"My dear fellow," the sculptor told the poet, "you are being exploited. The manager of the restaurant is selling the signatures on the tabs you signed for fabulous amounts of money. I doubt whether you know how much a Harold Kent autograph is worthless."

That did it.

The exploited genius stomped into the restaurant that night and grabbed the manager by the necktie. "From now on," he stormed, "I sign nothing! I'll eat here, but if you want my signature on the tabs it will cost you $25 a day!"

Two of the poet's worshipping disciples picked him out of the gutter exactly fifteen seconds later.

"I'd like to see that restaurant," said Eleanor, as I paid off the taxi driver in front of the Brevoort Hotel.

We walked west on 8th Street. I felt thirty years younger as I ambled along the streets where O. Henry, Dreiser, Christopher Morley and Edna Millay had once walked.

"It's around the corner," I said to Eleanor, running a little bit ahead of her. Then I stopped. I felt a little silly. Instead of the striped awning under which the Village had once discussed James Joyce and Modigliani, there was a neon sign which read, "Frozen Food Shoppe."

"Don't take it so hard, old-timer," said my missus. "The frozen veal scallopine is't so bad."

PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

I heard Eleanor laughing. "What's so funny?" I asked the missus, as I walked into her room.

"This," she said, holding up a copy of an old Ben Hecht book, "Count Bruga."

"Have you gotten to the part where the poet is running through Greenwich Village with chicken bones sticking to his coat?" I inquired.

"Solid murder," said the fire chief's daughter. "This is one of the funniest books I ever read. Why don't you take me to the Village some time?"

"Any time you say," I came back. "Once knew it pretty well. As a kid in high school, I used to pick up a few extra bucks there after school typing manuscripts for the writers."

On the way down to Greenwich Village the following Sunday, I spouted like the guide on the rubberneck wagons. I told Eleanor about Romany Marie's, where the poets and artists used to sit around eating breadsticks and arguing about Cezanne and Eugene V. Debs. I told her about the Pirate's Den, where Don Dickerman played host to characters with faces like John Carradine and Lionel Stander. And, of course, I told her about Harold Kent.

Billy Rose

Harold Kent, the poet, was as much of a landmark thirty years back as the statue of Garibaldi in Washington Square Park. His fullback shoulders and love poems had the girls breathing hard as far north as 14th Street.

In those days, as now, the supply of poetry far exceeded the demand. To get a bowl of soup, a poet would often have to go to a Bowery mission, where a blessing and a bath were included.

One day, the manager of a celebrated Village eating house met up with the legendary Kent. "I'm a great admirer of your work," he told the poet . . . "Anytime you're a little short, feel free to come in and stoke up. Just sign the tab."

Kent did. When the arrangement had been on for about a month, the members of the cult of which Kent was high priest noticed he was putting on a little weight. The poet would get to the restaurant every evening as the members of a string trio were tunning up their instruments. He would leave when they are putting them back in their cases. Between, he would work his way from the upper left-hand corner of the menu down to the line on the lower right, "Management not responsible for hats and coats."

The management liked this arrangement fine. In an open short and corduroy pants, the big fellow was the right touch of Village atmosphere for the uptown visitors.

But his disciples began to worry about Kent. As his waistline increased, his literary output diminished. When a whole week went by without Harold reading them a new poem, they called an emergency meeting. It was held in the back room of a basement antique shop. A sculptor from the Ukraine brought the meeting to order.

"Our friend," he intoned, "is being corrupted by a bourgaois bloodsucker. He is being seduced with minestrone and mussels marinere. We must fight back!"

At two that morning, a Dadaist from Flint, Michigan, came up with a plan.

The next day, the Ukranian sculptor tracked down Harold Kent in Washington Square Park. The poet was sunning himself and picking chicken cacciatore out of his teeth.

"My dear fellow," the sculptor told the poet, "you are being exploited. The manager of the restaurant is selling the signatures on the tabs you signed for fabulous amounts of money. I doubt whether you know how much a Harold Kent autograph is worthless."

That did it.

The exploited genius stomped into the restaurant that night and grabbed the manager by the necktie. "From now on," he stormed, "I sign nothing! I'll eat here, but if you want my signature on the tabs it will cost you $25 a day!"

Two of the poet's worshipping disciples picked him out of the gutter exactly fifteen seconds later.

"I'd like to see that restaurant," said Eleanor, as I paid off the taxi driver in front of the Brevoort Hotel.

We walked west on 8th Street. I felt thirty years younger as I ambled along the streets where O. Henry, Dreiser, Christopher Morley and Edna Millay had once walked.

"It's around the corner," I said to Eleanor, running a little bit ahead of her. Then I stopped. I felt a little silly. Instead of the striped awning under which the Village had once discussed James Joyce and Modigliani, there was a neon sign which read, "Frozen Food Shoppe."

"Don't take it so hard, old-timer," said my missus. "The frozen veal scallopine is't so bad."

Meanwhile, G. R. Advice To The Lovelorn

Married Women Advised Not To Leave Their Husbands On An Impulse

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a married woman and mother of three children. My husband is no good to me. Hs is very cruel, and has told me he doesn't love me any more. He is very jealous and doesn't allow me to go any place. He never takes me any place either. Sometimes I think his reason is because there is another woman, and I might find it out somehow.

I get so troubled sometimes that I say I'm going to leave, but I hate to leave my children and my home. He never gives me any money, and I have to wash and sew to get any. He says a woman doesn't need money. I don't want to leave, but if going away will help me, I can do that.

"M.H."

Dear "M.H."

I don't like to tell a woman to leave her husband, either. And I don't think she ought to do it as long as there is any hope at all that she can save the situation.

But at the same time, sometimes the only way—if there is any way at all—to save this kind of situation is to give it up. That is to say, if a woman does leave her husband, it may bring him to his senses and she can go back, after a temporary absence to a better deal. That is, of course, if he realizes he really loves and wants her.

But if he doesn't love her, and doesn't come after her with a sincere promise to make her happy if she comes back, then it would be disastrous for her to weaken and return of her own accord. It would be time then, definitely, for her to accept the fact that she's on her own permanently.

If you think there is no possible chance of your husband changing his attitude, then perhaps it is time for you to try such an experiment. But don't just walk out some day on an impulse, leaving your children behind. Don't do it at all without first working out, in advance, a definite plan as to how you are going to carry on.

Shouldn't Have Been So Hasty!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Last summer I went to a wedding with my girl friend. She met a very nice boy there who asked her out, and they fixed up a blind date for me with this boy's brother. I am 16 and he is 18.

This boy borrowed my ring and has not as yet returned it. The boys used to call up every week, but for the past few weeks we have not heard from them. We had a lot of fun on our last date, and I'm sure I did not do anything to hurt him.

Should I write and ask for my ring, or call him up?

"DISTRESSED".

Dear "Distressed:"

It's too bad you girls are always in such a hurry to hand over rings and class pins and pictures of yourselves to boys with whom you have no more than a casual acquaintance. Hardly a day goes by that I don't have several letters from girls who have done just this sort of thing, and then when the friendship cooled, are in just as much of a hurry to get their mementos back and feel awkward about asking for them.

If you want your ring back now, it would be perfectly all right either to call this boy up or write him a note and tell him so. But for heaven's sake, don't act as though it were a big issue between you. Kid him along with a "Hey, you! How about shooting that ring back to me? I need it to wear when I make my bow at court Friday night!"—or something. And next time you meet a boy, hang on to your property, unless you give him something you don't want back.

WANTED—NEW NATIONAL BACKBONES

Many a one will blame her. Mothers especially. Many will say she couldn't love her son and treat him so . . . then will toddle off to their numerous bars or bridge tables while their own teen agers proceed to raise Cain in their favorite jernts.

But I for one am saluting Mrs. Elizabeth Coombs for her courage and devotion. Yes, I said devotion. For it takes more than patty cake affection to turn your own flesh and blood over to the police when he ceases to be a boy and becomes a wild beast. It is a lot easier to shield on's self behind the phrase "mother love" and let the little darling steal, burn and kill to his heart's content.

Twice in his short seventeen years, young Robert Coombs had been sent to a reform school and twice he had been released against the protests of his mother. For she saw something beneath that sulky, handsome face and mop of curly hair which even the psychiatrists couldn't see, something alien and horrible.

So perhaps she was, in a way, braced for the shock when it came. This time they caught him red handed. It was no longer a childish prank. He'd raped and killed eleven year old Jacqueline Maxwell.

There's a picture of him being taken in with the cops trying to fight back the murderous mob. And it doesn't take much imagination to see that other mob which must have milled around her, his mother, cursing her for giving him up, telling her she wasn't fit to be a mother. But she faced them down.

"I am not tossing my boy to the wolves," she said. "But I am the mother of a daughter too and I would not like somebody like him running around loose. He should not have been released from the reform school."

Not fit to be a mother?

If we had more mothers like that in this country we would have 75 per cent less juvenile delinquency. More mothers with enough backbone to face the full responsibility of motherhood.

Motherhood used to be a full time job. You didn't "live your own life" when you maried fifty years ago. You assumed responsibility and you administered authority. You lived their lives for little Harry and Jim, Rosie and Nellie and Bess until they were old enough to live it for themselves. And if they ran amuck during that plastic period, you were to blame.

Nor did authority extend only to the home. It was part and parcel of our national life. It was expected of us as any other form of decency is expected of us now. Mothers didn't sit around bars then. They were waiting at home when the kids came back from school and if the youngsters brought home the wrong "deportment card", they faced not only the teacher's wrath but their parents'.

And we'll never get on top of this juvenile delinquency problem until we return to that sense of personal responsibility in the home. It wasn't an easy responsibility. It isn't easy to turn your boy over to the cops and perhaps to the electric chair. Your heart will break drop by drop for the rest of your life if you have any feelings at all. But civilization won't go to pieces as it is doing now. And the youngster who gets his ears slapped back early may not land in the jail later on.

Here's to you, Mrs. Coombes! May your tribe increase.

Nine Persons Hurt In Two Morning Auto Crashes

Nine persons were injured in two automobile accidents yesterday morning about 8:30 o'clock. Five persons were hurt in a two-car collision in front of Donahue's on Red Hill and four others were injured in another collision at the intersection of Nave's Crossroad and Shade's Lane.

Most seriously injured was Mrs. Helen Ann DeLoach, wife of Navy Lieut. Silas W. DeLoach, Humboldt, Tenn. She suffered multiple cuts about the entire body and was taken to Allegany Hospital for X-rays to determine the extent of other possible injuries.

Her husband, driving west, attempted to make a left turn into Donahue's and was struck by the eastbound machine driven by Paul M. Chabat, 30, Frostburg, salesman for the Carnegie Park Sportswear store here, police reported. DeLoach was treated at the hospital for possible back injuries, and Chabat was examined for possible chest injuries. He also was cut about the nose.

Earl Meagher and Winifred Fair, both of Frostburg, riding with Chabat suffered leg injuries in the collision.

Trooper William F. Baker, who investigated, said no charges were filed pending outcome of injuries of Mr. and Mrs. DeLoach.

In the other accident, William Woodrow Saylor, Frostburg, was cut about the tongue when his car collided with the automobile of Frank Shanholtz, 63, Amaranth, Pa., farmer, who escaped injury. Saylor and his wife, Mrs. Winifred Saylor, who suffered lacerations of the forehead and chin were treated in Allegany Hospital.

Miss Mary Harman, 43 Greene Street, suffered minor brush burns, and Mrs. Ethel Fletcher, 517 Conrad Avenue, injured her right ankle and shoulder in the crash. Both were occupants of the Saylor machine.

According to Trooper W. L. Wilt, Shanholtz was heading west on Nave's Crossroad when he attempted to turn left in Shade's Lane and ran into the path of Saylor's vehicle, headed east on Nave's Crossroad. Shanholtz was charged with failing to give the right of way.

Railroaders Confer On 1925 Strike Issue

C. A. Blackburn, 543 Arnett Terrace, chief engineer of Division 640, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineemen, and Charles A. Twigg, Elkins, W. Va., a member of the lodge, are in Cleveland, Ohio, representing the division at the annual conference of the brotherhood, C. A. Jewell, Ridgeley, W. Va., secretary-treasurer, reported last night.

Jewell said the delegates have been attending the session since March 10 on behalf of the members of the C. L. Bretz division who went on strike at the Western Maryland Railway in 1925 and have never gone back.

In the Cumberland area, Jewell said, there are 34 men who participated in the strike, one of longest in labor history.

Most seriously injured was Mrs. Helen Ann DeLoach, wife of Navy Lieut. Silas W. DeLoach, Humboldt, Tenn. She suffered multiple cuts about the entire body and was taken to Allegany Hospital for X-rays to determine the extent of other possible injuries.

Her husband, driving west, attempted to make a left turn into Donahue's and was struck by the eastbound machine driven by Paul M. Two Damage Actions Settled Out Of Court

Settlement has been reached by attorneys in two damage suits filed in Circuit Court, it was disclosed yesterday. A young girl is to receive $600 on a $10,000 damage claim for injuries in an auto mishap and the driver of a car in which she was riding is to receive $100 on a $2,500 claim, in another action.

Edna Kimmell, by her father and next friend, Claude Kimmell, filed suit against William L. Walker, driver of one car involved in a collision on the night of September 15, 1946, at the intersection of McMullen Highway and the Winchester Road, in Cresaptown. The girl, represented by John T. Fey, was in the car of Richard J. Bennett.

It was alleged that a car operated by Walker failed to stop at a boulevard stop sign and collided with Bennett's machine. The attorney said the child suffered internal injuries and facial cuts.

Bennett, also represented by Fey, alleged that his right knee was injured when the machines collided. William H. Geppert was counsel for Walker in both actions.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

NEW YORK, April 10 — It wouldn't be natural for Enterprise to let Charles Boyer get away without cashing in on "Arch of Triumph." So I couldn't be less surprised to hear they've ticketed him for another picture, "The Passion of Eugene Aram."

Miss Stanwyck and Barbara Stanwyck

Know about Aram? His trial was a sensation in England in 1759 when the learned and respected foreigner was brought to justice for a murder committed in his early youth. Running through the drama is the thread of his love for a girl much younger than himself, Madeline Lester. Edward Bulwer Lytton's story of Eugene and Madeline has become a classic.

This all comes first hand from Bob Taplinger, Enterprise's ambassador at large, who is in New York to launch "The Other Love." He tells me that the role of Madeline will be played by a femme star equal in importance to Mons. Boyer.

J. Arthur Rank isn't putting any obstacles in the path of Phyllis Calvert's Paramount contract even though he may privately feel he got a rank deal when she violated their "Handshake Contract."

Out in Hollywood, Paramount is getting "My Own True Love" ready for her with Melvyn Douglas as the co-star. It's the story of a sensitive widower who falls in love with a girl a generation younger than himself, who has very different viewpoints from his.

Somehow that all sounds a lot like "Cass Timberlane"—but maybe not.

Youth is having an unexpected fling on the Warner lot—thanks to Jack Warner. Two ex-GI's, Dietrich Hanneken, 25, and Aleck Block, 27, have just sold him an original, "Sunburst," which boy producer Randall MacDougall (32) will boss.

What's more—the screenplay is by Ruth Brooks whose age shall not be mentioned (I'm against that sort of thing) but who is just a blushing bride these days—Mrs. Jay C. Flippen, to be exact.

From time to time we columnists storm around for producers to give young people a break and now it looks like Jack has decided to go all out with this batch of newcomers.

However, I understand, the familiar faces of Ronald Reagan and Alexis Smith will top the cast of "Sunburst," for rare is the studio boss who dares to try two new stars at the same time.

From Hollywood I hear that Belita, who has been rowing with the King Brothers ever since she started her picture, has put her foot down and demanded that they double her salary. She said if they didn't, she would walk out.

Her idea is to take time out to travel with an ice show throughout the country. She believes she can make just as much money as Sonja Henie ever made. That's some potatoes.

Chatter from Baltimore: The town is all agog over the news that the Duke and Duchess of Windsor will be on hand for the Preakness, the big social race of the season. Gene Tierney, becoming more and more social, is also expected.

I tore myself away from my favorite doctor to accept the invitation of Morris Mechanic to go to the track today and apparently Baltimore and Washington are just as race mad as our own California. The place was jammed.

I sat in a box next to Charles Hanford, cousin-in-law of Dorothy Lamour. He told me that Bill Howard, Dottie's husband, is bringing several Argentine thoroughbreds to Hevre de Grace to race when the season opens later this month. On the Bowie program were two horses owned by Mrs. Harry James—Betty Grable, in case you have forgotten.

Just before leaving for Hollywood, Barbara Stanwyck, Robert Taylor, and Helen Ferguson came in for cocktails and Barbara was still full of her trip. She said she gave away every pair of shoes she took with her to Europe. "I just couldn't bear to see those poor people looking enviously at my feet," said Barbara. "Finally, I realized I only had one pair left, and they were practically worn through the soles. The first thing I did when I arrived in New York was to stock up again."

Bob's report was she really should have traded the old pair in. "After all," he said, "they only had about 46,000 miles on them."

Snapshots of Hollywood and New York collected at random: Lunching at "21" was Greg Bautzer who flew in with Arthur Lyon. They were on a business deal which they expect to close in a few days. I asked Greg why he didn't bring Joan Crawford along and he said, "I'd have liked to—but she couldn't get away." quietly romancing with Nancy Valentine.

Stopped to talk with Everett Crosby who told me Dixie had been in New York but had left and that Bing was in Chicago.

Hal Wallis, lunching with Anatole Litvak, was sailing the next day for London on the Queen Elizabeth, Ray Milland follows on the next boat.

Peter Rathvon stopped briefly in New York. He and Nicholas Schenck and other biggies of the industry are headed for Washington to confer with President Truman on consent decree law. They hope to get some important revisions.

Oleg Cassini is back in Hollywood

Cute romance at the Seacombers on the coast, was Dickie Moore, former child star, and Barbara Bodine.

Jack Carson says he's going into a surefire business. He's going to manufacture 11-foot poles for people who can't touch things with a 10-foot pole!

What's this about Robert Mitchum being out of the cast of "The Red Pony" before the picture even starts? True or false?

The Johnston office is organizing a legal department to bring suits against irresponsible people who slam Hollywood just to be sensational. High time, isn't it?

My deepest sympathing to Charlie Kemper whose 4-year-old daughter died unexpectedly Wednesday morning. The youngster had been struck by an automobile about a month ago and everyone thought her injuries were no more serious than a broken leg. But when she was taken back to the hospital to have the leg re-set a blood clot developed.

It's almost a sure thing that Joe Louis, the champ, will fight in California in September.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

NEW YORK, April 10 — It wouldn't be natural for Enterprise to let Charles Boyer get away without cashing in on "Arch of Triumph," So I couldn't be less surprised to hear they've ticketed him for another picture, "The Passion of Eugene Aram."

Miss Stanwyck

Know about Aram? His trial was a sensation in England in 1759 when the learned and respected foreigner was brought to justice for a murder committed in his early youth. Running through the drama is the thread of his love for a girl much younger than himself, Madeline Lester. Edward Bulwer Lytton's story of Eugene and Madeline has become a classic.

Barbara Stanwyck

This all comes first hand from Bob Taplinger, Enterprise's ambassador at large, who is in New York to launch "The Other Love." He tells me that the role of Madeline will be played by a femme star equal in importance to Mons. Boyer.

J. Arthur Rank isn't putting any obstacles in the path of Phyllis Calvert's Paramount contract even though he may privately feel he got a rank deal when she violated their "Handshake Contract."

Out in Hollywood, Paramount is getting "My Own True Love" ready for her with Melvyn Douglas as the co-star. It's the story of a sensitive widower who falls in love with a girl a generation younger than himself, who has very different viewpoints from his.

Somehow that all sounds a lot like "Cass Timberlane"—but maybe not.

Youth is having an unexpected fling on the Warner lot—thanks to Jack Warner. Two ex-GI's, Dietrich Hanneken, 25, and Aleck Block, 27, have just sold him an original,"Sunburst," which boy producer Randall MacDougall (32) will boss.

What's more—the screenplay is by Ruth Brooks whose age shall not be mentioned (I'm against that sort of thing) but who is just a blushing bride these days—Mrs. Jay C. Flippen, to be exact.

From time to time we columnists storm around for producers to give young people a break and now it looks like Jack has decided to go all out with this batch of newcomers.

However, I understand, the familiar faces of Ronald Reagan and Alexis Smith will top the cast of "Sunburst," for rare is the studio boss who dares to try two new stars at the same time.

From Hollywood I hear that Belita, who has been rowing with the King Brothers ever since she started her picture, has put her foot down and demanded that they double her salary. She said if they didn't, she would walk out.

Her idea is to take time out to travel with an ice show throughout the country. She believes she can make just as much money as Sonja Henie ever made. That's some potatoes.

Chatter from Baltimore: The town is all agog over the news that the Duke and Duchess of Windsor will be on hand for the Preakness, the big social race of the season. Gene Tierney, becoming more and more social, is also expected.

I tore myself away from my favorite doctor to accept the invitation of Morris Mechanic to go to the track today and apparently Baltimore and Washington are just as race mad as our own California. The place was jammed.

I sat in a box next to Charles Hanford, cousin-in-law of Dorothy Lamour. He told me that Bill Howard, Dottie's husband, is bringing several Argentine thoroughbreds to Hevre de Grace to race when the season opens later this month. On the Bowie program were two horses owned by Mrs. Harry James—Betty Grable, in case you have forgotten.

Just before leaving for Hollywood, Barbara Stanwyck, Robert Taylor, and Helen Ferguson came in for cocktails and Barbara was still full of her trip. She said she gave away every pair of shoes she took with her to Europe. "I just couldn't bear to see those poor people looking enviously at my feet," said Barbara. "Finally, I realized I only had one pair left, and they were practically worn through the soles. The first thing I did when I arrived in New York was to stock up again."

Bob's report was she really should have traded the old pair in. "After all," he said, "they only had about 46,000 miles on them."

Snapshots of Hollywood and New York collected at random: Lunching at "21" was Greg Bautzer who flew in with Arthur Lyon. They were on a business deal which they expect to close in a few days. I asked Greg why he didn't bring Joan Crawford along and he said, "I'd have liked to—but she couldn't get away." quietly romancing with Nancy Valentine.

Stopped to talk with Everett Crosby who told me Dixie had been in New York but had left and that Bing was in Chicago.

Hal Wallis, lunching with Anatole Litvak, was sailing the next day for London on the Queen Elizabeth, Ray Milland follows on the next boat.

Peter Rathvon stopped briefly in New York. He and Nicholas Schenck and other biggies of the industry are headed for Washington to confer with President Truman on consent decree law. They hope to get some important revisions.

Oleg Cassini is back in Hollywood Cute romance at the Seacombers on the coast, was Dickie Moore, former child star, and Barbara Bodine.

Jack Carson says he's going into a surefire business. He's going to manufacture 11-foot poles for people who can't touch things with a 10-foot pole!

What's this about Robert Mitchum being out of the cast of "The Red Pony" before the picture even starts? True or false?

The Johnston office is organizing a legal department to bring suits against irresponsible people who slam Hollywood just to be sensational. High time, isn't it?

My deepest sympathing to Charlie Kemper whose 4-year-old daughter died unexpectedly Wednesday morning. The youngster had been struck by an automobile about a month ago and everyone thought her injuries were no more serious than a broken leg. But when she was taken back to the hospital to have the leg re-set a blood clot developed.

It's almost a sure thing that Joe Louis, the champ, will fight in California in September.

KITTENS, MITTENS, and LIFE...

"Three little kittens lost their mittens . . ." Bobby is thoroughly absorbed in the antics of the kittens. He will be pleased to discover that at the end of the story they find their mittens again. Like all children, he wants his stories to have happy endings.

But soon Bobby is going to find out that life's stories don't all have happy endings. Bobby is growing up, out of the land of fairies and elves, into the world of reality. Bobby must learn to meet sorrow with understanding, pain with courage, prosperity with thankfulness, defeat with hope, success with humility—he must learn to face life.

The Church School is waiting with open doors for Bobby, your Bobby. The Church School is prepared to show your children the best ways to make life a success. The Church School is ready to teach your children—in the language of children—the eternal truths of life.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend and support the church of his choice. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to Church on Sunday and read your Bible daily.

KITTENS, MITTENS, and LIFE...

"Three little kittens lost their mittens . . ." Bobby is thoroughly absorbed in the antics of the kittens. He will be pleased to discover that at the end of the story they find their mittens again. Like all children, he wants his stories to have happy endings.

But soon Bobby is going to find out that life's stories don't all have happy endings. Bobby is growing up, out of the land of fairies and elves, into the world of reality. Bobby must learn to meet sorrow with understanding, pain with courage, prosperity with thankfulness, defeat with hope, success with humility—he must learn to face life.

The Church School is waiting with open doors for Bobby, your Bobby. The Church School is prepared to show your children the best ways to make life a success. The Church School is ready to teach your children—in the language of children—the eternal truths of life.

Second Baptist Names Three New Deacons

Three new deacons, Paul Williams, Fermis W. Hoffman and Meredith Shyrock, were elected by the Second Baptist Church at its monthly meeting this week.

Reporting that the financial condition of the church is favorable, Charles Hunt, treasurer, said a letter was sent to the state secretary of missions in Baltimore, asking that the mission goal of the church be raised from $750 to $1,000.

Rev. J. C. Ledbetter, pastor, will conduct a study course for Sunday school teacher training this month. Miss Grace Swanson has been named choir director to succeed Mrs. Keith Ryan, who has moved from Cumberland.

Cash Bequests Made In Willison Will

Cash bequests to several friends and relatives, including $500 to Miss Henrietta Schwarzenbach for use of the Crippled Children's League of Allegany County, were included in the will of Miss Emma Willison, who died March 25 at her home on Washington Street. She also left $1,000 to her maid, Bessie May Williams.

Mary Dorothy Willison, music instructor at Allegany High School, was bequeathed $5,000; Mrs. Walter L. Bowers, $500; Mrs. J. Thurston Boyd, $100; Mrs. Douglas P. LeFevre, $100; and $1,000 was left to the Liberty Trust Company to be used for erecting a monument on the Willison lot in Rose Hill Cemetery.

The balance of the estate is left to Emmanuel Episcopal Church, to apply on the church debt.

The will was filed for probate in Orphans Court yesterday, and was dated August 24, 1944. It was witnessed by Charles A. Piper, John J. Robinson, and Thomas L. Keech. Miss Willison was a member of an early family in this county.

The will of Charles E. Bishop, formerly of Washington County, was also admitted to probate yesterday. He died at his home here March 30. The document was drawn September 19, 1925, and witnessed by C. Dale Dyer and Ross Dyer. The will names his widow, Mrs. Amanda A. Bishop, as sole beneficiary and executrix.

Correction

The American Legion posts of the Mountain District will hold their next meeting Sunday, April 20, at the home of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, and not tomorrow as was announced in the NEWS Friday morning, Samuel A. Graham, vice-commander announced. Final plans for the "I Am An American Day" observance in Frostburg, May 18 will be made at the meeting.

Today's Talk

Too Much—Too Fast

Henry D. Thoreau, a hundred years ago, retired to his modest cabin on Walden Pond, that he might reduce life to its best (and most useful) common denominator. He built the cabin with his own hands at a cost of less than fifty dollars. And then he wrote a handful of books that are read eagerly by millions to this day.

Thoreau took time to think things out. Especially to think out the meaning of life. Today the minority alone do this—and a very small minority at that! What do we have now? Books, books, books—magazines by the carload. How are they digested? They are not. Too many of them are of the lunch-counter variety—read them quickly, and on your way. Digested for you—you who are in such a hurry to get somewhere, without knowing where!

Montaigne, retired to his "castle" that he might think, and then record his thoughts. He wrote but one book—the frankest in all literry history—but it has lasted, and is read hundreds of years after his death. Of the thousands of books now speeding off the presses, how many will be read a dozen years from now? The good book does not die young but lives forever!

There are more people doing our thinking for us today than in all the history of the world. We are more interested in perfecting something that will destroy life than to preserve it. Yet the first seller in the non-fiction books is one entitled "Peace of Mind"! That is something to think about. It proves that there are those who hunger for this peace of mind during such days of fear and confusion, in which we now live.

We have too much, and we rush too much. We forget the wise saying of Tagore that "the road is a part of the destination." In that exquisite essay of Stevenson's "The Lantern Bearers" he comments that "to miss the joy is to miss all." Said Thoreau: "Simplify, simplify." Our forefathers taught us that — and that is what gave birth to the soul of America.

From the simple, and mostly unnoticed, in Nature have sprung two of America's greatest poets—Walt Whiteman and Robert Frost.

Second Baptist Names Three New Deacons

Three new deacons, Paul Williams, Permis W. Hoffman and Meredith Shyrock, were elected by the Second Baptist Church at its monthly meeting this week.

Reporting that the financial condition of the church is favorable, Charles Hunt, treasurer, said a letter was sent to the state secretary of missions in Baltimore, asking that the mission goal of the church be raised from $750 to $1,000.

Rev. J. C. Ledbetter, pastor, will conduct a study course for Sunday school teacher training this month. Miss Grace Swanson has been named choir director to succeed Mrs. Keith Ryan, who has moved from Cumberland.

Cash Bequests Made In Willison Will

Cash bequests to several friends and relatives, including $500 to Miss Henrietta Schwarzenbach for use of the Crippled Children's League of Allegany County, were included in the will of Miss Emma Willison, who died March 25 at her home on Washington Street. She also left $1,000 to her maid, Bessie May Williams.

Mary Dorothy Willison, music instructor at Allegany High School, was bequeathed $5,000; Mrs. Walter L. Bowers, $500; Mrs. J. Thurston Boyd, $100; Mrs. Douglas P. LeFevre, $100; and $1,000 was left to the Liberty Trust Company to be used for erecting a monument on the Willison lot in Rose Hill Cemetery.

The balance of the estate is left to Emmanuel Episcopal Church, to apply on the church debt.

The will was filed for probate in Orphans Court yesterday, and was dated August 24, 1944. It was witnessed by Charles A. Piper, John J. Robinson, and Thomas L. Keech. Miss Willison was a member of an early family in this county.

The will of Charles E. Bishop, formerly of Washington County, was also admitted to probate yesterday. He died at his home here March 30. The document was drawn September 19, 1925, and witnessed by C. Dale Dyer and Ross Dyer. The will names his widow, Mrs. Amanda A. Bishop, as sole beneficiary and executrix.

Correction

The American Legion posts of the Mountain District will hold their next meeting Sunday, April 20, at the home of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, and not tomorrow as was announced in the NEWS Friday morning. Samuel A. Graham, vice-commander announced. Final plans for the "I Am An American Day" observance in Frostburg, May 18 will be made at the meeting.

Today's Talk

Too Much—Too Fast

Henry D. Thoreau, a hundred years ago, retired to his modest cabin on Walden Pond, that he might reduce life to its best (and most useful) common denominator. He built the cabin with his own hands at a cost of less than fifty dollars. And then he wrote a handful of books that are read eagerly by millions to this day.

Thoreau took time to think things out. Especially to think out the meaning of life. Today the minority alone do this—and a very small minority at that! What do we have now? Books, books, books—magazines by the carload. How are they digested? They are not. Too many of them are of the lunch-counter variety—read them quickly, and on your way. Digested for you—you who are in such a hurry to get somewhere, without knowing where!

Montaigne, retired to his "castle" that he might think, and then record his thoughts. He wrote but one book—the frankest in all literry history—but it has lasted, and is read hundreds of years after his death. Of the thousands of books now speeding off the presses, how many will be read a dozen years from now? The good book does not die young but lives forever!

There are more people doing our thinking for us today than in all the history of the world. We are more interested in perfecting something that will destroy life than to preserve it. Yet the first seller in the non-fiction books is one entitled "Peace of Mind"! That is something to think about. It proves that there are those who hunger for this peace of mind during such days of fear and confusion, in which we now live.

We have too much, and we rush too much. We forget the wise saying of Tagore that "the road is a part of the destination." In that exquisite essay of Stevenson's "The Lantern Bearers" he comments that "to miss the joy is to miss all." Said Thoreau: "Simplify, simplify." Our forefathers taught us that — and that is what gave birth to the soul of America.

From the simple, and mostly unnoticed, in Nature have sprung two of America's greatest poets—Walt Whiteman and Robert Frost.

Graziano's Application For License Denied

May Fight Zale For Middleweight Title In Chicago

Quick Action Taken By Commission

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK, April 11 (AP)—The State Athletic Commission today just about chased the highly-touted Tony Zale-Rocky Graziano middleweight title fight—and its expected half-million-dollar gate—out of New York and into Chicago.

The august fistic fathers flatly turned down Graziano's application for his boxing license, which was revoked two months ago because of his failure to report a $100,000 "fix" offer he said he thought was a joke. And immediately Rocky's manager, Irving Cohen, explained "there doesn't seem anything else to do but take the fight to Chicago."

Cohen To See Pian

As a result, Cohen will huddle with Sam Pian, manager of Champion Zale, in Cleveland, probably on Tuesday to talk over some of the plans for the fight. Pian, in New York several days ago, said he was more interested in Rocky as a title opponent than European Middleweight Champion Marcel Cerdan.

He figured the local knockout-specialist would draw more at the gate, as a result of the sensational Graziano-Zale brawl last September which Tony won by a six-round knockout. And Pian added that if the fight couldn't be held in New York—because of the revocation of Rocky's license—it might be put on in Wrigley Field or Soldier Field in Chicago in June, because Graziano is barred from belting only in New York.

Cohen and Rocky found out the worst from the commission today in a session that lasted less than five minutes. They base their appeal for reinstatement of Rocky's license on the fact that since the revocation, February 7, Graziano had accepted no offers to fight outside the state and had committed no action to which the commission could take exception.

Rocky's permit to punch was taken away after a commission hearing concerning his scheduled fight with Ruben Shank in Madison Square Garden 1st December. The fight never came off because Rocky complained of a bad back.

"There is nothing new in the matter since the formal hearing and decision by the commission," Eagan told him today. "Graziano is advised that the commission will not consider a new application by Graziano to box in the jurisdiction of New York State."

Graziano drew the most serious rebuff of commission meeting which saw several others win their pleas, or at least receive some hope.

Other Action Taken

Manager Al Weill and ex-welterweight champion Marty Servo, for instance, were told that their applications for reinstatement from suspensions would be entertained by the commission, and Los Angeles welterweight Jimmy Doyle, who boxes champion Ray Robinson for the title in Cleveland May 30, was granted his license.

Servo and Weill have been on the suspended list since Servo was forced to abdicate his title and retire because of an injured nose last September.

Doyle had been suspended in January after the Ohio Commission ruled the local board he might be suffering from head injuries as the result of a bout with Artie Levine in Cleveland. Eagan explained the New York Commission physician, Dr. Vincent Nardiello, has examined the Californian and "gave his approval" for him to fight.

Billy Fox Hits Comeback Trail, Stops Kochan

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK, April 11 (AP)—Billy Fox, the Philadelphia flailer with the fight game's all-time knockout record, started up the light-heavyweight comeback trail tonight by stopping the durable New York barber, Georgia Kochan, in the seventh round of a 10-rounder in St. Nicholas Arena. Fox weighed 175¼; Kochan 177½.

Making his frist start since his knockout by Champion Gus Lesnevich in a title bid five weeks ago—which ended his run of 43 straight knockouts in his professional career—the tan thumper from the Quaker City came off the floor from a first round knockdown and recovered from two cut eyes before catching up with Kochan at 2:12 of the seventh round.

With the local hair-clipper, who used to hang his hat in Akron, Ohio, until he opened his shop here, trying to get up from his second knockdown in half-a-minute, Referee Rohnny Byrne stepped in and halted the proceedings after six and a fraction rounds of pier six brawling that had a sellout crowd of 3,942 fans on their chairs and roaring throughout.

For a while there, it looked as though Barber Georgie was going to come up with the fanciest surprise seen in these parts in quite a spell. A 16-to-5 underdog against the awesome wrecker who had flattened him in their first meeting two years ago, Kochan walked out as if he owned this entire arena—and particularly Billy from Philly. And the first thing you know, there was Fox on the floor from a left hook—and it looked like curtains.

He was up at nine, and came on to win the second and third rounds, forcing Georgie to hold on, but he was obviously still suffering from the knockdown, and in the confusion, Kochan cut his right eye, with a scraping left to the head in the second.

This bled so freely, that Referee Byrne contemplated stopping the fight at the end of the fourth, then let it continue, after a doctor examined the injury between rounds.

Going into the seventh, it was as close as ham-and-eggs. Then Fox found the range. A left hand put Georgie down for a seven-count early in the round. Soon after he got up, Billy was on him again. Opening up with both his artillery pieces, he levelled on Kochan, caught him with another booming hook, and Georgie went down. He tried to climb up at "seven", but Referee Byrne figured enough was enough—if not too much. And the fans, who chipped in to a gross gate of $12,744 figured they'd got their money's worth.

Abel Cestac Knocks Out Walter Hafer

CHICAGO, April 11 (AP)—Abel Cestac, of Buenos Aires, 220 pound heavyweight protege of Jack Dempsey and Louis Angel Firpo, knocked out Walter Hafer, 200½ pounds, tough 22 year ex-marine of Dayton, Ohio, in the fourth round of their scheduled 10 round bout tonight.

Cestac, staggering and nearly knocked out in the first round, came back to outfight Hafer, whose stamina wilted under the terrific pace.

Hafer clouted the South American with a right to the chin in the first round and then knocked him sagging into the ropes with another right. Cestac was cut and bleeding in the second, but he began to move ahead and outfought Hafer at close range.

Longshot Wins

BOWIE, Md., April 11 (AP) — Mrs. Kate Ayer's aim was poor for a few minutes today as she speared hot dogs for hungry fans at a concession where she works under the Bowie grandstands.

Her nine-year-old mare, Bee Larkmead, had just won the first race.

A longshot, the ancient horse captured the $1,500 purse in a $2,000 claiming race, paying $25, $11.60 and $8.40.

Mrs. Ayer, who could "hardly talk," said she had a small bet down on Bee Larkmead.

Robinson Fails To Get Hit But Bats In 3 Runs

Plays Entire Game As Dodgers Win

By JOE REICHLER

BROOKLYN, April 11 (AP)—Jackie Robinson, Negro Brooklyn infielder, had the unique distinction of batting in three runs although he failed to hit safely in five trips to the plate in his Major League debut today as his Dodger mates humbled the New York Yankees, 14-6 in the first of a three-game weekend exhibition series.

The flashy Montreal alumnus, trying desperately to answer the pleas of 24,237 Ebbets Field fans for a base knock, managed to connect solidly twice, flying out to deep left in the third and lining out to center in a wild 11-run fifth inning. Each time a man scored easily from third after the catch.

A total of 15 Dodgers batted in the fifth, six hitting safely, three reaching base via walks and two on a pair of errors by Shortstop Phil Rizzuto.

Robinson, batting twice in that frame, reached first on a fielder's choice his first time up. Tom Tatum, who had singled, scored on the play. In Jackie's other appearances, he flied to short center in the first, and was safe on an intended sacrifice in the seventh on an error by Pitcher Spud Chandler.

Robinson, stationed at first base by Acting Manager Clyde Sukeforth, handled 15 chances flawlessly. They were all of the easy variety. He played through the entire nine innings.

"I plan to give Robinson a thorough trial at first base" Sukeforth said before the game. "If he fails to make it, he will be used in a utility role either at second, short or third. I am satisfied he can play any of the infield positions."

After the game, Sukeforth said he purposely let Robinson go the route "because I want him to get the feel of playing in the Big Leagues.

"The boy was bound to be nervous, playing in the Big Leagues for the first time and I felt it best to get it out of his system now rather than wait for the regular season."

Johnny Lindell, Joe DiMaggio's replacement at center, paced the Yankees' nine-hit attack with a triple and a booming two-run homer.

Our Action Taken

Manager Al Weill and ex-welterweight champion Marty Servo, for instance, were told that their applications for reinstatement from suspensions would be entertained by the comission, and Los Angeles welterweight Jimmy Doyle, who boxes champion Ray Robinson for the title in Cleveland May 30, was granted his license.

Servo and Weill have been on the suspended list since Servo was forced to abdicate his title and retire because of an injured nose last September.

Doyle had been suspended in January after the Ohio Commission notified the local board he might be suffering from head injuries as the result of a bout with Artie Levine in Cleveland. Eagan explained the New York Commission physician, Dr. Vincent Nardiello, has examined the Californian and "gave his approval" for him to fight.

Mentaineer Nine Lœs To Ohio U.

ATHENS, O., April 11 (AP)—Ohio University's Bobcats capitalized on a West Virginia errors to take the opening tilt of their two-game series here today, 7 to 5.

Ohio's Don Poling held the Mountaineers to only one hit in the first seven innings but trailed 2 to 1 until the sixth when his mates knocked out five straight hits, good for four runs. West Virginia came back to bag three runs in the eighth, sending Poling to the showers but the Bobcats counted in their half of the inning and Mark Wylie blanked the Mountaineers in the ninth to clinch the victory.

Linscore:

WEST VIRGINIA	101	000	030—5 3 6
OHIO U	100	004	11x—7 11 2

Jockey Is Suspended

BOWIE, Md., April 11 (AP)—Jockey William Gillespie was suspended today for the last two days of the Bowie race meeting by order of the stewards. Gillespie was set down "for careless riding" aboard La-Osuna in the eighth event on last Wednesday's card.

HE'S BERRA GOOD—Go ahead and smile, Yogi, you really have something to grin about this spring. Yogi is Yogi Berra, the St. Louis kid who's going to win a starting berth with the New York Yankees this year. Yogi has been blasting the ball in practice games. He comes up from Newark where he hit .314 last season.

Billy Fox Hits Comeback Trail, Stops Kochan

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK, April 11 (AP)—Billy Fox, the Philadelphia flailer with the fight game's all-time knockout record, started up the light-heavyweight comeback trail tonight by stopping the durable New York barber, Georgia Kochan, in the seventh round of a 10-rounder in St. Nicholas Arena. Fox weighed 175¼; Kochan 177½.

Making his frist start since his knockout by Champion Gus Lesnevich in a title bid five weeks ago—which ended his run of 43 straight knockouts in his professional career—the tan thumper from the Quaker City came off the floor from a first round knockdown and recovered from two cut eyes before catching up with Kochan at 2:12 of the seventh round.

With the local hair-clipper, who used to hang his hat in Akron, Ohio, until he opened his shop here, trying to get up from his second knockdown in half-a-minute, Referee Rohnny Byrne stepped in and halted the proceedings after six and a fraction rounds of pier six brawling that had a sellout crowd of 3,942 fans on their chairs and roaring throughout.

For a while there, it looked as though Barber Georgie was going to come up with the fanciest surprise seen in these parts in quite a spell. A 16-to-5 underdog against the awesome wrecker who had flattened him in their first meeting two years ago, Kochan walked out as if he owned this entire arena—and particularly Billy from Philly. And the first thing you know, there was Fox on the floor from a left hook—and it looked like curtains.

He was up at nine, and came on to win the second and third rounds, forcing Georgie to hold on, but he was obviously still suffering from the knockdown, and in the confusion, Kochan cut his right eye, with a scraping left to the head in the second.

This bled so freely, that Referee Byrne contemplated stopping the fight at the end of the fourth, then let it continue, after a doctor examined the injury between rounds.

Going into the seventh, it was as close as ham-and-eggs. Then Fox found the range. A left hand put Georgie down for a seven-count early in the round. Soon after he got up, Billy was on him again. Opening up with both his artillery pieces, he levelled on Kochan, caught him with another booming hook, and Georgie went down. He tried to climb up at "seven", but Referee Byrne figured enough was enough—if not too much. And the fans, who chipped in to a gross gate of $12,744 figured they'd got their money's worth.

Abel Cestac Knocks Out Walter Hafer

CHICAGO, April 11 (AP)—Abel Cestac, of Buenos Aires, 220 pound heavyweight protege of Jack Dempsey and Louis Angel Firpo, knocked out Walter Hafer, 200½ pounds, tough 22 year ex-marine of Dayton, Ohio, in the fourth round of their scheduled 10 round bout tonight.

Cestac, staggering and nearly knocked out in the first round, came back to outfight Hafer, whose stamina wilted under the terrific pace.

Hafer clouted the South American with a right to the chin in the first round and then knocked him sagging into the ropes with another right. Cestac was cut and bleeding in the second, but he began to move ahead and outfought Hafer at close range.

Jackie Burke, Minneapolis, Minn., 160, defeated the veteran Harvey Dubs, Windsor, Ont., 155½, in a toe-to-toe slugging six rounder, Burke dropped Dubs for a nine count in the fifth round with a right to the jaw.

Longshot Wins

BOWIE, Md., April 11 (AP) — Mrs. Kate Ayer's aim was poor for a few minutes today as she speared hot dogs for hungry fans at a concession where she works under the Bowie grandstands.

Her nine-year-old mare, Bee Larkmead, had just won the first race.

A longshot, the ancient horse captured the $1,500 purse in a $2,000 claiming race, paying $25, $11.60 and $8.40.

Mrs. Ayer, who could "hardly talk," said she had a small bet down on Bee Larkmead.

Robinson Fails To Get Hit But Bats In 3 Runs

By JOE REICHLER

BROOKLYN, April 11 (AP)—Jackie Robinson, Negro Brooklyn infielder, had the unique distinction of batting in three runs although he failed to hit safely in five trips to the plate in his Major League debut today as his Dodger mates humbled the New York Yankees, 14-6 in the first of a three-game weekend exhibition series.

The flashy Montreal alumnus, trying desperately to answer the pleas of 24,237 Ebbets Field fans for a base knock, managed to connect solidly twice, flying out to deep left in the third and lining out to center in a wild 11-run fifth inning. Each time a man scored easily from third after the catch.

A total of 15 Dodgers batted in the fifth, six hitting safely, three reaching base via walks and two on a pair of errors by Shortstop Phil Rizzuto.

Robinson, batting twice in that frame, reached first on a fielder's choice his first time up. Tom Tatum, who had singled, scored on the play. In Jackie's other appearances, he flied to short center in the first, and was safe on an intended sacrifice in the seventh on an error by Pitcher Spud Chandler.

Robinson, stationed at first base by Acting Manager Clyde Sukeforth, handled 15 chances flawlessly. They were all of the easy variety. He played through the entire nine innings.

"I plan to give Robinson a thorough trial at first base" Sukeforth said before the game. "If he fails to make it, he will be used in a utility role either at second, short or third. I am satisfied he can play any of the infield positions."

After the game, Sukeforth said he purposely let Robinson go the route "because I want him to get the feel of playing in the Big Leagues.

"The boy was bound to be nervous, playing in the Big Leagues for the first time and I felt it best to get it out of his system now rather than wait for the regular season."

Robinson's mates more than made up for his mediocre showing at the plate by hammering four Yankee pitchers, including aces Floyd Bevens and Chandler, for 16 safeties.

Johnny Lindell, Joe DiMaggio's replacement at center, paced the Yankees' nine-hit attack with a triple and a booming two-run homer.

3 Men Injured Clearing B & O Train Wreckage

18 Cars Derailed At Doe Gully, W. Va.

Three Cumberland men were injured, one seriously, early yesterday morning when a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad crane overturned as crews were attempting to remove the wreckage of a $20,000, 18-car derailment which occurred Thursday at Doe Gully, W. Va., 38 miles from here.

Hits Broken Rail

B. and O. officials said Train No. 94, a fast freight, struck a broken rail in the Magnolia cutoff Thursday morning at 10:25 o'clock and 18 of the 64 cars were derailed. None of the train crew was injured, they stated.

Railroad officials said the engine of the train, which was making a run from Cumberland to Brunswick, passed over the broken rail, but the fourth car in the train was derailed when it struck the imperfect track and the fifth car also left the track. Cars between the fifth and 25th inclusive remained upright, but cars 26 to 42 were derailed, they said.

Damage to track and equipment was estimated at $20,000, but railroad officials said they could give no estimate of the damaged merchandise until the salvage job is completed. They added the train was carrying several cars of automobiles, shortening, bottles, and other "high class" merchandise.

The "main track," which does not pass through the cutoff, is being used for all freight and passenger trains, until the debris can be cleaned from the wreck, officials said. They estimated that the "low tracks" passing through the cutoff will be cleared by this morning.

Officials said the wrecking crew was sent out on a Cumberland crane Thursday morning shortly after the wreck to begin clearing the tracks. Work proceded rapidly until the crane overturned short after midnight an employe stated.

Employes said Rice, who was working as "crane runner," and Zollner, the fireman, jumped from the platform of the crane as it began to overturn, but Randall, who was working on the ground was struck by the boom which broke loose and was swinging as the crane went down.

Injured Brought Here

The injured men were brought back to Cumberland on East Bound No. 15 passenger train and were admitted to the hospital at 1:15 a. m. Friday. They were taken to the hospital from the train in an ambulance.

Hospital attaches said Rice's and Zollner's fractures have been reduced and casts applied, but stated that Randall underwent surgical treatment last night.

While the train schedule was not affected by the wreck, officials said it was necessary to run both passenger and freight service over the "main tracks" which ordinarily are used only for slow freights. They declared that a great deal of congestion has resulted.

Officials would not say immediately just how much of the merchandise was damaged, but said they expected to salvage a "big" percentage of it. They added that no word has been received here to indicate whether the derailed cars had broken open and scattered the merchandise or not.

The broken rail was described as a flaw which sometimes occurs in rails but said it cannot be detected by inspecting crews until it actually breaks. In all probability the engine and first three cars caused the actual break which then throwed the No. 4 car, they declared.

Officials said last night that an investigation is now underway to determine what caused the crane to topple over.

Trophy Is Secured For Air Derby Here

A facsimile of the famed Thompson Trophy, traditionally awarded at the Labor Day air races at Cleveland Airport, has been secured by Russell H. Shafer of the Exchange Club aviation committee as first prize in the cross-country air derby to be held at Mexico Farms airport on Sunday, May 11.

In addition to the trophy, winner of the derby will receive $200 in cash. Second and third prizes will be $100 and $50, respectively.

The committee announced last night that 10 entries have been secured to date from pilots of Cumberland, Winchester, Va., Martinsburg and Moorefield, W. Va., and Bedford, Pa.

Light planes of 100 horsepower or under may be entered in the derby, which will be flown over a course of 110 air miles from Mexico Farms to Martinsburg and Winchester and return. Light plane manufacturers are being checked regarding the cruising speed of each type of ship, and mathematical calculations will be made to determine necessary handicaps.

Various types of planes already entered include Aeronca, Piper Super-Cruiser, Cessna, Ercoupe and Taylorcraft. Contestants must hold a private pilot's license or better, and must submit their applications to the Exchange Club, Box 882, on or before April 25.

In the event various contributions from sponsors of the meet exceed expectations, it is planned to refund the $5 entrance fee to the contestants. Free gasoline will be provided for planes taking part in the derby by a national oil firm.

While the race is in progress, Richard Hockman, Winchester, will put on an exhibition of parachute jumping at the Mexico Farms airport.

Viewpoints On Fast Time Here

QUESTION: Do you favor adoption of daylight saving time for Allegany County?

Mrs. Margaret G. Gerdeman, 7 Market Street, employed as a cashier in Martin's Shops: I do. I come from Boston where they have had daylight saving time in the summer months for several years and it is very convenient. It gives working people more time for outdoor activities in the evening, and I certainly don't see how it would be harmful to business.

Mrs. Vincent Monahan, 226 Valley Street, clerk in People's Drug Store: Absolutely. It would give everybody more time to themselves during the summer months. I would like to see it introduced in Cumberland and Allegany County this Summer. I don't see how it would possibly hurt business places and it would give the working people a chance to enjoy many daylight hours during the summer evenings.

Mrs. Leona Hager, 458 Goethe Street, floor girl at McCrory's Store: Yes, I think it would be a good thing for all of the clerks and I cannot see where it would cause any great inconvenience during the summer months. It would give everyone a chance to enjoy outdoor activities or to get a great deal of outdoor work done during the summer evenings that otherwise they will have to pass up.

Miss Kathryn Drummond, Mt. Savage, clerk in Rosenbaum's Store: Yes, I do very much so. I think it would be more helpful to people because so many other states will be having daylight saving time and all the radio programs will be scheduled on the summer time. I think it would also be very convenient for the clerks and other persons who are working, since they would have longer evening for outdoor activities during the summer months.

Miss Emily P. Hyde, Barton Md., secretary in the G. C. Murphy Stores: Sure, I'm in favor of daylight saving time. I think it would be very beneficial. The time lost in the morning would more than be made up in the evening when everyone had a few extra daylight hours to take advantage of. I believe too, it would give everybody a better opportunity to shop during the cooler hours of the day in the hot summer months. Once it was changed I don't think anyone would notice the difference in the morning.

Mrs. Virginia Lee Roth, 427 Goethe Street mail order clerk at Sears Roebuck's Store: I sure do favor it. It would make the day seem much longer. I think it would be better to come to work an hour earlier and then get the time off in the evening while it is still daylight. It would give us all an opportunity to enjoy many outdoor activities that we otherwise will have to miss. I'm very much in favor of it.

Miss Patricia Sutkamp, cashier in Peskin's Store: I worked under the daylight saving system in Ohio and I liked it very much. It always seemed like the days were not so long and you had more daylight time to spend in the evenings. Most of the people in Ohio, that I knew found it to be very satisfactory and I would certainly like to see it started here. I have lived here two years now, and I miss it in the summer time.

Mrs. Nellie LaGratta, 611 Bedford Street, clerk in the Cumberland Cloak and Suit Store: I like the idea very much. You see, I lived in several cities where they have had daylight saving time for many years, and I found it very convenient. While living in one city in West Virginia, I wasn't working but the extra daylight hours in the evening always seemed so enjoyable. It would be very nice for the working people in this section if daylight time were installed and I don't see how it would hurt business at all.

Mine Inspectors Begin Checking Closed Operations

Waynesburg Coal Is Declared Safe

Federal mine inspectors are reported to have inspected and found safe, one of three closed mines in this county, and are scheduled to make an early inspection of the other two.

The mine certified as safe is the Waynesburg mine of the Georges Creek Coal Company located at Lonaconing. It is a big vein operation and considered one of the largest in the county, employing over 125 men and producing upwards of 700 tons daily.

Eckhart Mine No. 10 and Hoffman Mine No. 3, of the Consolidated Fuel Company remain closed by Federal order, although it was learned last night that some repairs and improvements are underway, so that the operations will comply with all safety regulations and recommendations in recent federal inspection reports.

Jenkins Won't Comment

It was indicated that Eckhart Mine was scheduled for an inspection yesterday, but it was not fully determined if the inspection was completed. William Jenkins, an official of the Consolidated Company declined to discuss the situation or comment last night.

The Waynesburg Mine was inspected yesterday by the two visiting Federal men and declared safe for production. Representatives of the Company, the Union and the Mine Safety Committee, accompanied Federal inspectors, and approved their findings. Telegrams were sent to the coal administrator at Washington, D. C.

As soon as Washington acts on this report the mines can resume operation. Robert L. Stallings, president of the company said last night that the Federal inspectors made a thorough and careful examination of the operation and aside from a few minor recommendations found the mines safe for production. He expressed the hope that the mines can be opened Monday, saying that the coal administrator will act quickly as everyone is anxious to have production begin.

Other operations of the Georges Creek Coal Company, three smaller mines which were not ordered closed are already in production, Stallings said.

Shipments Increasing

David Watkins, international representative of District 16, United Mine Workers of America, said last night he has learned nothing new in the shut-down situation and many miners remain idle, awaiting the result of scheduled inspections.

He said much of the coal being shipped by railroad here is from strip mine operations explaining that only a few of the deep mines are working at all, and most of these on partial production.

When he was told that inspectors had visited the Waynesburg Mine and declared it safe for production, he said "that's what the men want. They want to know if the workings are safe. Too many miners are being hurt and killed. Nine more were killed yesterday over in the Wilkesbarre, Pa., area."

Railroads here report coal shipments about 75 to 80 per cent of normal, stating that some deep mines are producing some coal, others remain closed, and most of the coal being shipped is from strip mine operations.

Farewell Breakfast Will Mark Close Of Thespian Conference

Dr. Atwater Speaks At Banquet Here

A "Farewell Breakfast", to be held this morning at Central Y. M. C. A., will conclude the activities of the first Thespian Conference of Maryland troupes, which opened here yesterday morning. Prof. Maurice Matteson, instructor of music at Frostburg State Teachers College, will be guest speaker.

Well known, locally and nationally, for his contributions in folk music research and in composition, the speaker will talk to the Thespians on "Music in Drama", illustrating his remarks with instrumental and vocal music. Barbara Bright, a member of the Allegany High School troupe will introduce the speaker.

Delores Chase, Fort Hill High School Thespian, will act as mistress of ceremonies, and Ann Martin, of Allegany, will give the invocation. A farewell gift will be a souvenir directory of the Maryland Troupes, edited by Jean Allen and printed and mimeographed by John Ferguson and Miss Claire Livesay. Special guests will include Mrs. Matteson, Victor D. Heisey and Ralph R. Webster.

Dr. Atwater Speaks

The conference will conclude with a farewell message by Wilma King, president of the Inter-School National Thespian Council. The committee in charge of arrangements for the breakfast includes Delores Chase, Miss Gerardine Pritchard and Miss Orpha-Bonita Pritchard.

Dr. Elizabeth Atwater, professor of speech at Potomac State College, was guest speaker at the banquet of the Thespians, held last night at the Ali Ghan Shrine Club. In her address entitled, "At The Theater", she listed famous play-writers of Europe and the British Isles and said, that although Americans think they have many very good play makers, there is only one who is internationally recognized and he is Eugene O'Neill. This is true for the most part, she explained, because America is interested primarily in the "little theater", that includes community, church and school theaters.

Drama has been in existence since the beginning of time, the speaker stated, and those who "dabble", however insignificantly, in theater work "touch the hem of eternity", she concluded.

Wilma King served as mistress of ceremonies at the banquet and brief talks were given on the various ages of drama by Carolyn Ringler, Lorraine Kompanek and Donald Tharpe. Piano selections were played by Sam Hunter, Beall High School student, and two vocal selections were given by Robert Crabtree, a student at Fort Hill.

Group singing was led by Mrs. Betty Winters. A "spotlighting" of guests was held and each gave a brief talk. Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools in Allegany County, commented on the poise of the group members and thanked them for the opportunity of meeting with them.

Give Dramatic Program

Yesterday morning, at Fort Hill, a dramatic program, was presented including skits from the plays "Mary Stuart" and "Study in Lethargy" The program was featured by a scene from Shakespeare's "Midsummer's Night Dream". Those participating were Ralph Pritts, Floyd Wendel, Oakland; Allan Massey, Alfred Erling, Allegany, and Charles Hammaker and Robert Crabtree, Fort Hill. Miss Roberta Cogley directed the program.

During the afternoon Monroe Benton, announcer from radio station WTBO, addressed the group on "Drama and Radio". Luncheon was served at Fort Hill and, during the afternoon, tea was served at Allegany High School.

The group visited the Cumberland Public Library for the story "The Blue Rose"; "Johnny and the hour and Miss Mary Walsh, librar- Ghost" and "St. Paul's Church, Lonian, entertained with three stories, don."

Due to cloudy weather last night the trip to the Allegany High School observatory was cancelled and the evening ended with a party at the home of Miss Barbara Bright, The Dingle.

Naval Veteran Is Held After Police Are Threatened

Officers Find Two Guns In His Home

City Police said last night they encountered another of the aftermaths of war yesterday when a 28-year-old naval veteran, the lone survivor of a gun crew, following an engagement in the Mediterranean sea, resisted arrest and threatened to shoot two officers.

Identified as Charles Owens, 509 East First Street, police said the man, now employed at the Baltimore and Ohio shops, threatened to shoot Sgt. John Newhouse and Officer Fred Daum, when they went to his home after receiving a complaint of disorderly conduct.

Sgt. Newhouse, said he and Officer Daum went to the side door of the home and as they attempted to enter Owens warned that he would shoot them. The two officers stood outside and continued to talk to the ex-sailor until he finally came out on the porch.

After forcibly putting Owens in the patrol wagon, Sgt. Newhouse said they searched the house and found two guns, one a loaded .22 caliber rifle lying across a bed in an upstairs room.

Police said they were called by Owen's wife, who alleged that he had threatened her. The house was "badly wrecked," with furniture torn up and water splashed over the floors, the sergeant said.

Owens who was returned to this country from active service after he escaped an explosion in which other members of his gun crew were killed, and two sister ships sunk, was a patient in the Bethesda, Md., U. S. Naval hospital for four and a half months. Later he was released and discharged, police said.

He was taken to the Allegany County Jail where he is being held for a mental examination by the county physician, police stated. Owens is the father of three children, and his mother, Mrs. Margaret Owens, 112 Pennsylvania Avenue, declared last night that prior to the war he was "the quietest member of the family."

Couple Injured In Auto Crash

A man and his wife were injured, neither seriously, when the automobile in which State Police said they were riding collided with a parked car on the Mexico Farms Road shortly after 10 o'clock last night.

State Trooper William F. McElfish, who investigated, said the injured are Charles Walter Lee, 42, Mexico Farms, and his wife, Gladys, 32, and added that charges of violating two state motor vehicle laws will be filed against Lee.

Lee, police said, struck the car of Charles H. Dever, Oldtown Road, which was parked in front of the home of the latter's brotherin-law, John W. Crabtree, on Mexico Farms Road.

Dever's car was parked off the shoulder of the road, officers added.

They said Dever and Crabtree heard a crash at 10:10 p. m., went outside to investigate and found that Lee's car had crashed against the rear of Dever's automobile. Mr. and Mrs. Lee, still in the car, were bleeding profusely, officers reported.

The injured couple were brought to Memorial Hospital by Dever in his damaged car and Lee was treated for lacerations of the head and Mrs. Lee for lacerations of the face. Both were cut when the windshield on their car was smashed.

Both cars were damaged considerably and Lee's had to be towed from the scene.

Cpl. C. A. Disney, of the State Police, assisted in the investigation.

Deer Park Man Fined For Burning Brush

William A. Parr, district forester, said yesterday that persons burning brush before 4 p. m. and without taking proper precautions are liable to arrest and conviction.

At Oakland yesterday, Alfonso Berrillo of Deer Park Road, Deer Park, was arraigned before Magistrate H. A. Lorditch and fined $10 and costs after pleading guilty to burning brush before 4 p. m. Elmer H. Uphole, senior forest supervisor who made the arrest said he had been arrested and warned in September, 1946 about burning brush but was arrested again on April 7.

VanMeter Arrested

Marshall VanMeter, Cresaptown, was arrested last night at 9:30 o'clock by Trooper George E. Coddington on charges of violating two state motor vehicle laws. State Police said his car was weaving across the road at Roberts Place on Route 220.

Parker, Miller Held

Two men identified as Floyd Parker, 118 Harrison street, and Orie Miller, Morgantown, W. Va., were taken into custody last night by city police on charges of disorderly conduct. Police said they were creating a disturbance on Front Street

County Officials Working On New 1947-48 Budget

Tax Rate Question Still Unanswered

County commissioners and other county officials were at the Court House until a late hour last night, trying to make heads or tails of the levy for 1947-48. The levy must be signed at the regular meeting of the commissioners Tuesday morning.

Commissioner Charles N. Wilkinson, Jr., president of the board said last night that the task of fixing the levy and setting the tax rate may not be fully completed until "the eleventh hour", as it is quite difficult in view of the status of legislation passed at the recent session of the General Assembly.

Very little is actually known here as to the effect of some of these bills upon the county's revenue and expenses as some of the measures passed have not been signed by Governor Lane, and copies of those already signed and made law have not been received by the county officials.

Studying Situation

All three members of the Board are striving desperately, they indicated, to bring about a tax reduction on real estate taxes, and to avoid an increase if at all possible. Wilkinson said the board is aware of the fact that real and personal property is carrying a heavy tax load, and if the present board can find any way to reduce the rate it will do so. He did not appear too hopeful last night, however.

In advance of signing the levy, the County Auditor Mrs. Wilbur D. Sills notified that the net credit carry-over to the next levy will be $113,826.79. The balance include interest on taxes, $297.72; receipts from the county jail, $181.35; and the remainder in the appropriations account.

Some observers believe the tax rate can be reduced, while others say the commissioners will be lucky if they can hold it where it is. Tax producing measures which the commissioners sponsored in the legislature, such as the wholesale liquor bill, defeated through the action of Senator Robert B. Kimble, and another revenue bill, licensing of slot machines, also defeated by Kimble, would have helped relieve the tax burden considerably, it is cited. But with these out the window, observers see little chance this year of new revenue.

Hold Executive Session

The county will receive a little more from liquor licenses if the new set-up becomes law, as fees for licenses in this bill are doubled. Half of the amount, around $30,000, goes to the county and the other half to incorporated communities.

But raises in salaries, such as those granted the sheriff's deputies, purchase of voting machines and other increased expenditures created by legislative action, may offset any new revenue the legislature made possible, officials point out.

At any rate, an executive session was held until late last night with no final decision reached, and further study is to be made over the weekend. In the meantime about all John Q. Taxpayer can do is wait until Tuesday and see what the outcome is.

Trinity Methodist To Observe Laymen's Day

"Laymen's Day" will be observed tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock by the Trinity Methodist Church. John C. Baldwin, lay leader, will preside and offer the morning prayer. David M. Watson will read the Scripture lesson, and Winfred J. Daniels will lead the responsive reading from the Psalter. Earl Edmund Manges will address the congregation on the subject, "My Christian Growth."

Rev. B. T. Price, Portsmouth, Va., who entered the ministry from Trinity Church, will preach in the evening at 7:30 on "The Salt of the Earth."

Trinity Church will join other South Cumberland churches Wednesday evening in an Anti-Saloon League Rally at the Bethany United Church, where Robert R. Potter, field representative of the Anti-Saloon League of America, will speak.

Guard Restrictions On Marriage Removed

All restrictions on the enlistment of married men for the National Guard have been removed, Second Army Headquarters announced yesterday, according to Capt. Thomas Stafford, unit instructor of the Army Reserve Corps here.

Former regulations prescribed, Capt. Stafford said, that not more than 50 per cent of the enlisted strength of any unit below the first three grades could be married.

Boy Is Injured When Hit By Car

Three-year-old Robert Hughes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Hughes, 312 Independence Street, was admitted to Allegany Hospital early last night for observation and X-rays of injuries suffered when he was struck by a car on Independence Street early last night.

The family said they were told Bobbie was suffering from a possible fracture of the skull, and said they were told he was injured when he ran out from behind a parked car.

Police said the car was driven by E. W. Reynolds, 615 Louisiana Avenue. Officer J. Carl Stouffer is investigating for city police.

Union Says Phone Company Not Telling All Of Facts

Declares Claims Are Misleading

The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City has told only part of the truth in statements regarding issues at stake in the telephone strike, George E. Williams, Western Maryland strike leader for the Maryland Federation of Telephone Workers, declared last night.

"What the company says is true," Williams stated, "but they tell only part of the facts—those that are favorable to their side.

"The company says, among other things, that we received vacations, sickness benefits and pensions, which is true, Williams agreed, but, he added, "We want those plans improved.

"We are not striking just for a $12 a week wage increase, but for 21 other issues as well."

Williams and Paul Bixler, strike lieutenant, also criticized the company for wanting to bargain on a statewide basis, and asserted that while the company wants to keep the union small and bargain on local levels, the company has no representative on the state level with the power to say yes or no. Policy, they declared, is set by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company in New York.

Submitted Separate Proposals

In a move to prove this assertion, the local strike leaders pointed out that each of the 39 member unions of the National Federation of Telephone Workers submitted national and their own individual proposal to the respective telephone companies of the Bell System for bargaining. However, each of the companies submitted practically identical counter proposals which, Williams and Bixler say, were dictated by A. T. and T. in New York.

Company claims are misleading, too, the local strike leaders said, because they assume that none of the cost of wage increase and other demands would be borne by toll and long distance revenues, most lucrative of the companies' business.

Assumption is made in both advertising and in other public statements regarding the program that all of the cost would be borne by the subscriber and that the present $9 annual dividend would be maintained, they said, adding that the companies' depreciation fund, now amounting to over $2,000,000,000, would not be touched.

Any attempts to determine cost to a subscriber on a local basis would be misleading, Williams and Bixler said, because of the relationship between local and long distance service. In no case has a company pleaded inability to pay, they added, but all have insisted they are paying "comparable" wages in all communities.

Meanwhile, Robert O. Slemmer, state strike leader for the Maryland Federation of Telephone Workers, reported in a telegram to Williams yesterday that there was no progress in negotiations.

Slemmer reported that the bargaining committee is meeting daily with management and the federal conciliator, but that "no offers have been made to date." He advised Williams to pass on this information to the membership, now on picket duty in Allegany County.

Telephone company officials meantime reported completion of long distance calls to 42 states, Canada and Mexico Thursday as well as improved service on city manual exchanges with supervisory personnel on the job.

Commerce Advisors Hold Counsel Here

While the United States Department of Commerce's new service, offered here for the first time yesterday, was not taken advantage of by large crowds, Harold W. Smith, Chamber of Commerce secretary, said some "very excellent information was offered."

Smith said the department representatives who are expected to return within the next 60 days, are prepared to give counsel to persons who are already in business and those planning to open a business.

The service should prove particularly helpful to returning veterans planning to open a business of their own, Smith said, since the representatives have information that will assist them in selecting a site, and inform them of the type of equipment they should have along with the results that should be expected in the early stages.

The department is also interested in assisting small firms in their foreign trade. One of the representatives is a specialist in foreign trade information, Smith declared, and for small firms that can not afford counsel from foreign offices the Department of Commerce representatives should be of valuable assistance.

Following interviews in the local Chamber of Commerce yesterday from 10:30 a. m. to 12 noon, the representatives left on a tour of local plants, Smith said, with the idea of offering assistance to plant managers and owners if they desired aid.

If interest in the new service is sufficient the Department of Commerce will continue to send representatives here to aid local business men and industries, Smith explained.

Celanese Workers Will Be Offered New Pension Plan

Details Expected In Next Few Days

Employees of the Amcelle Plant, Celanese Corporation of America will be offered a pension plan effective July 1, this year, providing for contribution by both the individual worker and the corporation, Fred T. Small, plant manager, announced last night.

Small said the proposal for establishing a company-wide pension plan was ratified by the stockholders at their annual meeting held in New York Wednesday. Details of the pension plan are expected at the local plant in a few days, he added.

New Department Planned

Once a full explanation is received by local representatives, Small stated, a Pension Department will be set up at the Amcelle plant similar to the Insurance Department that is now in operation. The new system will function under the factory accountant.

Any regular employe will be eligible to join the plan after completing five years of continuous service, providing he has not attained his 65th birthday according to the plan approved by the stockholders.

Credit will be given for years spent in the armed services if the participant was in active employment at the time of entering service and returned to active employment upon discharge.

The amount of annual pension payable at age 65, under the retirement provisions, for past service, will be equal to the sum of one half of one per cent of the rate of annual earning on June 30, 1947 up to $3,000 plus one per cent of earnings in excess of $3,000 multiplied by the number of years of service prior to July 1, 1947 which occurred after the completion of five years.

For future service the amount of annual pension payable will be eight-tenths of one per cent of annual earnings up to $3,000, plus two per cent of such earnings in excess of $3,000 during each year of membership in the plan.

Is Participation Plan

Small explained that the plan is one of participation and said applications will be distributed as soon as the particulars are learned. Only those who desire to participate will receive the benefits.

The corporation will pay the entire cost of the past service pensions and the major portion of the cost of future service pensions. Each employe will contribute only towards the cost of his future service pension and this in an amount equal to the sum of two per cent of the first $3,000 of his annual earnings, plus five per cent of such annual earnings in excess of $3,000.

3 Men Injured Clearing B & O Train Wreckage

18 Cars Derailed At Doe Gully, W. Va.

Three Cumberland men were injured, one seriously, early yesterday morning when a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad crane overturned as crews were attempting to remove the wreckage of a $20,000, 18-car derailment which occurred Thursday at Doe Gully, W. Va., 38 miles from here.

The injured were identified as: Earl Randall, 49, 209 Maryland Avenue, whom Memorial Hospital attaches said suffered a fractured left clavicle and deep lacerations of the scalp. Attaches said his condition was "fair."

Hits Broken Rail

B. and O. officials said Train No. 94, a fast freight, struck a broken rail in the Magnolia cutoff Thursday morning at 10:25 o'clock and 18 of the 64 cars were derailed. None of the train crew was injured, they stated.

Railroad officials said the engine of the train, which was making a run from Cumberland to Brunswick, passed over the broken rail, but the fourth car in the train was derailed when it struck the imperfect track and the fifth car also left the track. Cars between the fifth and 25th inclusive remained upright, but cars 26 to 42 were derailed, they said.

Damage to track and equipment was estimated at $20,000, but railroad officials said they could give no estimate of the damaged merchandise until the salvage job is completed. They added the train was carrying several cars of automobiles, shortening, bottles, and other "high class" merchandise.

The "main track," which does not pass through the cutoff, is being used for all freight and passenger trains, until the debris can be cleaned from the wreck, officials said. They estimated that the "low tracks" passing through the cutoff will be cleared by this morning.

Officials said the wrecking crew was sent out on a Cumberland crane Thursday morning shortly after the wreck to begin clearing the tracks. Work proceded rapidly until the crane overturned short after midnight an employe stated.

Employes said Rice, who was working as "crane runner," and Zollner, the fireman, jumped from the platform of the crane as it began to overturn, but Randall, who was working on the ground was struck by the boom which broke loose and was swinging as the crane went down.

Injured Brought Here

The injured men were brought back to Cumberland on East Bound No. 15 passenger train and were admitted to the hospital at 1:15 a. m. Friday. They were taken to the hospital from the train in an ambulance.

Hospital attaches said Rice's and Zollner's fractures have been reduced and casts applied, but stated that Randall underwent surgical treatment last night.

While the train schedule was not affected by the wreck, officials said it was necessary to run both passenger and freight service over the "main tracks" which ordinarily are used only for slow freights. They declared that a great deal of congestion has resulted.

Officials would not say immediately just how much of the merchandise was damaged, but said they expected to salvage a "big" percentage of it. They added that no word has been received here to indicate whether the derailed cars had broken open and scattered the merchandise or not.

The broken rail was described as a flaw which sometimes occurs in rails but said it cannot be detected by inspecting crews until it actually breaks. In all probability the engine and first three cars caused the actual break which then throwed the No. 4 car, they declared.

Officials said last night that an investigation is now underway to determine what caused the crane to topple over.

Trophy Is Secured For Air Derby Here

A facsimile of the famed Thompson Trophy, traditionally awarded at the Labor Day air races at Cleveland Airport, has been secured by Russell H. Shafer of the Exchange Club aviation committee as first prize in the cross-country air derby to be held at Mexico Farms airport on Sunday, May 11.

In addition to the trophy, winner of the derby will receive $200 in cash. Second and third prizes will be $100 and $50, respectively.

The committee announced last night that 10 entries have been secured to date from pilots of Cumberland, Winchester, Va., Martinsburg and Moorefield, W. Va., and Bedford, Pa.

Light planes of 100 horsepower or under may be entered in the derby, which will be flown over a course of 110 air miles from Mexico Farms to Martinsburg and Winchester and return. Light plane manufacturers are being checked regarding the cruising speed of each type of ship, and mathematical calculations will be made to determine necessary handicaps.

Various types of planes already entered include Aeronca, Piper Super-Cruiser, Cessna, Ercoupe and Taylorcraft. Contestants must hold a private pilot's license or better, and must submit their applications to the Exchange Club, Box 882, on or before April 25.

In the event various contributions from sponsors of the meet exceed expectations, it is planned to refund the $5 entrance fee to the contestants. Free gasoline will be provided for planes taking part in the derby by a national oil firm.

While the race is in progress, Richard Hockman, Winchester, will put on an exhibition of parachute jumping at the Mexico Farms airport.

Viewpoints On Fast Time Here

QUESTION: Do you favor adoption of daylight saving time for Allegany County?

Mrs. Margaret G. Gerdeman, 7 Market Street, employed as a cashier in Martin's Shops: I do. I come from Boston where they have had daylight saving time in the summer months for several years and it is very convenient. It gives working people more time for outdoor activities in the evening, and I certainly don't see how it would be harmful to business.

Mrs. Vincent Monahan, 226 Valley Street, clerk in People's Drug Store: Absolutely. It would give everybody more time to themselves during the summer months. I would like to see it introduced in Cumberland and Allegany County this Summer. I don't see how it would possibly hurt business places and it would give the working people a chance to enjoy many daylight hours during the summer evenings.

Mrs. Leona Hager, 458 Goethe Street, floor girl at McCrory's Store: Yes, I think it would be a good thing for all of the clerks and I cannot see where it would cause any great inconvenience during the summer months. It would give everyone a chance to enjoy outdoor activities or to get a great deal of outdoor work done during the summer evenings that otherwise they will have to pass up.

Miss Kathryn Drummond, Mt. Savage, clerk in Rosenbaum's Store: Yes, I do . . very much so. I think it would be more helpful to people because so many other states will be having daylight saving time and all the radio programs will be scheduled on the summer time. I think it would also be very convenient for the clerks and other persons who are working, since they would have longer evening for outdoor activities during the summer months.

Miss Emily P. Hyde, Barton Md., secretary in the G. C. Murphy Stores: Sure, I'm in favor of daylight saving time. I think it would be very beneficial. The time lost in the morning would more than be made up in the evening when everyone had a few extra daylight hours to take advantage of. I believe too, it would give everybody a better opportunity to shop during the cooler hours of the day in the hot summer months. Once it was changed I don't think anyone would notice the difference in the morning.

Mrs. Virginia Lee Roth, 427 Goethe Street mail order clerk at Sears Roebuck's Store: I sure do favor it. It would make the day seem much longer. I think it would be better to come to work an hour earlier and then get the time off in the evening while it is still daylight. It would give us all an opportunity to enjoy many outdoor activities that we otherwise will have to miss. I'm very much in favor of it.

Miss Patricia Sutkamp, cashier in Peskin's Store: I worked under the daylight saving system in Ohio and I liked it very much. It always seemed like the days were not so long and you had more daylight time to spend in the evenings. Most of the people in Ohio, that I knew found it to be very satisfactory and I would certainly like to see it started here. I have lived here two years now, and I miss it in the summer time.

Mrs. Nellie LaGratta, 611 Bedford Street, clerk in the Cumberland Cloak and Suit Store: I like the idea very much. You see, I lived in several cities where they have had daylight saving time for many years, and I found it very convenient. While living in one city in West Virginia, I wasn't working but the extra daylight hours in the evening always seemed so enjoyable. It would be very nice for the working people in this section if daylight time were installed and I don't see how it would hurt business at all.

Mine Inspectors Begin Checking Closed Operations

Waynesburg Coal Is Declared Safe

Federal mine inspectors are reported to have inspected and found safe, one of three closed mines in this county, and are scheduled to make an early inspection of the other two.

The mine certified as safe is the Waynesburg mine of the Georges Creek Coal Company located at Lonaconing. It is a big vein operation and considered one of the largest in the county, employing over 125 men and producing upwards of 700 tons daily.

Eckhart Mine No. 10 and Hoffman Mine No. 3, of the Consolidated Fuel Company remain closed by Federal order, although it was learned last night that some repairs and improvements are underway, so that the operations will comply with all safety regulations and recommendations in recent federal inspection reports.

Jenkins Won't Comment

It was indicated that Eckhart Mine was scheduled for an inspection yesterday, but it was not fully determined if the inspection was completed. William Jenkins, an official of the Consolidated Company declined to discuss the situation or comment last night.

The Waynesburg Mine was inspected yesterday by the two visiting Federal men and declared safe for production. Representatives of the Company, the Union and the Mine Safety Committee, accompanied Federal inspectors, and approved their findings. Telegrams were sent to the coal administrator at Washington, D. C.

As soon as Washington acts on this report the mines can resume operation. Robert L. Stallings, president of the company said last night that the Federal inspectors made a thorough and careful examination of the operation and aside from a few minor recommendations found the mines safe for production. He expressed the hope that the mines can be opened Monday, saying that the coal administrator will act quickly as everyone is anxious to have production begin.

Other operations of the Georges Creek Coal Company, three smaller mines which were not ordered closed are already in production, Stallings said.

Shipments Increasing

David Watkins, international representative of District 16, United Mine Workers of America, said last night he has learned nothing new in the shut-down situation and many miners remain idle, awaiting the result of scheduled inspections.

He said much of the coal being shipped by railroad here is from strip mine operations explaining that only a few of the deep mines are working at all, and most of these on partial production.

When he was told that inspectors had visited the Waynesburg Mine and declared it safe for production, he said "that's what the men want. They want to know if the workings are safe. Too many miners are being hurt and killed. Nine more were killed yesterday over in the Wilkesbarre, Pa., area."

Railroads here report coal shipments about 75 to 80 per cent of normal, stating that some deep mines are producing some coal, others remain closed, and most of the coal being shipped is from strip mine operations.

Farewell Breakfast Will Mark Close Of Thespian Conference

A "Farewell Breakfast", to be held this morning at Central Y. M. C. A., will conclude the activities of the first Thespian Conference of Maryland troupes, which opened here yesterday morning. Prof. Maurice Matteson, instructor of music at Frostburg State Teachers College, will be guest speaker.

Well known, locally and nationally, for his contributions in folk music research and in composition, the speaker will talk to the Thespians on "Music in Drama", illustrating his remarks with instrumental and vocal music. Barbara Bright, a member of the Allegany High School troupe will introduce the speaker.

Delores Chase, Fort Hill High School Thespian, will act as mistress of ceremonies, and Ann Martin, of Allegany, will give the invocation. A farewell gift will be a souvenir directory of the Maryland Troupes, edited by Jean Allen and printed and mimeographed by John Ferguson and Miss Claire Livesay. Special guests will include Mrs. Matteson, Victor D. Heisey and Ralph R. Webster.

Dr. Atwater Speaks

The conference will conclude with a farewell message by Wilma King, president of the Inter-School National Thespian Council. The committee in charge of arrangements for the breakfast includes Delores Chase, Miss Gerardine Pritchard and Miss Orpna-Bonita Pritchard.

Dr. Elizabeth Atwater, professor of speech at Potomac State College, was guest speaker at the banquet of the Thespians, held last night at the Ali Ghan Shrine Club. In her address entitled, "At The Theater", she listed famous play-writers of Europe and the British Isles and said, that although Americans think they have many very good play makers, there is only one who is internationally recognized and he is Eugene O'Neill. This is true for the most part, she explained, because America is interested primarily in the "little theater", that includes community, church and school theaters.

Drama has been in existence since the beginning of time, the speaker stated, and those who "dabble", however insignificantly, in theater work "touch the hem of eternity", she concluded.

Wilma King served as mistress of ceremonies at the banquet and brief talks were given on the various ages of drama by Carolyn Ringler, Lorraine Kompanek and Donald Tharpe. Piano selections were played by Sam Hunter, Beall High School student, and two vocal selections were given by Robert Crabtree, a student at Fort Hill.

Group singing was led by Mrs. Betty Winters. A "spotlighting" of guests was held and each gave a brief talk. Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools in Allegany County, commented on the poise of the group members and thanked them for the opportunity of meeting with them.

Give Dramatic Program

Yesterday morning, at Fort Hill, a dramatic program, was presented including skits from the plays "Mary Stuart" and "Study in Lethargy" The program was featured by a scene from Shakespeare's "Midsummer's Night Dream". Those participating were Ralph Pritts, Floyd Wendel, Oakland; Allan Massey, Alfred Erling, Allegany, and Charles Hammaker and Robert Crabtree, Fort Hill. Miss Roberta Cogley directed the program.

During the afternoon Monroe Benton, announcer from radio station WTBO, addressed the group on "Drama and Radio". Luncheon was served at Fort Hill and, during the afternoon, tea was served at Allegany High School.

The group visited the Cumberland Public Library for the story "The Blue Rose"; "Johnny and the hour and Miss Mary Walsh, librar- Ghost" and "St. Paul's Church, Lonian, entertained with three stories, don."

Due to cloudy weather last night the trip to the Allegany High School observatory was cancelled and the evening ended with a party at the home of Miss Barbara Bright, The Dingle.

Naval Veteran Is Held After Police Are Threatened

Officers Find Two Guns In His Home

City Police said last night they encountered another of the aftermaths of war yesterday when a 28-year-old naval veteran, the lone survivor of a gun crew, following an engagement in the Mediterranean sea, resisted arrest and threatened to shoot two officers.

Identified as Charles Owens, 509 East First Street, police said the man, now employed at the Baltimore and Ohio shops, threatened to shoot Sgt. John Newhouse and Officer Fred Daum, when they went to his home after receiving a complaint of disorderly conduct.

Sgt. Newhouse, said he and Officer Daum went to the side door of the home and as they attempted to enter Owens warned that he would shoot them. The two officers stood outside and continued to talk to the ex-sailor until he finally came out on the porch.

After forcibly putting Owens in the patrol wagon, Sgt. Newhouse said they searched the house and found two guns, one a loaded .22 caliber rifle lying across a bed in an upstairs room.

Police said they were called by Owen's wife, who alleged that he had threatened her. The house was "badly wrecked," with furniture torn up and water splashed over the floors, the sergeant said.

Owens who was returned to this country from active service after he escaped an explosion in which other members of his gun crew were killed, and two sister ships sunk, was a patient in the Bethesda, Md., U. S. Naval hospital for four and a half months. Later he was released and discharged, police said.

He was taken to the Allegany County Jail where he is being held for a mental examination by the county physician, police stated. Owens is the father of three children, and his mother, Mrs. Margaret Owens, 112 Pennsylvania Avenue, declared last night that prior to the war he was "the quietest member of the family."

Couple Injured In Auto Crash

A man and his wife were injured, neither seriously, when the automobile in which State Police said they were riding collided with a parked car on the Mexico Farms Road shortly after 10 o'clock last night.

State Trooper William F. McElfish, who investigated, said the injured are Charles Walter Lee, 42, Mexico Farms, and his wife, Gladys, 32, and added that charges of violating two state motor vehicle laws will be filed against Lee.

Lee, police said, struck the car of Charles H. Dever, Oldtown Road, which was parked in front of the home of the latter's brotner-in-law, John W. Crabtree, on Mexico Farms Road.

Dever's car was parked off the shoulder of the road, officers added.

They said Dever and Crabtree heard a crash at 10:10 p. m., went outside to investigate and found that Lee's car had crashed against the rear of Dever's automobile. Mr. and Mrs. Lee, still in the car, were bleeding profusely, officers reported.

The injured couple were brought to Memorial Hospital by Dever in his damaged car and Lee was treated for lacerations of the head and Mrs. Lee for lacerations of the face. Both were cut when the windshield on their car was smashed.

Both cars were damaged considerably and Lee's had to be towed from the scene.

Cpl. C. A. Disney, of the State Police, assisted in the investigation.

County Officials Working On New 1947-48 Budget

Tax Rate Question Still Unanswered

County commissioners and other county officials were at the Court House until a late hour last night, trying to make heads or tails of the levy for 1947-48. The levy must be signed at the regular meeting of the commissioners Tuesday morning.

Commissioner Charles N. Wilkinson, Jr., president of the board said last night that the task of fixing the levy and setting the tax rate may not be fully completed until "the eleventh hour", as it is quite difficult in view of the status of legislation passed at the recent session of the General Assembly.

Very little is actually known here as to the effect of some of these bills upon the county's revenue and expenses as some of the measures passed have not been signed by Governor Lane, and copies of those already signed and made law have not been received by the county officials.

Studying Situation

All three members of the Board are striving desperately, they indicated, to bring about a tax reduction on real estate taxes, and to avoid an increase if at all possible. Wilkinson said the board is aware of the fact that real and personal property is carrying a heavy tax load, and if the present board can find any way to reduce the rate it will do so. He did not appear too hopeful last night, however.

In advance of signing the levy, the County Auditor Mrs. Wilbur D. Sills notified that the net credit carry-over to the next levy will be $113,826.79. The balance include interest on taxes, $297.72; receipts from the county jail, $181.35; and the remainder in the appropriations account.

Some observers believe the tax rate can be reduced, while others say the commissioners will be lucky if they can hold it where it is. Tax producing measures which the commissioners sponsored in the legislature, such as the wholesale liquor bill, defeated through the action of Senator Robert B. Kimble, and another revenue bill, licensing of slot machines, also defeated by Kimble, would have helped relieve the tax burden considerably, it is cited. But with these out the window, observers see little chance this year of new revenue.

Hold Executive Session

The county will receive a little more from liquor licenses if the new set-up becomes law, as fees for licenses in this bill are doubled. Half of the amount, around $30,000, goes to the county and the other half to incorporated communities.

But raises in salaries, such as those granted the sheriff's deputies, purchase of voting machines and other increased expenditures created by legislative action, may offset any new revenue the legislature made possible, officials point out.

At any rate, an executive session was held until late last night with no final decision reached, and further study is to be made over the weekend. In the meantime about all John Q. Taxpayer can do is wait until Tuesday and see what the outcome is.

Guard Restrictions On Marriage Removed

All restrictions on the enlistment of married men for the National Guard have been removed, Second Army Headquarters announced yesterday, according to Capt. Thomas Stafford, unit instructor of the Army Reserve Corps here.

Former regulations prescribed, Capt. Stafford said, that not more than 50 per cent of the enlisted strength of any unit below the first three grades could be married.

Boy Is Injured When Hit By Car

Three-year-old Robert Hughes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Hughes, 312 Independence Street, was admitted to Allegany Hospital early last night for observation and X-rays of injuries suffered when he was struck by a car on Independence Street early last night.

The family said they were told Bobbie was suffering from a possible fracture of the skull, and said they were told he was injured when he ran out from behind a parked car.

Police said the car was driven by E. W. Reynolds, 615 Louisiana Avenue. Officer J. Carl Stouffer is investigating for city police.

Union Says Phone Company Not Telling All Of Facts

Declares Claims Are Misleading

The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City has told only part of the truth in statements regarding issues at stake in the telephone strike, George E. Williams, Western Maryland strike leader for the Maryland Federation of Telephone Workers, declared last night.

"What the company says is true," Williams stated, "but they tell only part of the facts—those that are favorable to their side.

"The company says, among other things, that we received vacations, sickness benefits and pensions, which is true, Williams agreed, but, he added, "We want those plans improved.

"We are not striking just for a $12 a week wage increase, but for 21 other issues as well."

Williams and Paul Bixler, strike lieutenant, also criticized the company for wanting to bargain on a statewide basis, and asserted that while the company wants to keep the union small and bargain on local levels, the company has no representative on the state level with the power to say yes or no. Policy, they declared, is set by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company in New York.

Submitted Separate Proposals

In a move to prove this assertion, the local strike leaders pointed out that each of the 39 member unions of the National Federation of Telephone Workers submitted national and their own individual proposal to the respective telephone companies of the Bell System for bargaining. However, each of the companies submitted practically identical counter proposals which, Williams and Bixler say, were dictated by A. T. and T. in New York.

Company claims are misleading, too, the local strike leaders said, because they assume that none of the cost of wage increase and other demands would be borne by toll and long distance revenues, most lucrative of the companies' business.

Assumption is made in both advertising and in other public statements regarding the program that all of the cost would be borne by the subscriber and that the present $9 annual dividend would be maintained, they said, adding that the companies' depreciation fund, now amounting to over $2,000,000,000, would not be touched.

Any attempts to determine cost to a subscriber on a local basis would be misleading, Williams and Bixler said, because of the relationship between local and long distance service. In no case has a company pleaded inability to pay, they added, but all have insisted they are paying "comparable" wages" in all communities.

Meanwhile, Robert O. Slemmer, state strike leader for the Maryland Federation of Telephone Workers, reported in a telegram to Williams yesterday that there was no progress in negotiations.

Slemmer reported that the bargaining committee is meeting daily with management and the federal conciliator, but that "no offers have been made to date." He advised Williams to pass on this information to the membership, now on picket duty in Allegany County.

Telephone company officials meantime reported completion of long distance calls to 42 states, Canada and Mexico Thursday as well as improved service on city manual exchanges with supervisory personnel on the job.

Commerce Advisors Hold Counsel Here

While the United States Department of Commerce's new service, offered here for the first time yesterday, was not taken advantage of by large crowds, Harold W. Smith, Chamber of Commerce secretary, said some "very excellent information was offered."

Smith said the department representatives who are expected to return within the next 60 days, are prepared to give counsel to persons who are already in business and those planning to open a business.

The service should prove particularly helpful to returning veterans planning to open a business of their own, Smith said, since the representatives have information that will assist them in selecting a site, and inform them of the type of equipment they should have along with the results that should be expected in the early stages.

The department is also interested in assisting small firms in their foreign trade. One of the representatives is a specialist in foreign trade information, Smith declared, and for small firms that can not afford counsel from foreign offices the Department of Commerce representatives should be of valuable assistance.

Following interviews in the local Chamber of Commerce yesterday from 10:30 a. m. to 12 noon, the representatives left on a tour of local plants, Smith said, with the idea of offering assistance to plant managers and owners if they desired aid.

If interest in the new service is sufficient the Department of Commerce will continue to send representatives here to aid local business men and industries, Smith explained.

Celanese Workers Will Be Offered New Pension Plan

Details Expected In Next Few Days

Employees of the Amcelle Plant, Celanese Corporation of America will be offered a pension plan effective July 1, this year, providing for contribution by both the individual worker and the corporation, Fred T. Small, plant manager, announced last night.

Small said the proposal for establishing a company-wide pension plan was ratified by the stockholders at their annual meeting held in New York Wednesday. Details of the pension plan are expected at the local plant in a few days, he added.

New Department Planned

Once a full explanation is received by local representatives, Small stated, a Pension Department will be set up at the Amcelle plant similar to the Insurance Department that is now in operation. The new system will function under the factory accountant.

Any regular employe will be eligible to join the plan after completing five years of continuous service, providing he has not attained his 65th birthday according to the plan approved by the stockholders.

Credit will be given for years spent in the armed services if the participant was in active employment at the time of entering service and returned to active employment upon discharge.

The amount of annual pension payable at age 65, under the retirement provisions, for past service, will be equal to the sum of one half of one per cent of the rate of annual earning on June 30, 1947 up to $3,000 plus one per cent of earnings in excess of $3,000 multiplied by the number of years of service prior to July 1, 1947 which occurred after the completion of five years.

For future service the amount of annual pension payable will be eight-tenths of one per cent of annual earnings up to $3,000, plus two per cent of such earnings in excess of $3,000 during each year of membership in the plan.

Is Participation Plan

Small explained that the plan is one of participation and said applications will be distributed as soon as the particulars are learned. Only those who desire to participate will receive the benefits.

The corporation will pay the entire cost of the past service pensions and the major portion of the cost of future service pensions. Each employe will contribute only towards the cost of his future service pension and this in an amount equal to the sum of two per cent of the first $3,000 of his annual earnings, plus five per cent of such annual earnings in excess of $3,000.
